Senators Attend Yuma Meeting

Proponents of All-American Canal Active With Propaganda

Trip Gives Committee Good Insight Into Needs of Imperial Valley

BY KYLE D. PALMER
"Times" Staff Correspondent
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

YUMA, Oct. 31.—Covered with dust and tired from a strenuous inspection trip through the sand hills of Imperial Valley and along the Imperial irrigation canal from the intake at Hanlon's Heading to a point twenty-six miles south of the international border in Lower California, the Senate Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation arrived here late this afternoon and conducted its initial Arizona hearing in Yuma tonight.

The principal portion of today's trip was arranged by the proponents of an all-American canal and more than 200 supporters of the project accompanied the Senatorial party.

During the trip by automobile from El Centro to Hanlon's Heading and for more than four hours on the train which conveyed the party into Lower California, the committee of Senators was afforded a strenuous demonstration of high-pressure salesmanship methods.

BARRAGE OF ARGUMENTS

Apparently carefully schooled to follow a definite program of argument and propaganda, the canal enthusiasts surrounded members of the committee and turned loose a veritable barrage of arguments, assertions, answers and explanations.

HOOVER ISSUES WARNING TO WORLD MONOPOLISTS

Combines Holding Up Prices on Rubber, Coffee and Other Items Get Threat of Retaliation

[BY A. P NIGHT WIRE]

ERIE (Pa.) Oct. 31.—Foreign monopolists of rubber, coffee, nitrates, potash and other raw materials essential to American industry were warned in a speech here tonight by Secretary Hoover that if their unfair exactions upon American consumers continue they may expect to find the United States following the same practices, and organizing governmentally to retaliate by shoving upward the prices on commodities it produces for world trade.

The Commerce Secretary estimated that the United States is spending upward of $800,000,000 annually for the purchase of monopoly-controlled commodities, and declared the procedure of some of these price-controllers might "ultimately bring a crash down upon the entire industry."

Mr. Hoover deplored the situation and asserted that the best interests of world commerce unquestionably call for the greatest amount of freedom of trade from price controls.

GRAVE DANGER

The United States, as a matter of internal policy, has enacted in the past and enforced the anti-trust laws to prevent its own producers from combining to mulct consumers of American products, but now easily can countenance the creation of combinations, which would do with the prices of cotton, copper and oil what has been done by English, Brazilian, Franco-German, Chilean and other national producers of raw materials that America imports, he said.

"The whole tendency, however, presents grave international danger, and the Secretary called on other nations to reconsider their commercial programs.

"An easy-going and tolerant world," he said, "anxious above all things to keep down international friction, might let these controls in international trade continue, objectionable as they are, if their conduct in every case had been

FIRE RAZES AUTO ROW IN SEATTLE

Two-Million-Dollar Loss Estimated In Blaze That Sweeps Showrooms

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SEATTLE, Oct. 31.—Loss estimated at $2,000,000 was caused by a fire in Seattle's automobile row tonight, which for more than an hour threatened to destroy the entire block bounded by Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, East Pine and East Pike streets, and which called into action every available piece of fire apparatus in the city.

The loss may run higher when check is made on the stores of automobiles believed to have been destroyed.

Four buildings were destroyed. They were:

Chandler motor car agency, a two-story brick building, also containing the Cleveland automobile agency.

Firestone Tire and Rubber Comdebaker buildings.

Attorneys Row in Murder Trial of Klan Leader

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NOBLESVILLE (Ind.) Oct. 31. A sharp clash of counsel over a ruling of Judge Will Sparks on a statement by Madge Oberholtzer quoted by Levi Thomas, Pullman porter, on the witness stand, brought today's session of the Stephenson murder trial to a sensational finish.

Thomas, testifying on cross-examination regarding remarks he heard the girl make in the Pullman compartment during her asserted abduction to Hammond by D. P. Stephenson, former Klan leader, and Earl Gentry, quoted her as saying to Stephenson: "Oh, dear, put that gun away."

"Oh," said Eph Inman, defense counsel, "and what else did she call him?"

The State immediately objected to the construction put by Inman on the word "dear" and the judge upheld the objection, saying that the word might have been used in fear or terror instead of as a term of endearment. The defense took vigorous exception to the court's remarks, saying the question was one for the jury to decide, and court adjourned in confusion.

MAX LINDER AND WIFE DIE

Noted French Film Star and Male Open Veins in Arms and Drink Narcotic

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Max Linder, French motion-picture actor, and his wife ended their lives together this afternoon at their Paris residence.

The couple, before drinking a narcotic, opened veins in their arms. Death came rapidly to Mrs. Linder. A servant, hearing groans from their room, forced the door and succeeded in staunching the flow of blood from the actor's wounds, and summoning medical assistance. Linder was rushed to a hospital, where he soon died.

In February, 1924, Max Linder and his wife were found in a comatose condition in a hotel room in Vienna from what was described as an overdose of a sleeping powder. They were removed to a sanatorium and, when he recovered, Linder informed the doctors that he had prepared the customary sleeping draught, but had done so too generously.

Linder, who has been called the French Charlie Chaplin, had a contract with an American film company and went to New York in 1919, taking with him two secretaries and forty-eight trunks. He was wounded while serving with the French forces in the European war and was injured in an automobile accident near Nice two years ago.

LINDER MADE FILMS HERE IN 1917

Max Linder, the French comedian, who, with his wife, committed suicide in Paris yesterday, was in Los Angeles during 1917 and made several pictures, according to friends last night.

During April, 1917, Linder was arrested for speeding in Los Angeles and was scheduled to appear before Justice Hinshaw. On the day of the hearing he was confined to a local hospital on account of wounds suffered while in the French army. When Justice Hinshaw was informed of the reason the comedian did not appear in court, he dismissed the charges.

Rails Win Over Freight Trucks in Grass Valley

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

GRASS VALLEY, Oct. 31.—The automobile truck must run a poor second to the little narrow-gauge railroad between the hill towns of Grass Valley and Nevada City and Colfax. The shippers of the two first-named towns to a man have pledged themselves to ship over the railroad exclusively to prevent its abandonment to the encroachments of the motor-driven truck. A copy will be filed with the State Railroad Commission, before which body an application to abandon the road is pending.

'DEMPSEY' AS SCHOOL NAME HIT

Legion Leader Declares Action Would be Insult to World War Veterans

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DENVER, Oct. 31.—Proposals of members of the school board of Manassa, Colo., to name the new high-school building there "The Jack Dempsey School," has met with a storm of protest from the American Legion.

John C. Vivian, past commander of the Department of Colorado and present chairman of the district rehabilitation committee, said today that he has protested to the school board on behalf of the national organization.

In his protest, Vivian declared that paying such a tribute to the heavyweight king would be "a direct affront—yes, even an insult—to every World War veteran."

He said John B. Bernard, Colorado Legion commander, is making a similar protest.

British Frame Protection for Film Industry

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Oct. 31. — Recommendation that after October, 1926, no British motion-picture "renter" can handle foreign films unless simultaneously he offers British films to the theaters, has been drawn up by a committee representing the British film industry, the committee further recommends that after January 1, 1927, every theater in Britain must at least exhibit one British-made film at each performance.

The suggested proportion between British and foreign films begins with 10 per cent of the total of the program, then rising to 25 per cent in 1929. The government is to be asked for aid in making these recommendations effective.

Austria Federal Workers Make Bonus Demand

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VIENNA, Oct. 31.—Ninety thousand federal employees served an ultimatum on the Austrian government, demanding an unconditional grant of half a moth's salary as bonus before the new year, and the same amount as a quarterly supplement, indefinitely.

Unless the demand is granted a general strike will go into effect on November 4, next. Addressing the employees' committee, Finance Minister Ahrer declared granting the demand was out of the question.

The employees threatening to strike included all trades from highest to lowest, but exclude the telegraph, telephone, post and railway staffs.

SHAH SHORN OF POWER IN PERSIA COUP

Royal Authority Passed on to Premier, Who Will Call Assembly

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TEHERAN (Persia) Oct. 31.—The Mejliss today divested Ahmed Mirza, Shah of Persia, of his royal authority and passed it to Premier Riza Khan. Royalty thus becomes elective in Persia. There was gun firing and the Crown Prince retired to his private residence.

Premier Riza Khan consented to accept the Persian throne in an interview today with prominent leaders of all the parties, big landowners and some ecclesiastics who had called to ask him to save the country from the Kadjar dynasty.

The Premier told the party that he could not honestly refuse the national demand, and he will call a constitutional assembly to make the necessary changes in the constitution.

In the meanwhile, miner clashes have occurred between adherents of the Shah and the Premier. The Crown Prince's coachman led one attack, killing one of the members of the Premier's party. The police dispersed the crowd. They have arrested the leading supporters of the Kadjar dynasty and are holding them as hostages to prevent further outbreaks.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

GENEVA, Oct. 31.—The permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations today asked France for official comment on petitions, protests and complaints which have been filed with the League concerning the bombardment at Damascus on the 18th to 20th inst.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The French losses in Syria since the beginning of the Druse tribesmen's insurrection are 585 killed or missing and of these a little less than half were French soldiers, the Premier's office announced today in refuting press statements saying 6000 had been killed.

The government points out that the 6000 represents the total killed or missing since 1918, when France took over the mandate for Syria.

PARTY LINES WIPED OUT

Nonpartisan Tax Bill Likely

House Committee's Program Expected to Follow That of Mellon

Both Sides Seem Agreed on Deep Surtax Cut and Publicity Repeal

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A nonpartisan tax-reduction program unanimously supported by the House Ways and Means Committee, appears as a possibility on the eve of an actual start by the committee on preparation of a tax bill.

Such a program would be expected to follow in the main the plan suggested by Secretary Mellon, with perhaps two main diversions. Sentiments of the membership as expressed during public hearings of the last two weeks appear to be against Mr. Mellon's proposal for repeal of the estate or inheritance tax and to be in favor of slightly greater cuts than he suggested on the normal income rates.

TWO PARTIES AGREE

Republicans and Democrats apparently are agreed on a cut in the maximum surtax rate from the present 40 per cent to 25 per cent and probably 20 per cent as proposed by the Treasury. Mr. Mellon's proposal for repeal of the publicity of income-tax returns also is favored by members of both political parties on the committee.

In view of the sentiment of the committee, Chairman Green said that he would attempt to have the measure framed by the whole committee on a nonpartisan basis and Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democratic member, likewise declared he not only hoped for united committee action on a bill, but was anxious for it. Two years ago Republicans and Democrats presented two different bills to the House after working separately in committee.

Chairman Green himself is leading the opposition to outright repeal of the inheritance tax as proposed by Mr. Mellon, who would have this field of taxation left entirely to the States.

While a slight majority of the committee appears to favor retention of the tax, the sentiment is clearly crystalized in favor of a considerable reduction in taxes, which were raised two years ago to a maximum of 40 per cent.

PROGRAM INDORSED

Mr. Green has indorsed a program presented by Frederick Delano as a member of the national committee on inheritance taxation, which would retain the Federal inheritance levy for at least six more years, increase the amount of credit for payments made on State inheritance taxes from 25 to 30 per cent of the Federal tax, and cut immediately the rates.

Apparent agreement for a substantial cut in the surtax rates, which formed one of the principal points of contention two years ago, is offset by the possible fight on the normal income-tax reduction. Representative Garner would increase the exemptions to relieve all single persons of incomes of $2500 and married persons with incomes of $5000 from any tax. Mr. Mellon proposes cuts in the normal rates instead.

The public hearings which have been held for two weeks will be continued Monday and Tuesday after which the committee will settle down to actual drafting of a bill.

CRYER HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mayor Cryer suffered a broken bone in his left ankle and severe bruises early yesterday afternoon when his automobile was struck by a Hollywood street car at Sunset Boulevard and Portia street. He will be unable to walk for two weeks.

The Mayor was in the rear seat of the car to which he was going when the accident occurred. His feet were between the folding seats under the driver's seat and the jar of the collision threw him to the floor, twisting his left leg until a small ankle bone snapped. Chauffeur William Barties was driving and said that he turned in front of the street car because he thought that it was stopping. Instead it crossed the intersection and struck the Mayor's car in the middle.

CARRIED FROM CAR

A Hollywood police ambulance and a police car rushed to the scene but Mayor Cryer chose to make the trip to the Receiving Hospital in his own car, despite its badly damaged side. He had to be carried from the car to the table in the hospital and after emergency treatment was put to bed in one of the wards.

Police Surgeon Saverien treated the leg injury and two large bruises on the face. He insisted that Mayor Cryer go to bed and rest before attempting the trip to his home.

WAR THREAT IN BALKANS FADES

Incident Passes to History With Today's Action

Bulgarians Will Hand Over Body of Slain Greek

League Investigation Only Matter Outstanding

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SOFIA, Oct. 31.—The frontier incident which led to an invasion of Bulgaria and nearly brought war to the Balkans will pass into history tomorrow when on the summit of Demir the body of a dead Greek soldier will be delivered into the hands of his comrades.

It remains for the League of Nations committee to fix the responsibility and name the penalties to be paid by the aggressor.

The incident which served as an excuse for the occupation of Bulgarian soil was one of perhaps 200 which have occurred along various Balkan frontiers since the armistice in 1918. Heretofore they have been settled by a mixed commission of officers. This one has served to show the world how easily the torch of war could be ignited in the Balkans. Here in Sofia it is hoped it will result in some arrangement imposed by the great powers or the League on the Balkan states to make a recurrence impossible.

Where the guilt lies for the original incident is not determined. The Bulgarians insist the Greek was killed on Bulgarian soil. The Greeks admit the body now lies within the Bulgar frontier, but assert it was carried there by the Bulgars. The testimony of both sides is much at variance and the matter probably never will be cleared up.

The Greeks also insist that the Bulgars invaded the Greek territory. This is difficult to prove. The frontier line at Demir Kapou, where it is said the Bulgars entrenched on their neighbors' soil, follows summits and peaks. Between Post No. 1 and Greek Post No. 69, it divides a small plateau perhaps thirty yards across. Here the Greeks declare the Bulgars invaded.

To a soldier it appears impossible for the Bulgars to take the Greek post. They would immediately be exposed to heavy fire from both slopes of the mountain, where the Greeks would be able to find excellent cover. They would immediately find their position untenable.

There is no claim of a Bulgarian invasion at any other point.

The opportunity for such incidents between the Bulgarians and Greeks probably is greater than between any other Balkin peoples. Often their outposts are separated by distances of fifty or sixty yards. On several Greek posts near Petrich are inscriptions calling death of the Bulgar dogs—"kill the Bulgars like curs"—and other inflammatory sentences written where they can best be seen from the Bulgar positions. As long as there are troops of the two bitter enemies posted within a few paces of one another there is bound to be trouble.

Two suggestions are offered to solve the problem. One is a Balkan arbitration pact, which, the Bulgarian Foreign Minister declared today, he is perfectly willing to sign. The other is demilitarization of the frontier for a distance of five kilometers on each side of the line. The Bulgars object to this because of the danger of Comitadj raids from both sides. It is a question whether such raids would not be a greater chance for war than the present conditions.

One important lesson from the whole affair is that the troops of these two peoples cannot live in harmony when they are so close together. They must be withdrawn at least from shooting distance of one another until the Balkans are made over. The League of Nations succeeded in saving the Balkans from war this time only because the Bulgar attitude was most correct from the moment of the Greek invasion. Should a similar case again occur, it is 10 to 1 that war will not be preventable.

SOUTH SEA GIRLS FLAPPERS NOW

Romance Seeker Fails to Find Maidens Clad in Grass Skirts

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Some one is always taking the romance out of life. Here comes Frederick Leverton, member of the crew of the expeditionary ship St. George, just returned from a year and a half scientific mission to the South Pacific, who asserts he hunted all over the South Sea Islands for shredded-gown lassies so often portrayed in novels, and found instead that the girls are wearing high-heeled shoes and frocks made in the United States, and look like flappers. When out heart hunting the South Sea maidens twang a mean ukulele, adds Leverton. He found the prettiest girls in Tahiti.

SENATORS HEAR VALLEY'S NEEDS

Committee Given Chance to Witness Productivity

Necessity for Immediate Action Impressed

vorable to the Swing-Johnson bill its conclusions will be determined by the personal observations of its members and not by reason of any neglect or oversight on the part of the bill's advocates.

Aside from the somewhat stick-to-it tactics of the canal propagandists, which allowed the Senators very little opportunity for independent investigation, the visit of the irrigation and reclamation committee to the Imperial Valley unquestionably will result in a better understanding by the Congress of the valley's problem and a more sympathetic attitude toward its needs.

The committee was taken through sections of the valley where water has changed a desert waste into a fruitful garden and created a productive region annually shipping to all sections of the nation, fruits and vegetables with a total value in excess of $70,000,000.

Passing through grapefruit orchards where the ripening fruit is now ready for the market, the party drove for miles through an area embracing thousands of acres of cotton, corn, lettuce and a variety of vegetables destined for shipment during the winter.

MAGNITUDE SHOWN

The magnitude of the valley's agricultural projects, the potential development to follow an adequate supply of water, and the elimination of peril from flood, appeared to convert all members of the committee to the necessity for immediate action by Congress relative to control of the Colorado.

J. Sanchez Mejorada, State engineer for the northern district of Lower California, at the invitation of the Senate committee, accompanied the party in its tour of inspection below the International border.

In a discussion of the water situation in Lower California, Mejorada informed the Senators that the discovery of water in large quantities in the gravel beds underlying a large area of Mexican lands indicates the possibility of an inexhaustible supply, which may be used for irrigation at a comparatively low cost.

He said that the Mexican government will undertake at once a careful survey of subsurface water conditions. Should this survey demonstrate the existence of a considerable and maintained water supply, as indicated by test wells, the entire question of water distribution above and below the border may be materially affected.

Following a dinner given in honor of the Senators here tonight, the committee held its first Arizona hearing and completed arrangements for visiting the Laguna dam and other portions of the Yuma reclamation project tomorrow. The party will leave for Phoenix tomorrow night and will spend Monday in receiving testimony relating to Arizona's attitude toward Colorado development problems.

ARIZONA SUGGESTS NEW CONFERENCE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Oct. 31.—H. S. McCluskey, secretary to Gov. Hunt, just back from the Diamond Creek hearing in Washington, suggests a new seven-State conference on the Colorado River, with especial reference to the power situation. He declares that the refusal of the national power committee to take action leaves the matter up to the States. McCluskey will take up his suggestion with the Senatorial committee at Yuma and here.

"The attempt of the Federal government to gain a foothold in dictating policies of development of the streams in the various States," McCluskey said, "is in direct conflict to the traditional and historical and legal codes of the States of the West whose water laws are based on the appropriation of waters for beneficial use."

McCluskey found, he declared, a deplorable lack of information concerning the proposed river development, the topography of the river and other vital points among the representatives of the upper basin States at the Washington conference.

merely to secure a reasonable profit to the producer. But some of them have advanced prices far beyond this point, and again demonstrate that inherent quality of all combinations in restraint of trade—that no unregulated monopoly is ever content with the reasonable, but always seeks to justify the unreasonable on some grounds or other.

"The uniform expression of the managers of the rubber control in the East Indies up to eight months ago was that the industry sought only from 30 to 35 cents per pound for their product, and our investigation showed they could earn about 25 per cent on the capital invested when rubber brings that price. It is today more than $1 per pound and production is still being restricted. It is said that previous losses of the growers must be recouped. The same might be said by our wheat, cotton, oil and copper producers.

"Likewise, the assertion of the coffee industry over years since the war was that stabilization was sought only at roughly 12 cents per pound. It has recently been lifted as high as 32 cents and is today 22 cents with a great surplus of supplies in its possession.

"That this difference between reasonable and high prices is not trivial in its monetary implication to our consumers, is perhaps indicated by the fact that this margin alone over the whole list is today costing us upward of $400,000,000 per annum. And it is not our people who alone are concerned but every other consuming nation."

BERLIN ANSWERS SECURITY PACT CRITICS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Replying to Nationalist criticism of the security pact, the German government today issued a statement saying the German delegates at Locarno never left in doubt Germany's inability to carry out the agreements unless the logical consequences affecting the occupied territories also were settled.

The statement adds that the government places full confidence in the assurance made by the Belgians, French and British in this regard, and that it will continue to negotiate in that sense.

LONDON, Oct. 31. — The Berlin correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph, says it is understood that the question of a plebiscite in Germany on the security pact now is under consideration. Such a vote, the correspondent asserts, would clearly show a majority in favor of the Locarno accord.

EX-ANGELENO SUES HUSBAND

Mrs. Ethel Long Reese Twombley Asks Separate Maintenance from Man With Whom She Eloped

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Willard Irving Twombley, noted inventor and an automobile and airplane manufacturer whose inventions in the radio field have netted him a fortune in the last few years, was named defendant in a suit for separate maintenance filed in the Superior Court today by Mrs. Ethel Long Reese Twombley.

Back in February, 1916, Mrs. Twombley, then Miss Long, married Francis W. Reese, wealthy resident of Los Angeles. An hour after the ceremony she fled across the continent with Twombley to New York, it is said. She lived with Twombley until she was divorced from Reese, then married the inventor in Washington, D. C., in July, 1916.

The marriage, begun under these romantic circumstances, was an ideal one until a year ago, according to the bill filed by Attorney Albert Sabath. Then Twombley began to be cruel to his wife, she declared. While they were staying at a hotel in Evanston, he beat her, asked the management to put her out and accused her of insanity, she charged.

The couple spent last August in Chicago with their 7-year-old daughter, Gloria. Every day her husband struck her, Mrs. Twombley said, and she was forced to leave him September 9, last.

Since then Twombley has spent most of his time traveling back and forth from Chicago to New York, using assumed names, according to the bill. He has threatened to leave the country if his wife starts suit, Attorney Sabath said.

Twombley has supported his wife and daughter in luxurious fashion, spending at least $35,000 a year upon them, according to the bill. Mrs. Twombley wants enough money to continue to live in the manner to which she has become accustomed.

At present Twombley is an executive of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation. He receives a minimum guarantee of $24,000 a year in royalties upon inventions, according to the bill. He collects 5 cents upon each radio tube manufactured by the company and his income is more than $75,000 a year from his radio business alone, according to Attorney Sabath.

Twombley was a pioneer in automobile and airplane manufacturing. He was formerly president of the Aeronautical Society of America. He was prominent in New York society fifteen years ago when he and his first wife, from whom he was subsequently divorced, entertained royally.

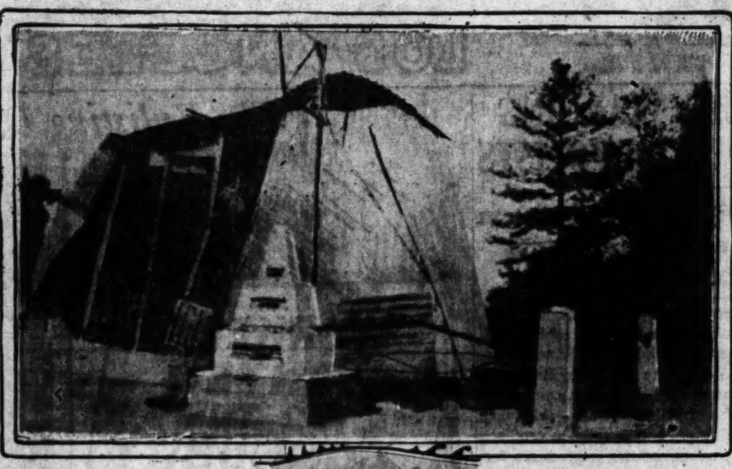
MINER TO WIG-WAG DEATH'S VISITATION

Completes Work of Years Preparing for Grisly Caller



Top picture shows the tombstone which William Bowman has made to mark the grave he has dug for himself, with the semaphore beside it to enable him to inform his neighbors when death comes. The grave with the coffin he has built is inside the shack. Below is a picture of Bowman.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 31.—"I will have no misgivings if I die now. I have prepared for death, and when I die I don't want anyone to bother with me."

With these words, William M. Bowman, 92-year-old pioneer miner of Shingle Springs, put the finishing touches on grave, coffin and tombstone he has built on top of a hill overlooking the country which has been the scene of his labors for nearly three-quarters of a century. For eighteen years, at odd moments, he has been at work on the coffin and the grave, which are beside his bed in a little shack he has erected, with the tombstone just outside. A semaphore within easy reach has been put up, and when death approaches, he expects a white flag at its top to inform the world that his end has come.

Bowman came to California from Ohio in 1851. He expects to continue working until he dies.

Raymond Trava, 248 West Eleventh street, San Pedro, asserted driver of the car, was taken in custody after the accident and is being held for questioning.

Details of the accident were unavailable at a late hour last night and an investigation was launched by Detective Lieutenant Craig to ascertain whether or not charges will be filed against Trava.

IMPISH GOD OF CARNIVAL NOISE RULES

Bedlam of Auto Sounds Chase Entiquated Witch Back Into Dark Corner

Although no witches riding on broomsticks were reported seen hovering over Los Angeles last night, the spell of their sorcery was nevertheless evident as the city celebrated Halloween with a spirit that outdid the enthusiastic demonstrations of past years.

The impish god of noise, king for a day and night, reigned supreme, achieving a climax in the downtown section that any jazz orchestra might hear with envy. Many a good automobile horn worked overtime, battery stations are expected to do a rushing business today, and many a motorist satisfied a long controlled and secret desire to open the cut-out of his automobile and race what he firmly believed was his high-powered motor for the edification of the general public.

Of course, there were other ways of making noise. One was at liberty to toot his own horn as loud as he wanted to. Or, lacking a horn, he was privileged to yell in any key, tone or half-tone he pleased and there was no limit placed on volume. Those who had anything on their chest, so to speak, and did not relieve themselves last night, missed the opportunity of a year, but these persons are believed to be a small minority.

Halloween also bids fair to gather something of a reputation as a medium through which the small boy will become more familiar and friendly with that usually useful domestic article—soap. It was clearly demonstrated last night, however, that soap in the hands of a boy was not for the original intention of cleanliness, but, quite to the contrary, for making well-kept surfaces as dirty as possible, which is no doubt the juvenile idea of things as they should be.

Although dedicated to the youngsters, Halloween this year was apparently adopted by both young and old for the purposes of having a noisy good time. Long after the small boys and girls were tucked in bed, older people were still amusing themselves in various ways. Cafes and downtown restaurants did a big business.

Keeping the youngsters entertained and at the same time keeping them out of mischief, the playground department staged a costume Halloween revel on all its playgrounds for neighborhood children, the larger affairs taking place at Echo Park recreation center, Slauson, Hazard and Exposition Park.

A colorful scene took place in the Western Garage on Sierra Vista avenue, where a community jubilee was conducted by merchants of the vicinity of Santa Monica Boulevard and Western avenue. An attractive program was featured by the personal appearance of several film stars and was followed by a carnival dance.

Unusual novelties and clever costumes characterized a dance given in the assembly room of the Philanthropy and Civice Clubs, 1419 South Wilton Place, by the members of the junior council of the Los Angeles section of the National Council of Jewish Women.

YOUNG SUICIDE AID CHARGED

Son of Slain Woman Asserts Attorney Sent Wire to Dentist During Latter's Trial For Murder

Charges that Attorney John S. Cooper caused to be sent to the cell of the late Dr. Thomas W. Young the piece of copper wire with which he committed suicide in the County Jail during his trial for the asserted murder of his wife, were contained in a suit filed yesterday by Charles Patrck Grogan, son of the slain woman.

Young Grogan in his suit seeks to have declared held in trust for him the one-fourth residuary interest in his mother's estate, which, under the terms of her will, she left to Dr. Young. Grogan further charged that when he had the wire sent to Dr. Young Cooper had knowledge of the suicidal tendencies of Young and his family.

Grogan's suit was directed at Lewis D. Collings, John S. Cooper and George H. Shreve, attorneys for Dr. Young during his trial on a charge of murder, and Harry A. Hunt and Earl R. Hunt, brothers of Mrs. Young, and James Foster Hunt, her nephew.

Under the terms of Mrs. Young's will, which was admitted to probate last July, the bric-a-brac and jewelry were left to her son, while the remainder of the estate was divided equally between Dr. Young, Harry, Earl and James Foster Hunt.

GUARDIAN SACKED

In his complaint, Grogan asserted Dr. Young, subsequent to the slaying of Mrs. Young, had assigned his interest in the estate to Cooper, Collings and Shreve, in consideration that they act as his attorneys at the murder trial.

Grogan, who stated his mother left an estate valued at $47,000 exclusive of the jewelry and bric-a-brac, declared the attorneys through Collings, who is said to have been made the assignee of Young, had declared an interest in the estate by virtue of the assignment.

The plaintiff stated much of the property was of a personal nature and of a sentimental value to him; further, that it was abhorrent to him that the assignees of the asserted murderer of his mother should receive any part of the estate.

Grogan also asserted Harry, Earl and James Foster Hunt claimed an interest in the one-fourth of the estate bequeathed to Dr. Young but he expressed the belief their asserted claim was without merit. The suit was brought through Frank W. Hunt, grandfather and guardian of young Grogan. Attorneys Theodore Martin and Lucius K. Chase prepared the complaint.

Attorney Cooper flatly denied that charges made in the suit, saying that he knew nothing of the sending of the wire or any suicide plans that Young may have had.

DEAD MAN SUED BY WOMAN PATIENT

The name of Dr. Thomas W. Young, who hanged himself in jail while on trial for the murder of his wife, Grace Grogan Young, was called again in court as defendant yesterday.

Mrs. Florence Moore was before Judge Thompson to prosecute her suit against Dr. Young for $38,357 as damages resulting from asserted negligence by the dentist in the extraction of her wisdom teeth.

An effort was made to have the court rule that the case died with the defendant, but counsel for Mrs. Moore declared they could maintain the action against his estate. Judge Thompson continued the case six weeks to enable counsel to submit authorities on this point.

Shippers Fight Increase at Hearing in Chicago

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A double-barreled move to dismiss the western railroads' petition for a 5 per cent rate increase was in the hands of Chairman Aitchison of the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

Fred S. Jackson, former Attorney-General of Kansas, representing the several western farmers' organizations and the American Farm Bureau Federation, filed a motion to dismiss the railroads' petition on the ground the Hoch-Smith joint Congressional resolution asks legislation calling for lower rates if possible and therefore not contemplating any increase.

State railway and similar commissions having to do with transportation and agriculture at the close of a last-night hearing moved to dismiss the roads' petition, which they contended was an effort to defeat the Hoch-Smith resolution.

The hearing was resumed today with direct testimony from shippers in opposition to the railroads and it was hoped to complete today that phase of the investigation here. Henry Curtis of Cadillac, Mich., president of the Michigan Farm Bureau Federation, asserted that high freight rates had discouraged potato growers in the North Peninsula of Michigan.

The other petition to dismiss was filed by J. E. Benton, Washington, D. C., general solicitor of the National Association of Railway and Public Utility Commissioners, on behalf of the State commissions of Arkansas, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming, Minnesota, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Oklahoma, Iowa, Kansas, Wisconsin, Washington and Colorado.

THOUSANDS FACE BALDNESS AND DON'T KNOW IT

Working Almost Secretly, Destructive Parasites of "Alopecia Pityrodes" Spread Disease Through the Scalp, Which Brings Baldness in From Two to Seven Years

Microscopic Examination Necessary to Determine Exact Cause of Hair and Scalp Trouble, Says Specialist

Records carefully kept over a period of years show that a great percentage of people are afflicted with "Alopecia Pityrodes," a serious scalp trouble which is a forerunner of baldness. Many people mistake this affliction for common dandruff because the microbacilli quietly carry on their destructive work from two to seven years before any decided loss of hair is noticed and the first sign of baldness appears, says Prof. John H. Austin, over 40 years a hair and scalp specialist.

How Alopecia Pityrodes Destroys Healthy Hair

This trouble starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, commonly called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white dry or greasy scales—which leads to the falling of the hair.

This stage lasts from two to seven years, as a rule. At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated and the microbacilli multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald.

Science Has Discovered How to Stop Hair Destruction

Even when there has been a decided loss of hair there are good prospects of staying the course of the ailment, and increasing the diameter and amount of the hair, provided the person troubled will persist in treatment. Prof. Austin has found that nature will fight long and well, and if given help at the right time will replace the lost hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair.

A Powerful Microscope Reveals the Cause

The only way to tell the exact cause of hair and scalp troubles is by a microscopic examination of the hair and scalp. Prof. Austin, who has been at the May Co. for the past ten years, has found that many people treat hair troubles without knowing what they are trying to cure, and, naturally, results are disappointing.

Prof. Austin does not trust to guesswork. A powerful microscope magnifies the microbacilli thousands of times, and once the exact cause is determined it is then a simple matter to correct the trouble. Over 40 years of practical experience and scientific study qualify him to advise what to do in each particula case.

Prof. Austin says, and you will find it repeated in every important scientific treatise on the hair and scalp, that the use of hair tonics, dandruff cures, elixirs, mange cures and pomades is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

The Beginning

The Result

This week Prof. Austin will make FREE microscopic examination of the hair and scalp. Hours 10 to 12 and 2 to 4—both men and women invited. The May Co., Eighth and Broadway, Mezzanine Floor, Broadway entrance.

Single-hander Completes Voyage of 35,000 Miles

Around the World in Four Years

LONE SAILOR MAKES PORT

Harry Pidgeon made port yesterday. Four years ago he sailed from Los Angeles Harbor in a home-made thirty-four-foot yawl, totally ignorant of the sea, but confident that his tiny Islander, a book on navigation and a worn-out sextant would carry him safely around the world—alone. Yesterday he came home, tanned and healthy, with 35,000 miles of the sea behind him and the little yawl under the same suit of sails with which she dropped this port astern on November 18, 1921.

"I never parted even a rope yarn," were Harry's first words. "She'll go any place in the world and I never had such a fine time in my life—all the way around."

He is itching to get to sea again, he said a half-hour after he had dropped anchor in the port that has been his objection for the past 1442 days, but first he wants to see his relatives and write a book about the voyage.

He asked that his brother, W. G. Pidgeon, of 4965 Monte Vista street, be notified of his safe return and after that he was most interested in the health of that sterling sailor, Commodore Douglas Radford of the Los Angeles Yacht Club, whom Harry says inspired him to make his lone belting of the globe.

SHIP ENDANGERS YAWL

There were no big moments, according to Harry, who declared that his most exciting hour was last April, in the South Atlantic, when he was run down by the British tanker San Gufrino, whose commander—seeing the Islander's lone range light—had gone to the spot in the belief that the tiny cockleshell was in distress.

"I was asleep in the cabin and had her battened down, sailing under reefed mizzen and jib with a half-gale a-beam," Harry explained. "Something bumping the side awakened me and I jumped out on deck to find that mountain of steel looming up in the darkness—it looked bigger than Gibraltar.

"Someone yelled, 'Stand by for a line!'

"I replied that I didn't want a line and for them to get clear and let me get under way. Just then I was lifted by a sea so high that the Islander was above the deck of the tanker and one of the crew almost succeeding in shaking hands with me.

"As she went down into the trough of the sea her bowsprit and port mizzen rigging were wrecked. The skipper of the tanker offered me assistance, but I told him to let me alone before he sank me.

"That's the trouble with these steamboat fellows. If he had brought his ship up to windward her hull would have protected the Islander and there would have been no damage."

MAKES PANAMA CANAL

Harry rode out the gale, repaired the broken rigging and bowsprit and made the Panama Canal safely last June. He sailed from Balboa for Los Angeles on August 7, last, and was forced to sail clear out to 110 west longitude and down to within two degrees of the equator before he picked up the southeast trades.

Heading northward, then, he passed by that lonely stoll in mid-Pacific, Clipperton Island, where he sighted the only vessel, a tramp freighter, on his homeward leg. Later, he ran into the doldrum area and rolled about in midocean for weeks before he picked up the northeast trades.

The Islander went ashore last spring, in Southwest Bay, eighty miles north of Cape Town, South Africa, while en route to St. Helena. Three days later, however, Harry was on his way to Panama.

"You can't hurt this packet," he said, and added considerable praise for the Islander's design, which is the Sea-goer, V-bottomed model originated by Thomas Fleming Day. Mr. Day years ago crossed the Atlantic in a twenty-five-foot boat of the same type.

The route taken by the Islander is noteworthy in that she traversed the seas notorious for bad weather. From Los Angeles Harry went direct to the Marquesas, then beat about the South Seas and from there to Torres Straits. Thence he ran before the trades across the Indian Ocean to Mauritius and then hauled southwest for Cape Town, South Africa. From the Cape he sailed to St. Helena and then across the South Atlantic to Panama.

Now that he has been more or less over the world, Harry says that two places strike him as the best places on the globe—Cape Town and Los Angeles.

"It's a stand-off between the two towns," he said. "Their climate is identical. No other places I have seen can touch either town for beauty of scenery, climate and hospitality of inhabitants."

HOISTS AFRICAN ENSIGN

At the fore-truck of the Islander when she rounded Breakwater Light yesterday floated the burgee of the Royal Cape Yacht Club—presented to Harry by the South African yachtsmen. It is probably the "farthest from home" yacht burgee in modern sailing history.

Down in Panama last summer, Harry saw Alain Gerbault, the young Frenchman who sailed alone across the Atlantic in the twenty-six-foot sloop Firecrest, and was then en route around the world.

"Gerbault is taking an awful big chance in starting out in that racing machine around the world. She ought to have more beam to ride out all the gales he will encounter.

"In all the typhoons and hurricanes I struck in four years I never hove her to but twice and then I carried a jib and reefed mizzen."

Harry built the Islander himself at Los Angeles Harbor and also cut and sewed the single suit of sails that are still good after four years of use.

The Islander, hoisting only 634 feet of sail, is thirty-four feet in length and has a beam of ten feet nine inches.

Her skipper, in his fifties, looks but little like the care-worn city man who left here four years ago. Harry has gained thirty pounds and has added almost that many years to his life. He looks years younger than when he left and apparently has found the fountain of youth on the seas.

Monopoly on Radium Aim in Belgian Congo

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BRUSSELS, Oct. 31.—Up to the present the Belgian Congo has produced one-half of the world's supply of radium and an attempt is to be made to obtain a world monopoly by lowering the price and driving competitors from the market.

New discoveries in the Congo of rich radium ore have caused a flurry in Belgium. A research laboratory has been established at Oolen, near Antwerp.

REVOKES PERMIT OF EMPLOYMENT AGENCY

The State certificate of the Rapid Placement Agency, 218 South Broadway, was revoked yesterday by Chief Deputy Labor Commissioner Barker subject to the approval of Commissioner Mathewson. The revocation followed a public hearing, where the agency was charged with collecting a fee from a laborer without providing the promised position, contrary to the Private Employment Agency Act. John G. Edwards was named as proprietor.

SOVIET WAR COMMISSAR SUCCUMBS

Gen. Frunse, Successor to Trotsky, Noted for Bitter Hatred of ex-Czar's Officers

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MOSCOW, Oct. 31.—Gen. Michael W. Frunse, soviet Commissar for War, died today, following an operation yesterday.

Gen. Frunse, who succeeded Leon Trotzky as the soviet's military chief last January, was one of the youngest executives in the Moscow regime, being only 40 years of age. He was a Moldavian of Russian and Rumanian descent.

He had been an active revolutionist since 1904, when he was a student in St. Petersburg, now Leningrad. In that year he entered the Communist Party. In 1907 he was condemned to Siberia for revolutionary propaganda and spent eight years in penal servitude. He escaped in 1915, made his way to the front and for two years worked for the disintegration of the Russian army.

Early in 1924, he was made vice-chairman of the revolutionary war council, serving as Trotsky's assistant. He was really the active head of the War Department during Trotsky's frequent illness and political troubles.

Gen. Frunse had a reputation for ruthlessness, especially against former officers of the Czar's army. He was famous in the Red army for the number of former Czarists he ordered shot.

Two weeks ago Gen. Frunse underwent an operation for an intestinal ulcer and yesterday a second operation was necessary. Death was unexpected, as physicians yesterday said his recovery could be expected within a fortnight.

It is considered highly improbable that Leon Trotzky can regain the war portfolio. The man most likely to succeed Gen. Frunse is believed to be Joseph Unschlicht, former head of the state political police, and since early this year, Gen. Frunse's assistant in the War Council.

RAILWAY LINE TO TAP RICH MEXICAN REGION

Road Will Open Up Huge Coastal Territory Teeming With Natural Resources

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—Construction on the projected lines of the Southern Pacific Railway, which will connect the West Coast of Mexico with the central part of the republic and also with the west coast of the United States, is progressing in such a manner that the company expects to be able to open through traffic to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle by the end of next year.

Under a contract with the Mexican National Railways trains are now being run from Guadalajara as far north as La Quemada. From the other end, trains run to Tepic, with Pullman service, and within a few weeks it is expected that trains will be run to Ixtlan.

The present gap is only forty-eight miles, but the construction problem is one which is second to none in the history of railway construction. In the course of these forty-odd miles, it will be necessary to dig twenty-eight tunnels of varying length and under conditions which are new to the railway profession. This is testified by the fact that a tunnel recently constructed under all approved modern conditions collapsed and delayed construction work for weeks. Hundreds of persons and enterprises in the United States and in Mexico are looking forward to the opening of this road and believe that it will develop a part of the country which has as yet remained unconnected with the capital except through the United States.

VITAL EXTENSION

The American Chamber of Commerce here in a report on general conditions along the West Coast of Mexico declares this rail extension is vital to the economic interests of the entire West Coast of Mexico, because it will provide a short and ready outlet to the central markets of Mexico itself, where 70 per cent of the population of the country is concentrated, in addition to the present connection with the Southern Pacific system main line at Tucson, Ariz., for products of export to the United States.

Prior to 1905, the coast south of Guaymas, all the way to Guadalajara, 804 miles distant, was served by an old-fashioned stage line, tied up during three or four months of the summer rainly season, and under the best conditions, taking from twelve to fifteen days to make the trip. It took the vision of the late E. H. Harriman to make possible, by the construction of the West Coast route, the development and modern progress of the potentially rich region of Mexico.

The West Coast of Mexico is very rich in natural resources, the report continues, numerous mineralized districts, great bodies of alluvial valley lands, fishing and hydroelectric power and irrigation. Timber, in accessible commercial stands for export, is lacking adjacent to the coast region proper, although domestic production is about sufficient for housing, building and fuel needs, with the exception of lumber for heavy construction.

MINING HISTORY

The history of the mining industry goes back for 300 years, with records of production of single properties of $30,000,000 in gold and silver; others of $3,000,000 a year; some of the greatest "bonanza" mines of Spanish colonial times having been located in Sonora. Twenty years ago the annual production of copper totaled 110,057,000 pounds in Sonora alone.

Opportunity exists in mining throughout the entire West Coast territory. While the country, generally speaking, has been well surface-prospected, there exists many low-grade ore formations only awaiting capital and modern plants and methods. There are also numerous veins and ore formations requiring furnace treatment. Many of the old bonanza mines of Spanish colonial times have never been rediscovered. Fortunes have been taken out of old dumps left after treatment of rich ores by the old crude processes of reduction. The region of Southwestern Sonora (Yaqui River) has been characterized as one of the richest mineralized regions of the world by an internationally famous mining engineer.

The West Coast territory is just emerging from the pastoral and mining era into that of intensive staple crop agriculture and intensive farming, and industrial progress is small as yet.

MANUFACTURING FIELD

The manufacturing industries include shoe factories, flour mills, cigar and cigarette factories, match factories, tanneries, sugar mills, breweries, clothing shops, cotton mills and two fairly large machine shops, and two large wood-working plants, as well as many small shops turning out shoes, clothing, furniture, saddlery, leather goods, candy, etc., including the distilling plants of the five great sugar mills.

With the exception of refined sugar (and other than mineral, agricultural and forest products) no manufacturing of articles for export to foreign countries has been developed; all factory production, with the exception of sugar and alcohol, being for local consumption. Sugar, alcohol, leather and tobacco are sent to the interior of Mexico.

At the present time the region (including Lower California) takes annually a total of, roughly, $10,000,000 worth of American-manufactured articles, the most important items of which are textiles, foodstuffs, drugs and medicines, agricultural implements and machinery and a long list of general miscellaneous merchandise.

Due to unique climatic conditions not equaled anywhere in the United States, the growers of the West Coast are able to start shipping fresh tomatoes, fruits and vegetables to the market centers of the United States as early as December, obtaining top market prices. "Honey-dew" melons move as early as the latter part of November. The industry has been developed to an extent where the Mexican winter tomato is now a staple product in the United States, as far east as New York City.

From the Fuerte River Valley, 460 miles south of the Arizona border, the frostless belt extends to the south along the coast, and nine river valleys offer suitable lands for this class of production. Irrigation for the growing of winter vegetables is not necessary in the river valleys of the State of Nayarit, where a peculiar delta formation causes the soil of the valleys to retain sufficient surface moisture during the winter, or dry season.

All citrus fruits such as oranges, grapefruits and pineapples, do very well throughout the West Coast. The production of vegetables for canning, such as peas, corn, string beans, spinach, etc., would materially increase if packing facilities were provided. Allied with other agricultural production is that of tobacco, grown in very large quantities in Nayarit. Production costs and yield of this tobacco in Nayarit, together with the high nicotine content, should make the production of nicotine-sulphate more favorable than anywhere else in the world.

There are three small factories located on the West Coast turning out the rough unbleached cotton muslin, known locally as "manta," sheetings, and the plain and striped denims which constitute the chief garment materials of the bulk of the population.

POWER PROJECTS

Undoubtedly, the greatest opportunities exist in the development of irrigation and power projects. Nearly all of the fifteen rivers have natural power and storage dam sites on their upper reaches. In summing up the possibilities of such development, it may be said that there are roughly, 5,600,000 acres of first-class river valley lands open for irrigation development and intensive agriculture by the provision of water storage. Three surveys are being carried out at present; two for combined irrigation water and power development on the Fuerte and Sinaloa rivers, and one large hydroelectric power project for the mining region east of Mazatlan.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company of Mexico is at present expending in the neighborhood of $11,000,000 in the construction of the extension of the main line from Tepic to Guadalajara, and additional heavy sums are being spent on the reconstruction and modernization of the line from Nogales to Tepic; all new work and rebuilding being of first-class concrete and steel, the only wood retained being that for ties and poles.

It is significant that in spite of the troubled and uncertain times of the last ten or twelve years, agricultural progress on the West Coast has continued steadily at the average rate of 25 per cent per year in both acreage and volume of production. The five large sugar plants have all increased their cane plantings and manufacturing facilities and all enjoy very favorable financial positions. In yield of cane per acre, extraction and cost of production, these plants can compete in any open market with Cuba.

FROSTLESS REGION

It is a significant fact that the West Coast of Mexico, in that portion south of Mazatlan, is the nearest region to the United States which can be definitely stated to be absolutely frostless, and where the banana of export can be successfully produced on a large commercial scale. The banana is grown throughout the Coast, and the proven native varieties form an important item of staple diet of the people. In 1910 plants were brought in from Costa Rica to the Coast just south of San Blas, Nay. Today, this small original acreage is serving as the nucleus of a great new banana industry, with five new plantations started, and the first plantings of this export fruit, so well known to the United States, now coming into first production in the Santiago and San Pedro valleys.

DEADLOCK SEEN IN PARLIAMENT

Six Seats Still Doubtful in Canadian Election

Conservatives Fall Short of Obtaining Majority

Belief Held Session Will be of Short Duration

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—With the results in only six constituencies in doubt, Canada's general elections have brought about the nearest approach to a Parliamentary deadlock in the history of the Dominion.

The Conservatives under Arthur Meighen have made large gains, but with only 116 seats thus far assured they clearly cannot command a majority in the next House of Commons.

In these circumstances it seems certain that Premier Mackenzie King will not resign before meeting of Parliament. The Premier, however, has yet to consider the situation with his colleagues, and he will also confer with the Governor-General before making any public pronouncement.

In circles close to the Ministry, it is understood that Mr. King favors challenging a vote of nonconfidence. If he is supported in Parliament he will continue in office for the time being, at least, but if the House votes against him his resignation will necessarily follow.

Mr. Meighen, as leader of the opposition, would then, in accordance with the custom, be called upon to form an administration. But it is not likely that he would continue in office long in such a case without another appeal to the country.

The general feeling in political circles is that Canada's fifteenth Parliament will be short-lived. The situation will be one of constant uncertainties, with the possibility of a surprise vote at any moment turning out whatever government happens to be in power.

Doubtful seats are: Queens, Prince Edward Island, where the vote is tied; Kenora-Rainy River, in Ontario, where Peter Heenan, Liberal, is leading Col. Machin, Conservative, by 150, with thirty districts yet to report; Bow River and Peace River, Alberta, and Kinderseley and Maple Creek in Saskatchewan.

Standing of the parties in the House of Commons on the base of the returns outside the constituencies today was:

Heavy Sentence for Preacher in Love Pact Case

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Rev. Charles M. Stirdivant, 51 years of age, Free Methodist revivalist, charged with having entered into a love pact with a 24-year-old church worker, Miss Ethel G. McKee, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction and fined $400 and costs by Judge Curran in the Court of Domestic Relations on a charge of nonsupport of his wife, Mrs. Emma Stirdivant.

BURIAL DATE SET FOR LAWYER'S BABY

Funeral services for Newton Jerome Kendall, Jr., 20-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Kendall 1410 Curzon street, Hollywood, will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p.m. from the parlors of the Walter C. Blue Company, 717 West Washington street. The father is a well known attorney of this city. The child, who was born in this city on March 22, 1924, died unexpectedly at the family residence late Friday night following an illness of but a few hours. His death was attributed by the attending physician to an intestinal disorder.

VENICE WINS CANAL SUIT

Decision Denying Injunction Gives Beach City Right to Fill in Historic Ditches

The city of Venice has a right to fill its historic canals and convert them into boulevards, Judge Holizer of Superior Court ruled in a decision handed down yesterday, denying the injunction sought by W. M. Bowen and other owners of canal front property, who sought to block the change.

An appeal will be filed, it was announced by the plaintiffs, who obtained from Judge Holizer a twenty-day extension of a temporary restraining order granted the day the suit was filed.

BITTER CONTEST

The proposal to fill the canals was contested bitterly when it was first made in the Venice Council, and later, a few weeks ago, when it was carried into the courts in the injunction proceedings. Judge Holizer took the case under advisement after hearing testimony and arguments.

After the hearing Venice voted in favor of annexation to Los Angeles, and thereupon City Attorney Stephens asked and obtained permission to file a brief in the case opposing the injunction. This delayed decision further.

Judge Holizer's decision was considered a victory for Attorney George Acret, former City Attorney of Venice, who handled the municipality's case in court. The plaintiffs had submitted that they purchased their property under an agreement with the Abbott-Kinney Company, subdividers, that the canals would be constructed and maintained forever.

CALLED DETRIMENT

Attorney Acret argued successfully that public policy overrode considerations of this character and that no private concern could make an agreement that would deprive a municipality of its authority over highways.

"The canals have become a detriment to the community," Attorney Acret said yesterday. "The advisability of converting them into boulevards was manifested by the fact that immediately after announcement of the Council's action in approving the proposal, canal frontage jumped in value."

The canals have been a distinctive feature of Venice, ever since the establishment of the city.

RULING DOOMS CITY'S ROMANTIC FEATURE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Oct. 31.—Refusal today of Superior Judge Holzer in Los Angeles to grant an injunction brought by certain Venice property owners against the filling of the canals as ordered by the local Board of Trustees recently, will cause the elimination of one of the most romantic features of the city's assets.

Throughout the country, Venice has been known as the Canal City, a municipality which was constructed in emulation of Venice, Italy, to afford residents and visitors an Old World atmosphere as they coursed down shaded canals in high gondolas and passed under queer causeways.

The canals were excavated in 1905 and donated to the city in 1912 by Abbot Kinney with the provision that they were always to be canals. In 1925 Kinney, however, gave them without reservation to the city. The canals are three miles in length, traversing the residential district of the city. The banks are lined with flowers and arched with bridges and each canal at night has been illuminated with a different color scheme.

Ocean water is supplied through a canal connecting with the Pacific at Del Rey, and a fresh supply is assured daily through the incoming tide by the way of locks.

At the end of the canal system is a lagoon reaching to the central part of the business district. The longest canal is known as Cabrillo Canal, while the others, Venus, Aldebarah, Lion, Grand and Coral open into the lagoon.

Stowaway Cupid Scores Coup

Leads Pair to Wedlock

ENDURANCE VICTOR WEDS

Bobbiee Darrell Marries Nurse Who Attended Him on Record-Smashing Drive

A week ago Bobbiee Darrell drove about the streets of Los Angeles for 125 hours and 20 minutes and traveled 2260 miles without leaving the wheel. This feat marked a world's champion endurance drive.

During the last forty-eight hours of the endurance contest little Dan Cupid hopped in beside Darrell somewhere along the route and quietly awaited his turn to make a record of his own.

ASKS FOR NURSE

Darrell, not knowing that the little invisible weaver of romances was planning something for him, decided to have a nurse accompany him on the remaining mileage to be ground out.

Fear that he might collapse at the wheel was the reason Darrell asked for a nurse. Miss Mabel Anderson was selected.

To show how well Dan Cupid played his cards Darrell was married yesterday to Miss Anderson in front of The Times Building in a public ceremony. A squad of twelve traffic officers held back the enthusiastic crowd.

Show girls from Dalton's Theater, a motion-picture actor and actress or two, shop girls, men from near-by offices and casual passersby witnessed the ceremony.

There was one slight tie-up in the ceremony, but it delayed matters for only an instant. With everything else in readiness, it was discovered suddenly that there was no rice to be showered upon the willing bridal party. However, a chop suey palace near by was invaded.

WEDDING DRIVE

Judge Summerfield performed the ceremony and Joyce Compton and Hugh Allan, both of First National Studios, looked on from the back seat of the bridal car.

There wasn't any wedding march at the wedding but this feature was somewhat replaced by a wedding drive, starting at Pico and Broadway with Darrell at the wheel of the Gardner car in which he established his new world's endurance driving record. Four mounted policemen headed the march, followed by the "wedding car" and the three other cars of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell left last night to drive to San Francisco on their honeymoon an dexpect to return to Los Angeles November 11 when the wedding dinner, planned for Saturday night, will be served at the Plantation.

Beautiful boquets of flowers were sent the bridal couple by the Nelson & Price Company and the United States Sales Company.

RULING ON FEDERAL CARS HIT

Exemption of Government Autos from State Laws Criticised by Marsh

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 31.—As a result of a ruling made by Atty.-Gen. Webb that motor vehicles owned and operated by the Federal government in California are not amenable to the provisions of the State Motor Vehicle Act will H. Marsh chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, declared today that the department will be seriously hampered in the enforcement of safety provisions of the State law.

Webb advised Marsh that drivers of government vehicles are not required to obtain either a registration or chaffeur's license and cannot be compelled to obey headlight regulations.

Marsh says that Webb's decision, based on court rulings, will exempt drivers of more than 1000 government motor vehicles in California. He explained it will have the effect of relieving all prohibition agents, postal employees, army officers and men and other government employees, using government-owned vehicles, from obeying the State motor law.

The motor vehicle chief expressed the belief that the situation is unjust to the other motorists of the State, but declares his department is powerless to remedy it.

CHARGES OF VOTE FRAUD BY BURSUM

Defeated Candidate for Senator in New Mexico Asks for Recanvass

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Alteration of ballots, intimidation of voters and other irregularities in the last Senatorial election in New Mexico, were charged by Holm O. Bursum, Republican, in a bill of complaint made public today by the Senate subcommittee investigating his contest for the Senate seat now held by Sam G. Bratton, Democrat.

Bursum requests a recount and recanvass of the ballots on the charge that Bratton and his agents, election judges, clerks, challengers, and party workers resorted to "wrongful and unlawful practices." He also asserted that thirty insane persons, twenty ex-convicts, not restored to citizenship, fifty minors and more than twenty-five aliens voted for Bratton and that the ballots were counted.

NANSEN GIVEN HONOR DEGREE IN SCOTLAND

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ST. ANDREWS (Scotland) Oct. 31.—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, Norwegian explorer and humanitarian, today was elected rector of St. Andrews University. He received 216 votes, while John Galsworthy, the novelist, polled 160. St. Andrews is the oldest of the Scottish universities, dating from 1451, and its rectorship is considered one of the highest honors that the academic world of Great Britain can bestow. FASCIST POWER HELD SPREADING

Accomplishments in Italy Revealed by Leader

New Conditions Declared Superior to Old

Impotency of Former Days Said to be Past

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

ROME, Oct. 31. — The world soon will discover that the ruling party in Italy has not only "Fascistized" this country, but has contributed materially to the Fascistization of other nations, Sig. Farinacci, secretary-general of the party, declared today in an address before a mass meeting of delegates from foreign Fascist organizations.

The address was intended as an appraisal of Fascism's accomplishments for Italy during the three years its leaders have been in the governmental saddle. Using all the oratorical skill for which he is known, Sig. Farinacci contrasted the old conditions with those now prevailing, picturing the Italy of three years ago as disorganized and almost supine as compared with the enterprise and effervescence everywhere in evidence today.

"Why is it," asked the speaker, "that before the advent of Fascism the foreign press never bothered about Italy? Because the previous vile governments had reduced us to the position of a humble, impotent people. The old government bartered, for a plate of lentils, our contribution to the war. Culminating in the most abominable Treaty of Versailles, from the grave consequences of which we now have been rescued."

GEN. AGNUS PASSES AT BALTIMORE

Veteran of Two Wars and ex-Newspaper Publisher Dies at Home

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Gen Felix Agnus, 81 years of age, veteran of two wars and former newspaper publisher, died at his home early this morning. He became publisher upon the death of his father-in-law in 1883, presiding over both the Baltimore American and the Baltimore Star, which he established in 1910, until the journals were purchased and merged by Frank A. Munsey in 1920.

Gen. Agnus served under Napoleon III in the war against Austria and in the Union Army as private and officer in the famous Puryea's Fifth New York Zouaves, saved the life of Gen. Kilpatrick at Big Bethel, was a soldier in command of a division in the "forlorn hope storming column" at Port Hudson and fought under the command of Gen. Sheridan in the Battle of Winchester.

Gen. Agnus was born in Lyons, France, May 5, 1839, and was educated in a suburb of Paris. He came to the United States in 1860 and for a time was employed in New York as a chaser and sculptor. At the beginning of the Civil War he enlisted as private in the Fifth New York Zouaves, where his military experience won him rapid promotion. When a the age of 25 he received his brevet as brigadier-general, he was the youngest of his rank in the Army. After he was wounded at Gaines Mills, Gen. Agnus was taken to Baltimore to the home of Charles C. Fulton, owner and publisher of the Baltimore American where he was cared for by Mr. Fulton's daughter, Miss Annie E. Fulton, who became Gen. Agnus's wife when the war was ended.

With the coming of peace, Gen. Agnus joined the staff of The American and gradually was given responsibility and authority until 1883 when at the death of Mr. Fulton he became publisher.

He was one of the original members of The Associated Press, was a delegate to several Republican national conventions, a member of the Grand Army of the Loyal Legion, one of the charter members of the Army and Navy Club of Washington and was a Knight Commander of the French Colonial Order of Nichan-el-Ammar, one of the divisions of the Legion of Honor.

PAIR ROBBED OF PAY ROLL BY WOMAN

Portland Men Held Up by Female Bandit Who Gets $4600 in Cash

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 31. — A woman today held up two employees of the Roberts Brothers' Department Store in front of the United States National Bank and escaped with $4600, mostly in silver coin, which had been drawn from the bank for the weekly pay roll.

As Philip Jones and Ennis Prichard, employees of the store, boarded their parked car in front of the bank with a leather handbag containing the pay-roll cash, they were accosted by the woman, who, heavily veiled, asked them if she could ride with them, they reported. She drew a pistol, partly covered with a handkerchief, and forced the two men to drive with her in the rear seat. She forced Prichard to remove the money from his bag and transfer it to one she carried. The store employees were forced to drive through several downtown streets, doubling back and forth through the heavy traffic. Finally the woman ordered the car to stop and stepped out.

Declaring she had a friend in a car just behind, she ordered the department-store men to drive to a point just outside the city. Jones, who was driving, observed a large car following, and deciding to take no chances, drove to the point indicated by the woman, then hastened to the police station to report the hold-up.

MAYOR TO ACT ON RAITT

Cryer Expected to Support Proposed Ousting of City Playground Superintendent at Hearing

Mayor Cryer is expected to issue a statement early this week sustaining the proposed action of his Playground Commission to remove Superintendent of Playgrounds C. B. Raitt, after the latter's nearly twenty years service in the position.

The statement will be issued before the commission's public hearing next Thursday at its rooms in the Bullard Building, 156 North Spring street, on the application of Raitt for a hearing before the commission takes action.

The commission planned to ask for Raitt's resignation and failing to receive it, would then proceed to remove him. Publicity of this program halted action. Raitt's friends rallied to his support, and the public hearing was granted. At this hearing Raitt's friends, headed by Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, a former member of the commission, will urge that Raitt's record and services require that he be retained in his position.

The Mayor's ire was aroused at the time the attempted removal was under way by a statement that there was "politics" behind the removal and that the Mayor's office was somehow involved in the attempted ousting because Raitt was said to have declined to remove from the playground department forces a man who had worked for the election of former Judge Bledsoe as Mayor.

The Mayor then announced that he would conduct an independent investigation into the entire matter and then issue a statement. In this it is expected that he will support the commission's contention that Raitt has refused to co-operate with the commission and with the park department in the joint work of the two departments.

A Story of modern medicine

A gland secretion brings new help to millions

Medical science has made a discovery which means very much to millions. It is a gland secretion derived from beef livers. It forms the only way known to stimulate the liver and increase the flow of bile.

For generations we have thought that cathartics stirred the liver. But they do not. Countless clinical tests have proved that. They merely irritate the intestines.

Now a way has been found, and physicians the world over prescribe it. A liver secretion does stimulate the liver—does multiply the supply of bile.

One result is clear bowels, and that comes quickly. But bile is also a digestant. And this new supply corrects bowel indigestion. And bile is an antiseptic. It stops the poisons which, without it, are constantly fed to the blood.

Now this liver secretion, prescribed by physicians everywhere, is embodied in tablets called Dioxol. Each tablet represents ten drops. It is bringing to millions of people remarkable help which no other method has brought.

Not only as a laxative. The flood of bile which it creates keeps the bowels active. But bile is also a digestant. Bowel indigestion is corrected by it. Bile is also an antiseptic. It stops the flow of poisons which germs in the intestines constantly feed the blood.

More than nine people in ten can gain new health and new vim by the use of Dioxol tablets. We want you to know that. Send the coupon for some tablets. Watch what they mean to you.

TWO BROKERS FACE INQUIRY

Grand Jury May Act on Julian Stock Flurry

Names of Men Withheld by District Attorney

Neither in Exchange, Keyes Declares in Quiz

Two stock brokers, whose names temporarily were withheld, face investigation by the grand jury as a result of the recent flurry in Julian Petroleum stocks and asserted bucket-shop operations.

Dist.-Atty. Keyes said yesterday he expects to lay all the facts before the grand jury, asking for the indictment of one and possibly two brokers. He said that neither of the brokers under investigation is a member of the Stock Exchange, but that both have dealt in stocks.

The State Corporation Commissioner's force is co-operating with the District Attorney's investigators, it was announced, and has auditors inspecting the books of the firms in question. They are seeking evidence to support their theory that the firms made a practice of accepting money fro stocks, failing to purchase stock and carrying the account, returning money in case the stock should rise in price and pocketing if the stock dropped.

ARRAIGNED IN SCHOOL GRAFT CASE

Board of Education Clerk Returns to Jail But Second Suspect Gives Bail

With the grand jury preparing to investigate the charges, Horace Gillespie of the Phoenix Furniture Company and C. E. R. Evans of the purchasing department of the Board of Education, were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Wood yesterday on complaints accusing them with grand larceny of $15,000 in connection with the purchase of school furniture.

Gillespie obtained his freedom in $10,000 property bond shortly after the arraignment but Evans was returned to the County Jail. They will be given a hearing before Justice Russill on the 3rd inst.

The two men were accused by I. M. Capper, assistant purchasing agent of the Board of Education, with larceny of the $15,000 through a manipulation of furniture orders, mostly for chairs. Capper swore to the complaint which Dep. Dist.-Atty. McInnes issued.

While the arraignment was in progress, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hill announced that he will lay the asserted larceny before the grand jury on the 3rd inst. and will ask for an indictment. He said the proceeding in Justice Court was merely to hold the pair under bond until the grand jury can investigate.

JUDGE HOLLZER OFF ON BELATED VACATION

JURIST FINALLY FREE FOR VISIT EAST AFTER HAVING SUBSTITUTE ROLE

Judge Hollzer of the Superior Court started yesterday on a belated vacation. Every year some judge of the Superior Court is the "vacation goat." Judge Hollzer played that role this year, going about from one department to the other, conducting necessary hearings in the absence of regular incumbents.

This delayed his own vacation until everyone else had returned. During the past five months the judge has served in practically every civil department. He was handling the calendars of as many as three courts at once for a time.

He will spend sixty days touring the country, visiting relatives and friends in nearly every large city. His trip will take him across the continent to New York and back.

GIRLS TRAIN FOR SCOUT LEADERS

Six Thousand Qualify in Three Years

Colleges and Universities Give Courses

National Secretary Outlines Ideals of Service

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Nearly 6000 college girls have taken the training course for Girl Scout leaders in the past three years, according to a statement by Dr. Elizabeth Kemper Adams, secretary of the educational department of the National Girl Scouts. These courses were given in 116 universities, colleges and professional schools in thirty-nine States and Territorial possessions under the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Grant, by the national educational department of the Girl Scouts.

In making her report on the training courses, Dr. Adams said: "The Girl Scouts give training courses for leaders in universities, colleges, and professional schools because the ways in which girls between 10 and 18 years of age choose to spend their leisure time are increasingly recognized as a vital part of their education; because there is no more happy and appropriate way for young college women to pay their civic quota of volunteer service than through becoming the friendly and understanding leaders of groups of these younger girls; because today such volunteer work, to be intelligent, requires training."

HIGH TYPE LEADERS

From early in their history, the Girl Scouts have recognized the importance of obtaining leaders of a high type and of providing them with appropriate and repeated training. This experiment, which led to the Spelman Grant, was planned for the following reasons, considered basic in all later developments:

Because higher institutions bring together in large numbers, young women prolonging their education beyond the high school and accustomed to organizing and managing their own group activities and to "playing the game."

Because higher institutions give these young women the experimental attitude and a background of theory along social, economic, psychological, and other lines, as well as practice in games and sports, dramatics, group singing, and in some cases, in art, handicrafts, homemaking, and the care of children, all applicable to a leisure-time program for younger girls and helping to keep it flexible and unstereotyped.

OBJECTIVE LEADERSHIP

Because recent college and professional school graduates are near enough to their own "teens" to be good friends and comrades of "teen-age" girls, and are yet far enough away and have enough breadth of outlook to keep their leadership objective and unsentimental.

Because women everywhere are coming to realize that whether they are employed or living at home, they owe a share of their time, effort and interest to volunteer work in their communities, and the leadership of growing girls is the most constructive and socially enlightening form of shew volunteer work for the young college or professional school graduate.

Apple Week to be Observed on Diners of Espee

Travelers on limited trains operating throughout the West will have an opportunity to participate in National Apple Week observances until next Friday.

C. R. Walsh, in charge of the Los Angeles commissary department of the Southern Pacific, stated that apples will be featured on all Southern Pacific dining cars during the week. They will be served in almost every conceivable way. More than 40,000 special apple menus have been printed by the railroad and will be distributed on its dining cars operating between Portland, Ogden, Los Angeles and New Orleans, Walsh said.

Southern Pacific chefs have been busy concocting apple dishes for the traveler, including apple cake, apple fritters, apple pie, apple dumplings, apple cobbler and apple sauce.

More than 11,000 boxes of apples from Pacific Coast growing centers are consumed on Southern Pacific dining cars annually, Walsh stated.

Thanksgiving Rates on Rail Lines in West

Special excursion fares for Thanksgiving Day, the 26th inst., have been authorized by the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads.

The rates will apply west of and including Ogden, Salt Lake City, Santa Rosa and Albuquerque, and south of Portland, between stations where the one-way fare is $30 or less. The tickets also will be sold through from points on the Southern Pacific between Santa Rosa and El Paso to California and between Albuquerque and California on the Santa Fe.

Basis for the excursion rates will be one and one-third fares for the round trip. Sales dates will be the 24th to 26th inst. inclusive, with return limit of December 1.

UNIVERSITY MUSIC COURSE

A course in the history and appreciation of music starts at the University of California extension division on the 4th inst.

We've Harnessed the Power of Electricity to bring you the most wonderful music the world has ever heard

The Brunswick Panatrope

The ONLY purely electrical reproducing instrument known —the most remarkable of all musical achievements

ELECTRICITY, the force that has changed civilization; that has captured the hidden tones of melody from the air; that has given man light, transportation and power; the force on which the greatest age of human progress is largely built; has now been harnessed so as to bring music incomparably different, wondrously beautiful, gloriously inspiring, without parallel in musical history.

This achievement is the result of the joint effort of four of the world's leading electrical and acoustical laboratories—The Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., and Brunswick. Only so imposing an effort could have achieved so inspiring a result.

We ask you to hear it . . . this remarkable Brunswick Panatrope; an instrument which has commanded front-page attention, for weeks, in the great metropolitan newspapers of the United States.

The world's only purely electrical reproducing instrument

It is the ONLY purely electrical reproducing instrument as yet known to the world. There is no other like it. It is rated by world's musical authorities, critics and publicists the most remarkable musical instrument known to man.

Compare any musical reproducing instrument you have ever heard, no matter how impressive that instrument may seem, and the Panatrope will excel it in every standard of musical perfection.

Weigh any musical entertainment for the home that you have ever known against it . . . and in fairness you will say this instrument is far beyond even the imagination of yesterday.

It is an electrical achievement. All future reproducing instruments must come to this principle . . . this electrical principle . . . to survive. All music will be weighed against it.

In fairness to yourself, buy no reproducing musical instrument without first hearing the Brunswick Panatrope. For what you buy today . . . regardless of how wonderful it may seem to you . . . may fall obsolete tomorrow before this amazing instrument.

Your favorite dealer has the Panatrope on display . . . or will have it very soon.

PANATROPE:—The joint achievement of the Four World Leaders in musical and electrical acoustics—The Radio Corporation of America, The General Electric Co., The Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., and Brunswick.

COLLECTION ON WATER HALTED

Court Restrains City from Getting New Rates

'Emergency' Action Attacked in Request for Order

Temporary Ban Granted on Appeal of Citizen

A temporary order restraining the city from collecting under the new water rate ordinance which goes into effect today, was granted yesterday by Presiding Judge Craig. There will be a hearing Thursday on the question of granting a temporary injunction, and in the meantime the Water Bureau will be unable to take physical possession of any money due under the new ordinance.

The order was granted on the petition of E. E. Lampton, who was a candidate for Councilman from the First District at the spring election and was defeated by Councilman Randall. He attacks the ordinance on the ground that though passed as an emergency measure no true emergency existed and that it is therefore invalid.

The petition was presented by Kimball Fletcher, attorney for Lampton, who at first asked an order suspending the ordinance. Judge Craig pointed out that as the city collects several million dollars a year in water rates, an order enjoining its going into effect would require an enormous bond to guarantee the city against loss, while an order merely restraining the collection of the rates, though leaving the ordinance in effect, would have the same purpose of getting the ordinance before the courts. The change was accepted by Attorney Fletcher and Lampton, and the amount of bond was fixed at $10,000.

Lampton declared he was acting in the matter wholly as an individual citizen and ratepayer, and said he is not backed by any organization in making his fight.

"If the city can pass an emergency ordinance of this character, then anything the Council calls an emergency is an emergency and the people have no protection," he said. "If the ordinance had taken the ordinary course with thirty days of publication before it went into effect, it could have been suspended by a referendum petition. The Council's interpretation of the emergency provision simply nullifies the referendum law."

At the hearing Thursday, a date will be set for hearing the case on its merits. The new ordinance provides a 30 per cent increase in all water rates.

The ordinance increasing the water rates 33 per cent takes effect today. It was adopted by the Council, but vetoed by the Mayor on the ground that while the water department needed the increased revenue, the emergency clause attached to the ordinance, which placed it in effect at once, was not justified. The Council then adopted the ordinance over the Mayor's veto.

As the water department does not read meters until the end of the month, it is expected that the issues will be decided in the Superior Court before November meter-reading time is at hand, so that the water department will know whether or not to send out November bills under the new or under the old, rates.

Under the old rates, the water department's income this year from the sale of domestic water was estimated at $5,000,000. Under the new rates the department's income would be $6,500,000.

RATES COMPARED

The schedule of new rates as compared with the old ones is as follows:

For the first 10,000 cubic feet of water per month, was 10 cents, per 100 cubic feet; new rate, 12 cents.

For next 40,000 cubic feet per month, was 8 1-2 cents per 100 cubic feet; new rate, 11 cents.

For next 50,000 cubic feet per month, was 7 cents per 100 cubic feet; new rate 9 cents.

For all in excess of 100,000 cubic feet per month, was 5 cents per 100 cubic feet; new rate 7 cents.

Minimum monthly rate or charge, 75 cents; new minimum monthly charge, $1.

Irrigation rate was 1.4 cents per 100 cubic feet; new rate 1.8 cents.

The combination irrigation and domestic rate charged small farms has not been changed from the former 5-cent schedule. Under the former schedule for this form of service, a $1 meter charge was made on all services, whether 1 inch, 1 1-2 inches or 2 inches. Under the new rates the $1 meter charge remains for the 1-inch service, but for the 1 1-2-inch service the meter charge will be $1.50 and for the 2-inch service the meter charge will be $2.

PRICE STILL LOW

The water bureau, in requesting approval of the new rates by the Council, said that with the 33 per cent increase, the Los Angeles water rates will be lower than the average paid in American cities, and will be less than one-half the rate paid by the people of San Francisco. The new rates were primarily made necessary, the water department said, by the provision of the new charter that required the water department to pay all interest and sinking fund charges on all outstanding water bonds. This provision resulted in a 9-cent reduction of the tax rate, as some of these charges had heretofore been paid from taxation.

With the water department being required to pay these charges from revenues and also to pay for the $1,000,000 repairs to the Aqueduct caused by storms in the Owens River Valley and for laying water mains ahead of paving to keep pace with the growth of the city, the department was showing a deficit of $125,000 a month and therefore required the rate increase, the department officials said.

The water department's side of the case will be presented to the Superior Court by City Attorney Stephens and Special Counsel W. B. Mathews of the water department. The application for an injunction was not unexpected at the City Hall. Before the water-rates ordinance and its emergency clause were adopted, the City Attorney advised the Council that he was prepared to sustain before the courts the Council's action in adopting the emergency water-rates ordinance.

FINANCIAL PLANS GIVEN BY PAINLEVE

Principal Feature Sinking Fund Provided from Special Taxes

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Matin prints a long statement from Premier Painleve today outlining the financial measures which he hopes to submit to Parliament within a week. These include neither forced consolidation nor a moratorium for national defense bonds, the principal feature being a sinking fund provided from the proceeds of special taxes, principally on accumulated wealth, and consequently completely and permanently independent of the regular budget resources.

Meanwhile, former Minister of Finance Caillaux and Louis L. Klotz, who also is an ex-Finance Minister, have become candidates for membership in the Financial Committee of the Senate.

Great importance is attached to the election, as it will provide the first indication of the present attitude of the upper House toward a capital tax as both Caillaux and Klotz oppose it.

Large Bear Enjoys Ride Into City on Seat of Coupe

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NORTH ADAMS (Mass.) Oct. 31.—When John R. Hillard, who has an Indian village on the Mohawk Trail, got ready to move his six bears down to this city for the winter, Bruno, the largest of the bears, weighing 380 pounds, refused to get into a truck with Mr. Hillard's helpers. Hillard fastened a chain to the bear's collar, led him into his own small coupe, and with the bear on the seat beside him, drove down to the city and put him in the barn. The bear enjoyed the ride immensely.

CITY FOUND TO BE PROSPEROUS

Chamber Reports Gains Made During October

Bank Clearings Set Record as Building Mounts

Heavy Tourist Flow Indicated by Advance Signs

Los Angeles continues prosperous, the Chamber of Commerce concluded yesterday, after a survey of business conditions during the month of October. The business activity, which began an upward climb about three months ago, showed steady gain throughout the month, and one item generally taken as an index eclipsed all previous records—bank clearings, which reached a new high of $795,582,959.19, exceeding the greatest previous month's total by more than $20,000,000.

Building permits amounted to $11,655,786, marking the highest October on record except the peak year, 1923, and the highest month since June. Real estate transfers, the chamber reports, were of large volume, both for business and for residence properties, and greater demand is noted in both lines. Railroads and hotels report good advance bookings for the winter season, which are confirmed by reports from the Chicago office of the chamber, and some of the limited trains already are running in four sections. A much heavier traffic season than that of 1924 is anticipated.

RETAIL TRADE GROWS

The telegraph companies report that Los Angeles is third in the United States in total number of telegraph and cable messages sent and received. Retail trade is estimated to have amounted to about 11 per cent more than in October of 1924, and Christmas buying already is in evidence. Wholesale trade is estimated by the chamber at about 10 per cent more than last year.

Oil production continues to show an output greater than that of 1924, the chamber's estimate for the month in California being 35,000 barrels daily, more than in October of last year, an increase of 6 per cent. Production has decreased somewhat, however, since last summer's reduction in price.

Agricultural prospects continue favorable, the chamber says, with a record of profitable harvests in many lines. The new navel orange crop of Central California is now being marketed at favorable prices, ranging from $7 to $7.50 a box, f.o.b. California. Grape shipments exceeded last year's by 6000 cars to date, and it is expected the total will reach 70,000 cars. A car shortage has troubled some shippers.

COTTON HARVESTED

Cotton pickers are needed in some districts, but in the main the crop is being harvested successfully, the chamber says. The Southwest crop is estimated at 350,000 bales, of which 200,000 will be from California and Baja, California. Vegetable specialties are moving in volume into eastern markets at good prices and conditions in the live stock industry continue to improve with new pasture showing in many districts.

Figures for commerce at the Port of Los Angeles show total exports of 1,349,400 tons, of a total value of $31,166,724, and total imports of 351,330 tons, worth $48,200,895. The bulk of the business was coastwise traffic, with exports of 727,532 tons and imports of 217,869 tons. Foreign exports were 331,262 tons, imports 44,848 tons; to Hawaii went 989 tons; from Hawaii came 6245 tons; intercoastal traffic was 289,532 tons of exports and 82,365 tons of imports.

THIEVES PREFER JAZZ TO OPERA

Sort Out Records and Haul $1500 Worth of Furniture Away

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) Oct. 31.—Thieves partial to jazz entered the home of B. B. Farnsworth, Springfield college professor, when the family was away, calmly loaded $1500 worth of furniture into a moving van and departed. The thieves took a pet canary, and carefully sorted out the professor's big collection of phonograph records, leaving all the grand opera ones and taking all the jazz melodies. The intruders displayed high-class artistic appreciation in floor coverings, however, making off with three valuable oriental rugs and disdaining others in the house.

LINK McCORMICK TO MRS. STILLMAN SUIT

PAPER SAYS DECREE SOUGHT TO CLEAR WAY TO MARRYING YOUTH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—While the principals in the latest Stillman divorce proceedings continued in seclusion today, there came a report as to a definite reason for the institution of a suit by Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman, against James A. Stillman. A morning newspaper says that Mrs. Stillman is suing so that she may be free to marry Fowler McCormick, 24 years of age, who at her suggestion some time past, put on overalls to learn the business of the International Harvester Company from the ground up.

The story adds that Mr. Stillman is prepared to permit his wife to obtain a divorce and that she will not demand large alimony, possibly none.

Mr. McCormick, the story goes on, went recently to Grande Anse, Que., where Mrs. Stillman has been staying, and about the same time Stillman was served with papers in the divorce case.

Mr. McCormick at one time was regarded as a suitor of Mrs. Stillman's daughter, Anne, now the wife of Henry P. Davidson, Jr.

Lawyers for both Mr. and Mrs. Stillman continue to refuse to discuss the divorce proceedings.

FOUR WIDOWS GIVEN INDUSTRIAL AWARDS

TWO HERE AMONG THOSE TO COLLECT FOR DEATH OF HUSBANDS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—The Industrial Accident Commission passed out favors with lavish hand today in a month-end clean-up of pending claims.

The largest award, $10,000, went to Mrs. Lena Rhymes of Los Angeles, whose husband, Joseph A. Rhymes, a mill worker, was killed July 21, last, when he was hit over the heart by a flying timber in the plant of the Brace Lumber Company. The Commercial Casualty Insurance Company was ordered to pay the widow $5000 and the commission will pay her a like sum.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Stanton of Orcutt was awarded $5000 for the death of her husband, James H. Stanton, killed November 1, 1924, when he was crushed by a falling elevator while employed as an oiler for the Diamond Drill Contracting Company.

Mrs. Grace Gunn, widow of Roy Gunn, Los Angeles truck driver, who was crushed to death under his truck last July 22, was awarded $4701.88.

Another $5000 award went to Mrs. Lydia L. Smith of Pasadena, whose husband, Pearl Smith, an employee of the city, was killed April 4, last. The city of Pasadena was ordered to pay the amount to the widow.

Hope is expressed in the report that the Americans will be able to continue their humanitarian efforts until the Armenian government itself is in a position to take over the care of the children.

TOURIST HORDE ARRIVES IN CITY

California Limited Comes in Five Sections

Warm Weather Welcomes New Visitors

Real Atmosphere Given by Clicking Cameras

Transporting more than 1000 persons, many of them tourists, the vanguard of the host that railroad officials say are on their way here from the East, the Santa Fe California Limited arrived in Los Angeles yesterday in five ten-car sections.

The first section arrived at 2 p.m., and the other four followed at ten-minute intervals. Before the first section arrived thousands of people gathered at the station, some to meet returning friends and relatives who took advantage of summer rates to vacation in the East, and others to welcome newcomers to Southern California.

"Gee, but we're glad to be back!" and "My, but it's warm here!" were the expressions most commonly heard from the arrivals.

California atmosphere was certainly on the job to welcome the travelers. Not only the sun was pleasantly warm, but two motion-picture cameras clicked merrily away as the passengers stepped from the trains, giving the tourists an unexpected thrill. A motion-picture company took advantage of the heavy railroad traffic to shoot some scenes for a forthcoming picture, "The Phantom Express," a First National production.

Some of the same brand of excitement was given tourists arriving over the Southern Pacific at the Central Station. As the transcontinental trains drew in there the passengers saw a long line of khaki-clad soldiers boarding a special train, while scores of pretty girls and motherly women tossed them cigarets, kisses and otherwise bade the soldiers farewell.

Station attendants in response to hundreds of questions from easterners explained that the Famous Players-Lasky Company was shooting a war picture, and that the soldiers and their sweethearts were in reality hard-working actors on the job.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TO PLAN FOR TOURISTS

Carrying out part of the Southern Pacific Company's comprehensive campaign for bringing still larger numbers of travelers to California during 1926, C. L. McFaul, assistant passenger traffic manager of the railroad at Los Angeles, will leave tomorrow noon on the Golden State Limited to visit eastern agencies and railroad centers.

McFaul will remain in the East the greater part of November, visiting Chicago, where he formerly was stationed as general agent; Kansas City, St. Louis, New Orleans and several cities in Florida and other eastern States.

While in the East, McFaul will confer with representatives of the Southern Pacific and other travel agencies on plans for the most effective work during the next several months to bring hundreds of thousands of tourists to the Pacific Coast.

TRAIN KILLS TRUCK DRIVER

Southern Pacific Lark Crashes Into Loaded Car Near Lankershim and Passengers Shaken Up

Passengers on the Lark, Southern Pacific fast train from San Francisco, were jarred and shaken yesterday when the train came to a sudden halt after striking a truck and killing its driver at the Tulare crossing, near Lankershim. The driver was Fred Zilliox of Lankershim. The driver was Fred Zilliox of Lankershim.

According to reports made to the Valley Division police, Zilliox was driving a gravel truck for the Consolidated Trucking Company and had just picked up a load at the gravel pit of the Consumers' Rock and Gravel Company near Pacoima. He drove on to the tracks, it was said, apparently without seeing the fast approaching train and the truck was struck near the driver's seat. The truck was partly demolished and Zilliox was crushed to death. None of the passengers on the train received any injury and the train was able to proceed.

The body of Zilliox was sent to the Donald Keith, Undertaking Company at Lankershim.

THIEF FELLS WOMAN AND TAKES PURSE

Victim Dragged Brutally Into Street by Bandit Who Flees in Automobile

A woman was dragged brutally into the street and robbed of her purse, and a night garage man had tobacco thrown in his eyes by bandits who operated late Friday night, according to reports filed at Central Police Station yesterday.

Miss Peggy Goodridge of 1559 North Kingsley Drive told the police that she was walking in front of 1921 Highland avenue when a young man stepped out of the shadows of a tree and grabbed her purse. Two straps by which Miss Goodridge was holding the purse on her arm prevented the attacker from obtaining it. He dragged her out into the street and rolled her in the dirt of the gutter, forcing the purse from her arm. He then jumped in a car which was driven up by a confederate. Miss Goodridge reported that the purse contained $50.

L. F. Turney, of 722 West Randolph street, Huntington Park, on his way to work shortly after midnight was stopped by three bandits at Seventh and Santee streets, he reported. Before he could offer any resistence one of the trio, he said, threw a handful of tobacco in his eyes, blinding him. The three then rifled his pockets of $85 in cash and two watches valued at $100.

CAPTIVE PAIR LINKED WITH TWO CRIMES

Suspects Caught in Raid Asserted to Have Robbed Spokane Policeman

Checking up on the asserted police records of Pete Wilson and Joe Edwards, arrested early yesterday morning with two revolvers fully loaded in their possession, police detectives announced that both men are wanted for escape from jail in Seattle, and for the hold-up and robbery of Patrolman Peterson, in Spokane.

One of the revolvers, according to Officers Brown and Harvey, was the weapon taken from Patrolman Peterson.

Both suspects, who are being held in the City Jail pending further advices from Seattle, have long police records, according to Officers Brown and Harvey. They were taken into custody when the two officers, working on a tip that liquor was being sold at 842½ Wall street, went to this address and raided one of the rooms. The two suspects were found within with the guns and nine pints of liquor in their possession. One of the guns had the numbers filed off.

The suspects are booked on suspicion of robbery and violation of the Wright Act.

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM

New York Physician Perfects Harmless Method of Reducing Weight

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth avenue, New York City, Dept. R-21.—[Advertisement.

KHJ PARTY WELCOMED BACK HOME

Large Crowd Assembles to Greet Pioneer Announcer and His Music Box

The tower studio of KHJ last night was host to one of the largest crowds ever assembled in this pioneer radio station of the Southwest, when twenty of the juvenile stars of the children's hour programs and an equal number of the prominent broadcast artists gathered to greet Uncle John, manager of The Times station, and his Music Box artists on their return from Honolulu.

Late yesterday afternoon the people started pouring into the studio, and when the station was ready to go on the air at 6:30 o'clock with the combined Hallowe'en and welcome-home party, every available space in the station was filled, and hundreds were unable to obtain admittance. Starting with brief bits by each of these youthful stars before the microphone, the celebration continued until after 11 o'clock. From 8 o'clock onward the group of leading artists presented a program filled with brilliant broadcast selections.

The feature of the evening was the presence of Uncle John and his Music Box, which is composed of the five artists who accompanied the excursion of the Chamber of Commerce to Honolulu, being chosen from all the Southwest. The party left aboard the City of Los Angeles three weeks ago and at noon yesterday returned to the pier at San Pedro. The five Music Box stars of KHJ are Mary Newkirk Bower, soprano soloist; Mona Content, concert pianist; Bernice Neal, 'cellist; Carolyn LaFevre, violinist, and Helen Mead Little, flutist. They appeared in a series of salon concerts en route on the steamer and in public at Honolulu as well as over the broadcast station of KGU at the islands.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.—[Advertisement.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.—[Advertisement.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Octubre 31.—Está adelantando de tal manera la construcción en las líneas proyectadas del Sudpacífico, que habrán de ligar la costa occidental de Méjico con la parte central de esa república y también con la costa del oeste de los Estados Unidos, que la compañía espera para fines del año entrante poder abrir el tráfico directo a Los Angeles, San Francisco y Seattle.

Mediante un contrato con los Ferrocarriles Nacionales de Méjico, están corriendo trenes de Guadalajara rumbo al norte, hasta La Quemada. Por el otro cabo, los trenes, con servicio de Pullman, corren ya hasta Tepic, y dentro de unas cuantas semanas se espera lleguen hasta Ixtlán.

Solo queda por herrar un tramo de cuarenta y ocho millas de vía; pero es en ese trayecto el problema de construcción tan difícil como el más difícil que haya habido en la historia de la construcción ferrocarrilera. En este tramo de cuarenta millas y pico, va a ser preciso perforar veintiocho túneles de longitud variable, y en condiciones nuevas para la ingeniería ferrocarrilera. Prueba de esto es el hecho de que un túnel que se construyó hace poco con todos los recursos modernos, se hundió y retardó varias semanas el trabajo de construcción.

Centenares de personas y de empresas, de los Estados Unidos y de Méjico, esperan con anhelo la apertura de esta vía, que creen traerá el desarrollo de una región del país que hasta la fecha, ha estado incomunicada con la capital, salvo por los Estados Unidos.

Al Jennings Trás el Botín de Villa

EL PASO (Tejas) Octubre 31.—Al Jennings, ex-salteador de trenes, ex-sentenciado, ex-bandido, ex-evangelista, abogado y ex-candidato al gobierno de Oklahoma, va a añadir otro título a la larga lista que tiene de ellos, ahora que cruza la frontera mejicana y se convierta en buscador de oro, pues va nada menos que a descubrir el tesoro enterrado de Pancho Villa.

En recientes fechas Jennings ha venido aquí varias veces de Los Angeles, interesado, según se creía, en una mina que estaba examinando en el Estado de Chihuahua. Hizo varios viajes a lo interior con un amigo que conoce a Méjico como a sumano. Juntos recorrieron a caballo los quebrados y montañosos distritos del oeste de Chihuahua, so pretexto de encontrar una propiedad minera de plomo y plata. Lo que andaban buscando eran mojones y otras señales, que esperaban los pusieran sobre la pista del escondrijo donde se halla el tesoro enterrado de Villa, oculto desde hace largo tiempo en las montañas de Méjico, y abandonado desde que el jefe de bandidos fué muerto a balazos en el Parral.

Venecia Cegará sus Canales y los Hará Bulevares

Ya tiene derecho la ciudad de Venecia para cegar sus históricos canales y con vertirlos en bulevares, pues en favor de esa determinación de la ciudad playera sentenció ayer el juez Holizer, del Juzgado Superior, sobreseyendo en el interdicto interpuesto por W. M. Brown y otros dueños de propiedad urbana con frente a los canales, que trataban de impedir la desaparición de éstos.

Según se sabe, los actores van a recurrir en alzada, y han logrado que el juez Holizer prorrogue por veinte días la orden de suspensión temporal de las obras, que se expidió al entablar el juicio.

Se Salva un Fondista Merced al Ju Jitsu

Quitó le deba Tony Abdnour la vida y el salvar algún dinero al conocimiento que tiene del ju jitsu, pues ayer mañana temprano se hallaba trabajando en su restorán, sito en la calle Spring Sur, 214 1-2, cuando un individuo grueso y bajo de cuerpo se presentó en el establecimiento con la gorra metida hasta los ojos, y encañonó al patrono con un revólver. Tony se hallaba solo en el café.

Dirigió una mirada al bandido y otra a la pistola de éste, y dijo con toda calma: "Bueno, ¿para qué se para usted allí? El dinero está en la caja registradora".

Al oír esto, el bandido siguió a Tony hasta cerca de la citada caja, pero entonces, el patrono hizo un movimiento engañoso, como para abrir la caja del dinero, y en forma rápida y repentina, le echó mano al bandido y lo sujetó de modo tan firme y doloroso, que unos cuantos segundos después, Tony tenía en sus manos el revólver, y el bandido se alejaba a todo trapo del café.

HONOLULU (T. H.) Octubre 31. El equipo de balompié de la Universidad de Hawai, que jugará contra el colegio de Occidental, en Los Angeles, para el Día de Acción de Gracias, tiene la mascota más original del mundo: un arco iris. Hasta hace poco el equipo balonista de la isla gastaba elásticas verdes con adornos blancos; pero, por deferencia a su mascota, las guarniciones blancas han desaparecido, y la elástica verde tiene ahora brazales y petos con los colores del arco iris. Entre los aficionados balonistas de la isla existe la superstición de que "Hawai nunca puede ser vencido cuando luce el arco iris en el firmamento".

CHURCH SPLITS IN PASTOR ROW

Dissatisfaction at the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, conference dismissal last week of Rev. Maurice Johnson, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Church of Glendale, has broken forth in a flame of protest and resulted in a split in the congregation, a large number of the communicants having withdrawn from the church and organized another congregation.

Issuing a public statement criticising the conference, fifty former members of the congregation yesterday branded the action of the conference "so out of harmony with all former Methodist teachings they can no longer conscientiously remain members, but will form an independent congregation."

A unanimous decision to split from their old church followed a meeting yesterday at the home of C. L. Johnson, 608 South Adams street, a former steward of the Broadway Methodist Church. An executive committee of seven members was appointed, headed by Johnson, who is no relative of the deposed pastor. This committee will be actively in charge of the organization of a new congregation.

Feeling among the church members is pronounced and only a small percentage of the original church membership is expected to attend services today and listen to the opening sermon of Rev. W. N. Thornton, named to succeed Johnson. In sharp contrast, the members of the Johnson faction will hold services and Sunday-school this morning in the council chambers of the Glendale City Hall, and have engaged Rev. Hal Reed, formerly of the Florence Heights Methodist Church, South, as their temporary spiritual leader.

Although leaders of the movement to break from the old church are careful to point out that Mr. Johnson is taking no part in their revolt against the conference ruling, added fuel was thrown on the flames today when it was announced that the ousted clergyman will fill the pulpit tonight at the Glendale Presbyterian Church and will use as the subject of his sermon, "The Battle of Berkeley." Thus far he has declined to comment on the action taken against him by the conference but it is believed he is preparing forcibly to submit his side of the argument tonight.

Mr. Johnson was relieved of his charge and voted out after a hot contest on the floor of the conference meeting, which was held last week at Berkeley, after charges were hurled that he directed criticism against methods of Methodist Sunday-school teaching. The specific charge was "unacceptibility," and it was held the pastor had failed to meet the requirements of study during his two years' probationary period and was therefore ineligible for admission to the conference as a pastor.

Members of the congregation immediately refused to support the action of the conference and upheld the minister's criticisms. If the conference ignores petitions prepared and circulated by communicants and refuses to reinstate Mr. Johnson, it is understood many others as individuals, will also leave the congregation.

SERVICES AT NEW TEMPLE OF MASONS

The corner-stone of a new Masonic Temple was laid at Wilmington yesterday for Lodge No. 198, 1000 persons gathering at Canal street near Anaheim Boulevard for the ceremony.

The event was conducted by Albert Eugene Boynton of San Francisco, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California, who wielded the trowel. Within the stone were placed several items marking the day, including a copy of The Times.

The ceremony was preceded by a parade, headed by the Long Beach Commandery of Knights Templar, from the old Masonic Temple to the new. Music was provided by the Fort MacArthur military band.

The temple will be completed within two months at a cost of $50,000. The Wilmington lodge was chartered in 1869 and holds the distinction of being one of the oldest in the State.

While in the Southland Boynton officiated at the institution of nine new Masonic lodges in this vicinity. Five of the lodges were installed Friday night and the other four were instituted last night. The ceremonies Friday night were conducted at Sunset Masonic Temple.

CHURCH HITS AT EVOLUTION

Lutheran Circuit Concludes Annual Convention

Darwin Theory Denounced as "Brute Doctrine"

San Francisco Chosen for Next Gathering

Following a six days' conference featuring a two-day discussion of the theory of evolution, the California Circuit of Lutheran Churches closed its anual convention at Long Beach and the work of organization was completed for the time when a committee, appointed a year ago at the convention in this city, met to discuss plans for the establishment of a full-fledged Luthern college in Southern California. More than 400 delegates from Lutheran churches in all parts of the State attended the Long Beach convention and a resolution condemning the teaching of evolution was passed.

The annual convention met this year with three principal subjects for discussion, namely: Evolution and its effects on civilization; Christian education, and the annual budget system. The doctrine of evolution was given the greatest share of the convention's discussion time, two days being devoted to the Darwinian theory.

RESOLUTION PASSED

In a resolution denouncing the acceptance of the theory of evolution, the Lutheran delegates announced opposition to the teaching of the theory in colleges and universities "not only because it is an unproven hypothesis, but because it is taught as established fact."

"If the brute doctrine of evolution is permitted to go unchallenged," the resolution continues, "it will become the greatest menace to church and State, for everything that weakens man's faith in God endangers the peace of the nation—of the world."

BAY CITY CHOSEN

San Francisco was chosen by the delegates as the next convention city and the date was set for the middle of October, 1926.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon at Our Savior's Lutheran Church in this city, a committee appointed last year to make preliminary investigation into the establishment of a Lutheran college in Southern California, made its report and subcommittees were appointed to go further into necessary details. Another meeting of committee and subcommittees was set for Los Angeles early in December.

PEONAGE CASE HEARING SET

Workmen Declared to Have Been Confined Under Unbearable Conditions at Mine

A hearing on the complaint of A. P. Lopez that he and five others were subjected to a condition virtual of peonage in a desert salt mine as the result of the inducements and misrepresentations of a local employment agent was set yesterday by Chief Deputy Labor Commissioner Barker for Wednesday afternoon.

R. Rodrigues, proprietor of a North Main street employment agency, was cited to appear and show cause why his certificate should not be revoked on the charges. At his request, the officers of the Natural Soda Works at Independence, whose names were given as J. C. Clausen, Paul Watterson, James Miller and John Doe Roberts, were sent subpoenas to appear as witnesses.

Pending the hearing, Rodrigues, on order of Chief Deputy Barker, deposited $20 for the temporary relief of the four men now in Los Angeles. Lopez and R. Moreno appeared at the Labor Bureau and received $5 each.

SWEEPING INQUIRY

The District Attorney of Inyo County and Justice of Peace King of Independence were brought into a sweeping investigation of the charges yesterday by Charles F. Lowy, attorney for the labor commissioner, who wrote to them and asked for a thorough investigation of conditions and facts surrounding the claim of Lopez that four of the men were confined in jail for twenty-five days.

The asserted state of virtual peonage existing near Independence was revealed Friday, and an investigation started by the Labor Bureau when A. P. Lopez filed a complaint that he and five others allowed themselves to be transported to Independence to work for nine hours daily in a soda works on the inducement of Rodigues.

After a twenty-four-hour automobile ride they were put to work in water in a potassium mine and told they must work twelve hours, Lopez asserted. Conditions were unbearable, he charged, and they left.

SENTENCED TO JAIL

Later they were picked up and confined at the mine overnight and then taken to Independence and sentenced to twenty-five days in jail for not paying their board, which was contracted to be taken out of their wages in their original agreement, he charged.

After serving sentence, three of the men arrived in Los Angeles Friday and Lopez filed the complaint. They were forced to pawn part of their clothes for food while walking home, according to Lopez.

Attorney Lowy stated yesterday that if the investigation provides the proof he expects, Rodrigues's license will be revoked and he will be prosecuted for violation of the labor law, while prosecution also will be instigated against the mine operators.

At least one other man has been subjected previously to similar treatment by the same people, Attorney Lowy was notified yesterday, he said.

ARRANGE FOR CHEST WORKERS' LUNCHEONS

Workers' luncheons, to be held every noon during the campaign period of the Community Chest, are slated for the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall. Last year these luncheons were held at the Biltmore Hotel. Reports are made by workers each noon on their progress in collecting funds. As was the case last year, each worker pays for his luncheon.

WORK AIDS UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

Men and Women at U.S.C. Engaged in Variety of After-School Occupations

The yearly report of the appointment bureau of the University of Southern California shows that students who work while at college are not "flunking out," that many of the campus leaders and those active, prominent and popular in student affairs are among the most versatile workers, and that the general state of mind and health of those who are employed part-time compares favorably with those who have too much time to waste. Not only is the supplemented income a contribution to happiness and contentment, but the practical experience gained is a decided asset.

According to Miss Edith Weir, appointment secretary at Southern California, the advantages of employing student help are being more and more realized by those who need part-time service. During a year's time, 2175 calls came to the university placement bureau, the "male help wanted" constituting 1177 calls, and 990 requests for employment for women being received.

Architects and actors, book-keepers and bus boys, cashiers and carpenters, chemists and chauffeurs, drug-store clerks and office help, musicians and messengers, ushers and janitors, librarians and telephone operators, recreation leaders and information clerks, stenographers and salesmen, waiters and draftsmen, gardeners and street-car collectors, service-station operators and mail clerks—in all, fifty-one vocations, trades and professions were pursued by the masculine student body of the University of Southern California last year according to the report.

Assistance in interior decorating, coaching tennis, and dramatic production was rendered by the women who are studying at Southern California, and even while at college many of the placements included opportunity to advance both in status and remuneration. Types of student workers most in demand, in point of numbers, among the coeds at Southern California were readers, entertainers, librarians, companions, office help of many varieties, typists, waitresses, governesses, switchboard operators and private secretaries.

Early Southern Era Visioned in 'Splendid Road'

The romantic although unsettled period just previous to the Civil War, provides the atmosphere for Robert Frazer's newest film role, that of a young lawyer in "The Splendid Road," which Frank Lloyd has just completed for First National.

"The 'Fifties' presented a significant stage in America's history," says Frazer.

"This picture, in addition to offering romantic and dramatic entertainment, presents a historical insight into conditions just preceding the Civil War that is sure to stimulate interest in that fascinating period of American history."

Frazer plays the romantic lead opposite Anna Q. Nilsson in the Lloyd picture.

Jujutsu Saves Cafe Man When Bandit Appears

A knowledge of jujutsu early yesterday morning perhaps saved Tony Abdnour his life and some money. He was working in his coffee house at 315 1-2 South Spring street when a short, heavy-set man with his cap pulled well down over his eyes walked in and pointed a revolver at him. Tony was alone in the cafe.

Tony looked at the bandit and then at the gun and quietly remarked: "Well, what are you standing there for? The money's in the cash register."

The bandit then followed Tony close to the cash register. Tony, making a feint to open the money box, suddenly gripped the bandit's arm. With the other he applied a a painful hold, with the result that in a few seconds Tony had the gun and the bandit was running hurriedly from the coffee house.

CHAMBER JOINS PHONE DISPUTE

Hearing Plea Sent to Rail Commission

Charges Measured Service Will be Unjust

System to be Demonstrated by Minor Exchange

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce yesterday entered an application with the State Railroad Commission to be heard at a rehearing before the commission Wednesday on the matter of rates, measured service and other related telephone problems to be brought before the commissioners en banc.

The application asserts that the Chamber of Commerce represents 13,000 residents of the city, mostly business and manufacturing houses, to whom, it is charged, an injustice will be done by the installation of measured service January 1, as previously ordered by the commission.

ASKS DELAY IN CHANGE

The Chamber of Commerce is willing that any public-utility concern shall earn a just return on its investments, but any increase in rates should be equitably adjusted among all consumers without discrimination, the application sets forth, adding that the present order for measured service is inequitable.

The Chamber of Commerce application, signed by President Pridham, requests that the installation of measured service ordered for January 1 shall be delayed while experiments and a more thorough investigation are made.

With the formal entry of the Chamber of Commerce in the hearing and the city's telephone committee prepared to debate the issue at length, prospects are that the hearing will be marked by an array of legal talent and will require several days to complete.

The Southern California Telephone Company is preparing to install a minor measured service exchange in the commission's office for demonstration during the hearing, it was learned yesterday.

ISSUE YEAR OLD

The telephone-rate issue has been before the commission for approximately one year, having been introduced several weeks prior to the commission's order last December, following an extensive hearing in which the opponents of measured service and rate increase were defeated.

With the telephone controversy occupying the Railroad Commission's entire attention, the hearing scheduled for this week to adjust the price to be paid by the city for public utility plants acquired in outlying districts, has been postponed until January 26.

Sitting en banc to decide on the merits of the applications of several gas companies to increase rates, the commission will close one of the busiest months in its history here during the latter part of November. The gas hearing is scheduled to commence the 23rd inst., less than two weeks after the telephone hearing is expected to close.

Richfield Oil Files Appeal in Tax Judgment

The Richfield Oil Company yesterday filed an appeal in the State Supreme Court from a judgment of $53,795 awarded the State in Superior Court as the asserted unpaid portion of taxes on 7,389,040 gallons of gasoline distributed by the oil concern in 1923. The judgment also included $6077 interest on the taxes.

The oil company asserts that the delivery of the gasoline on which the payment of taxes is disputed was made under contracts entered into prior to May 14, 1923, when the tax in question went into effect, and that the tax law cannot be binding on contracts executed before the statute was passed.

The records show that the oil company was taxed a total of $147,880 on gasoline distributed during the year and actually paid $99,585. The balance, which it is declared was sold under the contracts, is disputed.

Police Officer Held Guilty as Reckless Driver

Harry S. Boardman, a Manhattan Beach police officer, yesterday was found guilty of reckless driving by Police Judge Chambers, despite his plea that he was on duty at the time of the accident that led to his arrest. Police Judge Chambers ruled that a police officer has no right to drive recklessly at any time and set Boardman's sentence for Monday at 10 a.m.

Fred L. Mayhew of 1117 West Seventy-seventh street was the complainant in the case. He declared he was driving near his home when Boardman, hurrying back to Manhattan Beach from serving subpoenas in this city, struck his car and wrecked it, injuring him. Boardman asserted he was sounding his siren at the time and that Mayhew should have got out of the way.

HELD FOR FORGING OF FEDERAL CHECK

Warner S. Reynolds for a second time within five years was taken to the Los Angeles County Jail yesterday on a charge of forging a United States Treasury check. Several years ago Reynolds is said by Federal officials to have been convicted by Superior Judge Willis for forgery and was granted probation. Reynolds was arraigned before United States Commissioner Turney and his bond set at $2000. The complaint against him charges that on May 5, last, he cashed a Treasury check for $67.50 payable to Fred B. Shaw.

MOONSHINE FARM RAIDED

Woman in Mash Smeared Garb Admits to Being Sole Operator of Two Stills, Police Report

Raiding a "moonshine farm" at 11975 South Budlong avenue yesterday, Federal prohibition agents under Ray S. Adams arrested Mrs. Maggie Gardner and Ed Coalley on a charge of manufacturing and possessing intoxicating liquor.

The woman, according to the arresting officers, was smeared from head to foot with mash that collected on her garments and the men's shoes she wore as she tended two stills—one fifty-gallon contraption and one seventy-five-gallon.

"Where are your men assistants?" Adams asked her.

WORKED ALONE

"Buddy," she replied, "there isn't any. I do it all myself." She then displayed a pair of calloused hands, reddened and tough from exposure to the air while wet from the fermented mash.

A second man, believed to go under the name of Mason Adams, escaped from the raiders when permitted to visit another room in the house after more than fifty barrels of mash and 100 gallons of moonshine had been seized. A complaint was issued yesterday for his arrest.

According to Adams, Coalley was engaged in trucking the moonshine to sales quarters believed to have been maintained by the man who escaped. Twenty-five gallons of the beverage was found in Coalley's truck in the garage, and fourteen five-gallon cans in the house. Coalley operates a transfer business at 3049 West Pico street, agents reported.

BONDS FIXED

Mrs. Gardner and Coalley were arraigned before United States Commissioner Turney and their bonds fixed at $2000, which they were unable to furnish. A salaam garnished with mock solemnity by the woman at the close of the hearing, brought a stiff rebuke from Commissioner Turney.

A second raid within the past week on the Mecca Cafe, Seventh and Maple streets, netted a third prisoner yesterday for prohibition agents, when they arrested John Bird, said to be a bartender of the place, on an accusation of selling and possessing liquor. A pint of evidence was obtained.

John Dunn and John E. Wheeler, accusers of prohibition officers now being investigated by United States Commissioner Turney and the United States Attorney's office for asserted collusion with bail bond agents, were taken at the Mecca Cafe early last week. Their examination has been continued until the 5th inst.

Former Natives of Missouri to Frolic at Ball

Charleston contests and several other novelties will feature the big Masonic ball to be given on Armistice Day by former residents of the "Show Me" State now residing in Los Angeles. Under the leadership of Dr. Charles D. McPherson, a former resident of St. Louis, members of the Masonic fraternity who have transferred their abodes from Missouri to Southern California have formed the Sojourners of the West Club, under the auspices of which the Armistice Day Ball will be held in the Masonic Temple ballroom, Pico and Figueroa streets.

Chief among the functions of the club is the bringing together of former Missourians here where they may renew old, or make new acquaintances, and the establishment of a death benefit fund for dependents of members. The club holds monthly reuniens, social entertainments and an occasional dinner.

W. E. Kruckman and Lee Needhan, who are in direct charge of the ball, announce that the dance will begin promptly at 8 p.m., November 11. Officials of the club, other than President McPherson, include Harry W. Westerman, vice-president; Henry W. Koslowsky, treasurer, and Mel Hutchinson, secretary.

ARROWHEAD CHAMBER TO MEET TOMORROW

The Lake Arrowhead Chamber of Commerce will hold its second annual meeting tomorrow, according to the report of its president, Dr. J. Frazer Barbrick. The organization was formed as a civic enterprise on behalf of the residents of the village of Lake Arrowhead in the San Bernardino Mountains—a region that has become particularly famous in recent years for its winter and summer programs of athletic events. Tournaments have attracted famous athletes to the lake, and many have been held under A.A.U. sanction.

T-Bone Riley Must Answer to Grand Jury

Clyde Van Hosse, popularly known as "T-Bone Riley," yesterday was held to answer to the Federal grand jury on a charge of selling and possessing liquor at his restaurant, 118 West Fourth street.

Riley's place of business was raided on October 16 and 26, and in both instances prohibition agents reported large seizures of wines, beers and whisky. The defendant is at liberty on $4000 bond.

AN OLD STORY EMPHASIZED

Over fifty years ago we told how helpful Scott's Emulsion could be to young babies, growing children, the youth in the teens, the nursing mother and down to the aged.

Our story was believed because it was true and now, after fifty years, in all confidence, we are able to emphasize this story unchanged.

Scott's Emulsion of vitamin-tested, invigorating cod-liver oil with glycerine and hypophosphites of lime and soda, is just as potent today as it was five decades ago in its power to nourish and build up the human body.

You will be surprised how much strength and resistance can be obtained by taking a very little regularly every day.

FACTS ABOUT MOTOR CAR UPHOLSTERY

WHY MOHAIR VELVET IS SUPERIOR TO OTHER FABRICS

Why Not Have the Best in Your Car
The Types of Upholstery Materials to Avoid
The Enduring Beauty of One Particular Make of Mohair Velvet

The undisputed, most practical, longest wearing and most luxurious upholstery fabric for closed cars is Mohair Velvet.

Mohair Velvet is a deep, velvety, pile fabric, woven from the lustrous, strong fleece of the Angora Goat.

Government tests show Mohair to have more than two and one-half times the strength of wool—the longest wearing surface known to the textile world.

The fibres of Chase quality Mohair Velvet are so wonderfully elastic that they spring back into position even after a severe and continued pressure. This permanent position, bringing the wear on the top ends of the fibre, insures long wear without those bare or fuzzy spots so common to smooth fabrics where the wear comes on the sides of the fibres.

There are no other woven upholstery fabrics that will do this and none have the beautiful sheen and elegance of a good Mohair Velvet.

In many cars you will find untested, "substitute" fabrics — some only suitings — others, "granite" weaves which are thin and harsh. They are not practical for closed car upholstery.

Mohair Velvet is often called "Mohair Plush," but all plushes are not made of Mohair. Plush made from any fibre other than Mohair will not afford the service that Mohair Velvet—an animal-fibre fabric—will.

Do not confuse Mohair Velvet with velours! Velours is another type of fabric which resembles velvet but its short nap surface mats down and soils quickly.

Mohair Velvet Upholstery Brings Higher Resale Prices

Scores of dealers have confirmed this statement. They can afford to allow you more for a car upholstered with Mohair Velvet for invariably the interior is in such good condition that they avoid the expense of re-upholstering.

Any type of woven upholstery material other than a good mohair is usually so unsightly at the time the car is turned in, that dealers find it necessary to re-cover the cushions and then they allow you just so much less for the car.

Sanford Mills have never lowered their standards. They have refused to produce inferior Mohair Velvets which could not be guaranteed as is Velmo.

There is a parallel between the upholstery needs of Railway Coaches and Closed Motor Cars. The fabric which has been used for seat upholstery by leading railroads for over 40 years is Chase Velmo—mohair plush. Tests by railroads have proved it unequalled for extreme service, cleanliness, economy and comfort.

Chase Velmo, considering its enduring worth, is truly inexpensive and enhances the beauty and value of any car.

Chase Velmo is guaranteed dependably color-fast; its beautiful texture remains fresh and undimmed after years of severe service.

Chase Velmo is most sanitary; dust does not settle on its surface as in the case of leather or hard surface materials. Delicate clothing is, thereby, saved from harm.

Velmo will not spot readily and if soiled can be cleansed easily with pure soap and water—neither rattan beatings nor vacuum cleaning will harm Velmo.

The peculiar pile construction of Velmo keeps the occupants from slipping from side to side while motoring and Velmo is cool and comfortable in all seasons. Velmo does not wear clothing shiny as do flat surface fabrics.

No fabric is the equal of Velmo in resisting wear; it will outwear, twice over, any other woven material. Velmo, barring accidents, will last beyond the life of the car itself—re-upholstering being unnecessary.

Consider this — will the upholstery fabric in your closed car look good as long as the car lasts? Put this question up to the salesman and if he doubts the fact that a fabric exists which will give you this wonderful service, tell him CHASE VELMO will.

PREACHER WINS IN CHURCH ROW

Christian Minister Victor at Redlands

Official Board Sits as Court of Inquiry

No Official Statement Has Yet Been Made

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, Oct. 31. — The board of elders of the First Christian Church, or at least a majority of the board, met today to hear charges against Rev. R. Glenn Edwards, hearing several witnesses. Those opposed to his continuing as acting pastor of the church maintain the hearing was a farce and say that three of the elders were always been favorable to Rev. Mr. Edwards. Another elder was disqualified from hearing the evidence because he was one of those who preferred charges, while still another is sick.

Although no statement will be made public until after the result of the trial has been given to the congregation of the church, it was evident tonight that Rev. Mr. Edwards has been exonerated of the charges. Members of the board of elders, with the exception of Judge Peter G. McIver, who has been one of the active "outs" of the congregation, were found at a harmonious gathering after the hearing was closed in the home of the accused minister.

Sitting with Chairman Burnett on the trial board which heard the charges were D. M. Silger and C. J. Upton. Judge McIver, an "out" and fourth member of the board was disqualified from sitting in judgment inasmuch as he had been one of those who made the formal complaint, and J. P. Gregg, another member is ill. Frank G. Tyrrell of Los Angeles, minister of the Christian church and attorney for the "outs" was present to care for his clients, but was not asked to appear before the examiners. Grant Holcomb of San Bernardino, attorney for the "ins" in their appearances in the Superior Court, was not present.

Witnesses from Yuma, where Rev. Mr. Edwards held a pastorate until the spring of this year, were called by both sides in the hearing. Mrs. A. E. Barnett, who came to Redlands recently after being successful in getting a judgment of $5000 against the minister in a slander suit in the Yuma Superior Court, was also called to testify. The pastor took the stand in his own behalf.

The charges brought before the church body today are the outgrowth of a trip to Yuma about two months ago by a committee representing what is now the insurgent element in the congregation. Upon the return of the committee attempts were made to present certain charges to the congregation and these attempts were fought by the minister's adherents, who desired that the officers of the church first sit in judgment.

Some time after the trip of the first committee another number of representatives also went to Yuma and returned with a refutation of the charges of the first committee and a vindication of the pastor who has said that the attempts to injure his reputation are due to his attempts to clean up crime and immorality in the Arizona city.

Bean Growers Due to Receive Second Checks

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

RESEDA, Oct. 31. — The harvest season for baby lima beans in San Fernando Valley is rapidly growing to a close and within the next week or ten days all crops will be threshed and in the warehouses of the Van Nuys and Owensmouth Bean Growers' Association. It was stated today at the marketing association's headquarters here, by J. H. Walters, manager.

First payment of $5.50 a 100-pound sack was paid to growers about two weeks ago. Second payment checks, totaling about $90,000, are again being sent out and should reach growers by Monday or Tuesday.

The first payment of $5.50 a sack was made on all deliveries up to September 1 last, and the second payment, on deliveries made up to October 15. Another dividend of one-half cent a pound will be made about the 15th inst., on all beans in the association's warehouses up to and including October 31.

EXTRA FINE ORANGES ON WAY EAST

Porterville Ships First Car of Golden Fruit, the Best in Years

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PORTERVILLE, Oct. 31.—First oranges of the 1925 season left Porterville last night, packed and shipped through the Sunflower Packing house. This record equals any previous early shipment and is better than for several seasons, according to Manager Frank T. Ritchie.

These oranges will sell on eastern markets for early November trade and were of exceptionally high quality, being of a good size and well colored. Several houses expect to start shipments next week.

Old-timers predict more fancy fruit than usual this year than for the past ten seasons, stating that the crop as a whole will run from 15 to 20 per cent higher than last year. Props are being used in the groves for the first time since 1913.

Prices this season are also higher than last year. One grove which last year sold its crop for $10,000 this season will receive $12,000 for orchard run fruit.

Alhambra No Place to Ply Liquor Trade

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, Oct. 31. — For the second time this week officers of the local dry squad succeeded in trapping asserted vendors of illicit liquor in the police net when two Los Angeles men were arrested after they are said to have delivered a quantity of whisky to Detectives Boone and Vigneau in a room at a local hotel.

Carmen Zarilla, 997 East Fifty-fifth street, and Jack Flush, 2100 Central avenue, Los Angeles, are the latest accused bootleggers to fall into the clutches of the police after agents for the local department had telephoned an order for liquor to be delivered here. Zarilla was released today after arranging for $1000 bail on charges of possession and transportation, and Flush obtained his freedom on $500 bail on a charge of possession. Their cases will come before Judge H. S. Farrell in Police Court the 7th inst.

When the pair arrived at the hotel late last night, each carrying a jug of whisky, according to the police report, Detective Boone put his hand in his pocket as though reaching for the money. Instead, he pulled out a revolver and told the pair they were under arrest.

Monday night two other asserted bootleggers were arrested when they were said to have made a delivery of liquor at Boone's home.

"Y" Worker to Accept Place in Cairo Egypt

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 31.—R. Wayne Burns, for the last five years general secretary of the Riverside Y.M.C.A., tendered his resignation to the board of directors today at a special meeting, in order to accept the position of head of the association in Cairo, Egypt. Mr. and Mrs. Burns will sail from New York December 15.

Thomas S. Caldwell, boys' secretary of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A., was unanimously chosen by the directors to fill the place, vacated by Mr. Burns. Mr. Caldwell is a former resident of Riverside, having been connected with the George N. Reynolds Department Store for a number of years before resigning to become boys' work director of the local "Y," in which capacity he served for several years, later entering into the activities in Long Beach, Los Angeles and Oakland.

READY FOR EMERGENCY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 31.—The local fire department this morning stood ready to provide salt water for fire-fighting purposes when the blowing out of a twenty-inch main at Eighth and F streets left the entire "high risk" district without water.

Failure of the gate valves to work is held responsible for the fact that all of the downtown district mains had to be shut off to get at the break. Water was cut off at 2:45 a.m. and was not restored until 7 o'clock.

ARREST POLICE OFFICIALS

Federal Prohibition Agent Starts Sensation by Sudden Action at Fresno

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, Oct. 31.—Three police officials and a former captain of police are under arrest on charges of acceptance of bribe money and corruption in a conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act and fifteen indictments of other police and private individuals are to be sought as the outgrowth of a three-year investigation of bootlegging activity in Fresno.

Under arrest are Captain of Police Albert D. Trusdell, Detective Sergeants Clifford Sayre and Guy Shoun and Ben A. Wickstrom, the latter a former captain of police and now a rancher. All were released in $10,000 bail bonds.

Shoun was the only one of the quartet to make a show of resistance when he was placed under arrest. As he was accosted by Thomas J. Nicely, prohibition agent, and advised that he was under arrest, Shoun is said to have attempted to reach beneath his left arm, as though to get his revolver, which he carried in a shoulder holster. With a lunge, Nicely leaped upon him, pinned his arms to his sides and disarmed him.

Shoun was formerly a lieutenant of police but was demoted in a recent police shake-up, which followed a change of the city administration. Chief of Police Frank Truax was pensioned as physically unfit for duty and Wickstrom resigned at that time. Trusdell at that time was made a captain.

Further arrests are unlikely, pending the meeting of the grand jury next week, according to Mr. Nicely, who conducted the investigation and made the arrests today. While Nicely declined to make any comments on the scope of his investigation, it was currently rumored in connection with the arrest of the officers that the case might hit several prominent politicians and city officials outside of the police department.

With Nicely apparently transferring a storm area to Arizona for special duty with the enforcement units there and Federal enforcement of the prohibition laws here evidently halted temporarily at least, the arrests today came as a complete surprise to all but Chief of Police E. A. Fornes, Dist.-Atty. George R. Lovejoy and the Federal authorities concerned, as Nicely was presumed to be in Southern California or Arizona. The coup which was sprung today was perfected in a dilapidated shack in the outskirts of the city where radio, telephone and many modern devices known to criminologists were in operation by the prohibition agent.

Immediately following the arrest of the four men, Dist.-Atty. Lovejoy was called into consultation and questioned them singly, he said. Two refused to talk to him, but a third is said by Lovejoy to have made some damaging admissions concerning the asserted wholesale corruption in the police department. Lovejoy declined to make known the identity of the member of the trio who is said to have revealed details of the alleged plot to protect bootleggers.

The bootlegging activities which the police are accused of having protected and for which they are accused of having accepted bribes are believed to have centered in West Fresno where hundreds of arrests have been made during the three-year period in which Nicely has been conducting his investigation.

It was in that portion of the city where Nicely last year sprang a sensational coup when he arrested ten men, among them several prominent Italians, on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act, for which they were indicted by the Federal grand jury and two sentenced to terms in the Federal prison at Leavenworth and others sentenced to the County Jail. E. Giomitti, arrested on several previous occasions for liquor law violations, is now under indictment on the conspiracy charge.

Because of the wide ramifications of the bootlegging plot and the evidence which he holds, Nicely said today that he is confident that all of the indictments sought will be issued by the Federal grand jury next week.

"The police department is but the center of the web which reaches out to a radius which is not yet wholly determined," Nicely said.

Nicely admitted that an order from Col. Frith transferring him to Southern California was a part of an elaborately prearranged plan for delving more deeply into the bootlegging plot and that through his presumed absence from the city he was enabled to work more effectively.

Several additional prohibition agents will be sent to Fresno at once to continue the investigation, Nicely announced, due to the fact that circumstances have arisen which forced him to make the arrests today before he was fully prepared to take that step. This premature closing of one phase of the investigation, however, will not injure the government's case, he said, and before the incident is closed it promises to develop into one of the biggest exposes that ever has been made in the prohibition annals of California, according to the prohibition agent.

Acting Chief of Police E. A. Fornes announced that he has been working with Nicely on this investigation for several weeks and that immediately upon the arrests of the three officers he suspended them from the police department, knowing the nature of the evidence Nicely has gathered against them.

Assisting Nicely in his campaign in addition to Dist.-Atty. Lovejoy and Acting Chief Fornes have been Constable John Ford of Fowler; George Hudson, Tulare county prohibition agent; County Detective Gail B. Campbell and Deputy United States Marshal Sidney J. Shannon.

All of the accused men declined to make a statement, and to outward appearances they were not greatly concerned over the arrests, apparently being inclined to joke about the matter when discussing it publicly.

Scion of Old Californian Family Gets License to Wed Social Worker

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Oct. 31.—Elliott Bandini, wealthy Pasadena real estate operator, obtained a license today to marry Miss Margaret C. Jamieson, prominent Red Cross and social worker. The wedding, which is to be private, will be performed in Los Angeles on Monday.

Miss Jamieson, who gave her age as 26, was formerly a resident of Montreal, Can. She attended the University of California for several months and has been prominently identified with social work.

This will be Mr. Bandini's second matrimonial venture. His first wife, formerly Mildred Schlaudeman of this city, was granted a divorce in Reno, Nev., on July 19, 1924. Her wedding to Mr. Bandini, who is a member of one of the oldest California families was a social event several years ago.

As a result of their daughter, Dolores, was awarded to the mother, but the father was permitted the right of having her for three months during the year, the court decided.

Mr. Bandini is 31 years of age and resides at 1149 San Pasqual street. Following the marriage ceremony Monday the newlyweds will depart on a wedding trip, returning here to establish their permanent residence.

This is one of the get-together functions of the Trojan Clubs of other cities previous to the homecoming of all Southern California graduates which is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, November 20 and 21, in Los Angeles.

PLENTY OF WATER

Santa Monica Official States Supply is Adequate

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 31.—The water supply of this city is sufficient to provide for a population of 86,300, including all that needed for household purposes and home yard irrigation, Mayor John Steele announced today. In pointing out that Santa Monica's water supply was superior to that of most Southern California cities, Mayor Steele declared that the city wells can produce 600 inches of water under normal conditions and in an emergency 700 inches with the present equipment.

Mayor Steele said that the 600 inches now being pumped from the Charnock wells was not lowering the water level. There are three of these wells on this property owned by the city and two or more wells could be developed there if necessary, the Mayor said. This would mean, he said, that there is water enough owned by the city to satisfy normal needs of a population of more than 100,000.

Lankershim Man Has Rodent That Banks up Burrow Just Before Deluge

LANKERSHIM, Oct. 31.—Tom Law has a pet gopher which he has tried to poison, drown and trap, but without success. He has now changed his mind and is using the gopher as a weather prophet.

Law declares that for several years he has observed that just previous to a series of heavy rainstorms the gopher throws out a large quantity of dirt, securely banking up the mouth of his burrow.

Today, Law reports, the gopher is digging away like an army of cats was behind him, which presages a cloudburst or something of the sort by November 1.

Law says there is such a thing as "gopherology," on which to base rainfall predictions, and is ready to gamble on the present behavior of his rodent pet.

ENTERTAIN SCIENTISTS

Notables Gather to Honor J. J. Carty, Vice-President of American Telephone Company

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Oct. 31.—To honor Gen. J. J. Carty, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, sixteen prominent scientists and business men of Southern California gathered for luncheon at the Valley Hunt Club here today, as guests of Dr. Robert A. Millikan, executive head of the California Institute of Technology and director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics.

Gen. Carty is known as the one individual more responsible than any other for the enormous strides that have been taken in the development of the telephone during the last decade. He is now in Southern California primarily because of his interest in the scientific work in progress at the California Institute of Technology and at the Mt. Wilson Observatory here. He visited the institute today and is planning a trip up the mountain to the observatory tonight.

Gen. Carty, who is here with Walter Sherman Gifford, another vice-president of the company, is head of the department of development and research of the organization and was one of the early associates of Alexander Graham Bell in the development of the telephone. Starting with the early experiments with the device invented by Bell, at the time thought to be little more than a toy, Gen. Carty's efforts have rapidly brought about developments little short of unbelievable, including the recent installation of transcontinental lines in this country and voice transmission to Hawaii and to France through submarine cables.

Gen. Carty is a member of the American Academy of Science, the National Research Council and other societies. He has received degrees from the University of Chicago, Bowdoin College, Tufts College, New York University, Yale, Princeton and McGill. During the war he served in France with the Signal Corps, notably as signal officer in charge of communications with the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, and at the close of the war was commissioned a brigadier-general in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

ASSEMBLY SPEAKER TO MAKE RACE

Merriam Confirms Report He Will be Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 31.—Frank F. Merriam of Long Beach, Speaker of the State Assembly, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor next year, Mr. Merriam confirmed this report today but declared he was not yet ready to make a formal announcement of his candidacy. Although his intention of seeking the nomination has been freely predicted in Southern California Republican circles during the past few months, today's statement was the first made by the Speaker.

"I am not ready to make a formal announcement but I will be a candidate and will issue an announcement at the proper time," he told reporters today.

Speaker Merriam's platform in the campaign for Lieutenant-Governor will be embodied in the announcement of his candidacy. Until this is made Mr. Merriam declined to comment on the nature of the campaign which he will go before the voters of the State in 1926. As administration leader in the Assembly, Mr. Merriam has been one of Gov. Richardson's foremost aides in fulfilling the Governor's pre-election pledges to cut the cost of State government in California.

ATTORNEY PEEVED

Says Jury's Verdict Contrary to Law and Evidence

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HANFORD, Oct. 31.—Scathingly denouncing the verdict of not guilty rendered yesterday afternoon in the Superior Court here in the case of Bert Wilson of Bakersfield, accused of a statutory crime against a 10-year-old boy last August in Armona, this county, Dist.-Atty. McKay, in a statement issued this morning, said he would request the court to convene the grand jury to investigate the case.

The verdict, he decared to be a travesty on justice and contrary to law and evidence, that it would tend to create disrespect for law, and that he had, since the verdict was rendered, been asked for the release of two other persons accused of crimes. The case occupied less than two days, including selection of a jury, and the jury was unanimous for acquittal, rendering a verdict in thirty minutes. The jury was composed about half and half of business men and farmers.

CHRISTMAS CARDS TO ADVERTISE REDONDO

REDONDO BEACH, Oct. 31.—A new and novel idea has been adopted by the Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce for wide publicity for Southern California, without cost to the chamber. A community Christmas greeting card carries a personal message with a wish that our friends might be here to enjoy our land of flowers and sunshine.

The secretary has offered the suggestion to the All-Year Club and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce that it be adopted by all communities in Southern California. This would result in hundreds of thousands of these cards being sent out each year over the entire country.

Redondo people subscribed for 5000 of these cards, receiving them at practically cost. In this way the issue is financed without expense to the chamber, and each individual gets full value for his investment.

ASKS POLICE TO FIND HER MISSING HUSBAND

PASADENA, Oct. 31. — Frantic appeals to the police to locate Willian Frahn, 397 Vista street, were made today by Mrs. Frahn, who declares her husband has been missing since Wednesday morning. He left in a sedan early that day for Glendale, where he is in business. He never returned, and all efforts to locate him have so far proved fruitless. Frahn is described as 55 years of age, heavily built, with gray hair, blue eyes and a scar on his cheek. He wore a blue suit.

Pumpkin-Faced Push Ball

WHITTIER, Oct. 31.—Those who have been accustomed to think of Whittier as the quiet Quaker village, would be amazed to behold the mirth-mad populace tonight celebrating Halloween with a big community masquerade party on the Whittier College athletic field.

While the party was planned some weeks ago by the service and other clubs and organizations of the city, the student body of the local college and football fans added a keener zest to the general hilarity, owing to the contest here today with the Occidental Tigers.

The big community party tonight was the second affair of its kind which, owing to its popularity, will probably become an annual event.

A mammoth parade formed at the public library and marched to the college grounds, where athletic and grotesque contests were held, such as the three-legged race, apple bobbing, pie eating, shoe race and a thirty-yard race for wives in costume, astride the proverbial broom.

The pumpkin-pulling contest elicited the greatest curiosity. A huge push ball, seven feet in diameter, which "Pop" Texas, physical director of the local Y.M.C.A., used overseas, after the "great unpleasantness," had been painted to represent a mammoth pumpkin, and this was used in the contest. Mr. Tooze was in charge of the athletics for the American soldiers in Europe, after the armistice was signed until the boys were sent home. The contests at the Halloween celebration were in charge of Leslie Simms and C. H. "Pop" Tooze.

CITY ELECTION

Candidate Ready for Contest at Santa Monica

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONCA, Oct. 31.—The municipal ticket for the city election December 1, which will fill three offices, that of police judge, Commissioner of Finance and Commissioner of Public Works, was complete tonight with but one candidate for the position of municipal judge, Charles A. M. Spencer, a local attorney, is the sole candidate for this office.

Opposing Commissioner Frank A. Helton, who is seeking re-election as finance chief, are J. T. Corbridge local realty man, and W. Wallace Braden. Commissioner John A. Morton will have only one man against him, Henry C. Peterson.

For two vacancies on the Board of Education there are seven candidates in the field. George Hart, one of the candidates, is seeking re-election. The others are Mrs. Blanche Carlisle and Mrs. John M. Cannon, Rex Teele, Ira D. Wheeler, Wallace Willette and D. C. Freeman.

The fight is expected to center over the office of Helton. Uncertainty of the exact status of the City Planning Commission, which has been advocated by prominent local men, caused the entrance of two opponents to his candidacy. Corbridge in an annexationist, and is expected to draw a big vote from those favoring consolidation with Los Angeles.

NEW RULES GOVERN CITY DEPARTMENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANAHEIM, Oct. 31.—One of the lengthiest and most comprehensive ordinances ever read at a City Council meeting was presented to the City Trustees at last night's adjourned session. It required more than an hour for City Clerk E. B. Merritt to read the document, which is intended to make sweeping changes in the operation of the light and water rate collection department.

The ordinance creates the office of comptroller in lieu of the present office of light and water rate collector and defines his duties, number of assistants, salaries and methods under which this department shall operate. It is intended to supersede all existing ordinances covering the operation of that department of the municipal government, according to J. W. Price, City Manager.

OXY TIGER BOWS TO TIGER CREW

Reds Bowl Over Quakers by 13-to-0 Score

Rankin, Godett Feature in Occidental's Win

Big Rock Eleven Foozles Chances to Score

BY ROBERT RAY

The Oxy Tiger came back with a snarl yesterday at Whittier where it inflicted a 13-to-0 defeat on Leo Calland's battling Poets, who were lucky that Coach Sid Nichols' charges did not run up a larger score. Oriental dominated the play from the middle of the first period on and should have scored over at least a couple of touchdowns.

As a result of the Tigers' victory and Redlands' upsetting of the Caltech Engineers, the conference race is as scrambled as a mission-sized omelet. Whittier now has the Grizzlies, the Grizzlies have Oxy and Oxy beat Whittier. Which ought to make the Oxnard sugar for wayward beet pickers the champion, or so's your old man.

Rankin, who, like Benny Friedman, is both a halfback and a punter, and Mike Gedett, one of the best ends in these parts, featured the struggle. Mishkin ran and punted like they are supposed to run back, but very seldom did, while Godett made life miserable for the Whittier punters, averaging three Poet kicks and frequently recovering the ball. In fact, it was Mr. Godett who made it possible for the Tigers to score their first touchdown, blocking one of Denny's punts and recovering on the Whittier 30-yard line, from where Oxy marched down for the score.

Brobst, Turley and Buxton did some good work in the Oxy backfield, while Terry, playing his first game at guard for the Tigers, looked good.

Denny, Pendleton and Capt. Hough did the best work for the Poets.

The Tigers were twice forced to punt from within their 10-yard line in the early part of the first period. Whittier received the ball and punted to Oxy's 15-yard line. A bad pass by Renius forced Wheeler to punt from his own goal line. Denny punted right back to the Oxy 12-yard line, and a five-yard penalty pushed the Tigers a little nearer their goal line. This time Wheeler got off a long punt to Hough who was downed in mid-field.

MISHKEN GOES OVER

After failing to make yardage in three downs, Denny again punted back to punt, but Godett broke in and blocked the kick, recovering the pigskin on the Poets' own 40-yard mark. Turley, Wheeler and Mishkin advanced the ball for a first down on the 10-yard line. Then Mishkin broke off tackle to the 3-yard line, from where Mishkin plunged over right guard for a touchdown. Mishkin's kick from placement for the extra point hit the cross-bar.

Oxy worked the ball to Whittier's 7-yard line early in the second period, but lost it on downs when Denny dropped a pass from Mishkin. Then the Poets came back, mixing passes with line plays, and advanced the pigskin for a first down on the Tigers' 32-yard line. Oxy then turned the Whittier team into a rout when he intercepted one of Denny's passes and jumped sixty-five yards for the Tigers' final touchdown. Wheeler converted this score.

The Tigers had several chances to score in the last half, but foozled

POMONA WAGES BRAVE GRID BATTLE IN VAIN

Nixon's Warriors Put Up Terrific Scrap Against More Formidable Eleven at Local Coliseum

BY PAUL LOWRY

Pomona's fighting eleven waged a surprisingly strong battle against California and the Golden Bears, minus the presence of their lean, lank coach, Andrew L. Smith, who galloped north to see Stanford play Oregon, eked out a 27-to-0 victory.

Instead of seeing a California walk-away by a 70-0 or 80-0 score, as some of the Pomona mourners had predicted, the 20,000 who journeyed out to the Coliseum yesterday afternoon, saw the Sagehens fight so hard that they made the California offense look bad.

On top of that, the Sagehens added insult to injury by crashing through the Bears' defense for six first downs and completing eight snappy forward passes to the enemy's none.

FOUR TOUCHDOWNS

California's margin of victory is represented by four touchdowns, the Bears collecting one in each of the four periods of play, and three resultant goal kicks.

Until the big end of the game, the Golden Bears played nothing but straight football. It was Jabs through the line in the first half and Griffin in the second half, and between them Andy Smith's rakish, roughish fullbacks garnered all the touchdowns—two apiece.

When California finally did resort to forward passing, the Sagehens arose to the occasion nobly and messed up the only two the Bears tried. Merritt batted the first one—a long heave to Thatcher—to the ground and Perrin was tackled from behind as he was about to pass the ball on the second try, fumbling and losing the ball to Pomona.

While there never was any doubt about the result of the game the magnificent defense of the Sagehens and their feat of making three first downs in a row in the second period and carrying the ball to the California 27-yard line, gave the cash customers plenty of thrills.

LOSE A SCORE

Once really under way the Bears generally managed to smack their way right down the field, although they lost one touchdown on the goal line when Griffin fumbled the ball and Pomona recovered on their 1-foot line in the third period.

Probably the biggest feature of the day was the tall, powerful punting of Dick Blewett, the former Manual Arts boy. Time and again during the three periods he was in the game, Blewett kicked forty-five yards from the line of scrimmage, a cool boot of 55 yards from the point where he applied his toe to the ball.

The Bears started out to play their old game of kick and wait for the breaks. It wasn't necessary, but the Bears have become so accustomed to this sort of stuff that they don't feel at home when pursuing any other practice.

In the first period, for example, Jabs would buck seven or eight yards, and then Blewett would kick. However, little Manildi, the Pomona quarter and safety man, handled Blewett's kicks so perfectly that he batted 1000 per cent all day, and the Bears' tactics of waiting for the "breaks" failed.

IMLAY BOBBLES

Capt. Imlay fumbled a punt himself and Pomona recovered, which staved off the first California touchdown until eleven minutes of play had been consumed. The march which brought the first Bear score, in which Earl Jabs was the leading character, started from the Pomona 40-yard line.

Imlay, the Bears' peppy skipper, paved the way for the second touchdown, when on a brilliant runback of a punt he made his way thirty-five yards down the field to the Pomona 9-yard line.

Opening the second period Jabs crashed through the Pomona line for the score and Blewett kicked goal.

Late in the quarter Pomona opened up with short, snappy passes over the line, which Manildi mixed up with bucks by Neher and the Sagehens made three first downs in a row, working their way down to California's 27-yard line, where they lost the ball on downs. In this sensational advance Merritt did the passing and Natland and Manildi were on the receiving end. Most of the passes were from a fake-kick formation, which fooled the Bear secondary defense and had a Pomona receiver in the clear.

KEEP IT UP

Later in the game with the Bears wised up to the tossing game of the Sagehens and playing five men on the second line of defense Pomona continued to complete passes.

After Griffin had fumbled on the goal line in the third period and Neher recovered for Pomona, Merritt booted short and outside to the Sagehen 20-yard line. The Bears walked right back to the goal line, and Griffin smashed over.

A sixty-yard march down the field brought the Bears' fourth touchdown, Griffin going over after a succession of wallops at the Pomona line.

Imlay, Jabs and Griffin were the big noise in California's victory, while the big heroes o the day for Pomona were Merritt, Neher and Manildi in the backfield and Natland, Burger, Scott and Leavitt on the line. Capt. McCully of Pomona was injured in tackling Jabs on the opening kickoff and

SAN DIEGO STATERS FORCED TO BOW TO LOYOLA GRIDMEN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 31.—Completely routed in the first half by brilliant running attack, in perfect interference of line backfield featured, the State football eleven was forced to bow to the speedy Loyola Collegiders in a fast game here 13 to 0.

Loyola rushed the ball straight down the field in the first quarter, using it in scoring position, but had an opportunity to score when penalized for holding. Curran passed to Dilley, who in turn, was out of danger when three plunges failed to gain. In a series of line plays, featuring Tun-Curran and Lowery, the Lions again worked the ball well into State territory, and Tunney scored on a 15-yard pass from Hoeffer, who converted goal.

Loyola running attack again met results in the second quarter, when the ball was worked to the State 20-yard line on straight plays, Hoeffer passed to Currin, who was knocked from his feet by the tackler, on the 3-yard mark, but recovered his feet and scored across the goal line for second Lion touchdown. The try for goal was wide.

Late in the second quarter the Aztecs tallied for the first time, when a Loyola punt was blocked behind the goal line, Loyola recovering for a safety. Again in the third quarter, the locals showed plenty of driving power, and worked the ball down the field on line drives by Hester and Deal. Hester crashed through tackle for the lone Aztec touchdown, and Mott added the extra point on a perfect kick.

Loyola was in possession of the ball during a major part of the last quarter, and threatened twice, but lacked the final punch. Summary:

STANFORD MACHINE GRINDS TO VICTORY OVER OREGON

Nevers Goes to Work in Second Half and Cardinals Pile Up Points; Lemon-Yellow Proves Game

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

STANFORD STADIUM (Cal.) Oct. 31.—The big Stanford Cardinal football machine, grinding slowly and haltingly at first, got to running smoothly and crushed Oregon under a score of 35 to 13 here this afternoon.

The Lemon and Green fighters from Eugene fought stubbornly and spectacularly against annihilation. At the end of the first half Stanford led by a single point, the score was 14 to 13. But Capt. Nevers, whose place at fullback had been occupied by Patchett, played a good part of the second half and the scoreboard told a different story. Nevers was ably seconded by Ted Shipkey, who plays end, and snags any pass within whistling distance. Hyland constributed fast open-field work. Bogue was a shifty halfback.

UNEASY MOMENTS

Vitus, Wetzel and Jones, in the Oregon backfield, caused the home-rulers some uneasy moments. Capt. Mautz played his usual powerful game at end. Jones maltreated the line in Neversesque fashion. Hyland ran the opening kickoff back seventy yards. On the next play he took the ball within inches of the goal line and Patchett carried it over for Stanford's first touchdown.

Oregon came right back with a touchdown after Vitus had intercepted a pass. Jones smashed through guard for the score.

Patchett dived over for another Stanford touchdown after Hyland had thrown a beautiful pass 35 yards into Middleton's arms, and added 14 yards with an end run.

Oregon made another touchdown in the second quarter and held Stanford scoreless. Jones scored after an aerial barrage.

TWO GAINS

In the third quarter Nevers began tearing through the line. The Nevers-to-Shipkey pass netted two gains of more than 30 yards, the second counting for a touchdown. There was no heading the Cardinals after that. Nevers punctured the line as fast as it formed, and the attack was alternated with passes. The Cardinal captain went

ENGINEERS BEATEN BY REDLANDS

Redlands's Bulldog took a strangle hold on the Caltech Engineers' football team in the first half of their contest yesterday afternoon at Tournament Park to win, 9 to 0. Caltech, which was leading the league with no defeats and one win, dropped into second place. Neither team played a brilliant game, but the Baptist backs, Ford and McGilbra, were better than anything the Engineers had to offer and the hardest-fighting team won.

Caltech was found lacking in every phase of the game. The backfield lacked punch at critical periods and the line was ripped wide open by the Bulldog forwards, Copeland, Caltech quarter, failed to take advantage of the breaks. His passing attack was poorly directed and was called for, when the weak Redlands ends were begging for attention in their direction.

McGILBRA STARS

Redlands was no phenomenon either, but at least their attack was consistent. A neat reverse play through the line worked well and netted much yardage. McGilbra, Redlands

FAMOUS RED-HEAD RUNS FOR THREE TOUCHDOWNS

Gains 363 Yards Single-Handed as Illini Ride Rough-Shod Over Eastern Outfit, 24 to 2

BY WALTER ECKERSALL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Playing the greatest game of his career, not excepting his brilliant work in the Michigan game a year ago, Capt. Harold Grange of Illinois practically singled handed defeated Pennsylvania, one of the undefeated elevens of the East, on Franklin Field today, 24 to 2.

Whatever doubt there was in the minds of eastern gridiron critics and coaches regarding the sterling qualities of this brilliant football player was settled once and for all today. His clean-cut work brought forth praise from even the Pennsylvania coaches, who claim he is one of the greatest backs ever flashed in the East.

Despite the muddy field, Harold was at his best. Aided by better interference and blocking than he has received at any time this year, Grange showed the football world and 63,000 spectators who jammed the historic playground of the University of Pennsylvania that he can gain ground if given half a chance.

LACKED INTERFERENCE

In the Iowa and Michigan games, Grange did not have the interference nor did he receive the support as well as defense was built

GOLDEN TORNADO BUT GENTLE BREEZE AGAINST NOTRE DAME

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ATLANTA (Ga.) Oct. 31.—Notre Dame, substantiating the faith of her followers that she had power to come back after her early-season defeat by Army, staged her second rally here today by defeating the strongly touted team of Georgia Tech, 13 to 0.

Tech muffed her opportunity of years to vanquish the Rockne outfit when she sent a second-string team against the Hoosiers. With the exception of Walt Godwin, at left guard, the Tech varsity viewed the clash from the side lines.

The clash exhibited a single player of extraordinary ability in Christie Flannagan, Hoosier half, around whom the Notre Dame of-

HEPBURN NABS SECOND PLACE

Damaged Cord Prevents New Record for Distance

Veteran Cooper is Third in 250-Mile Speed Test

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

Peter De Paolo

Had the winner not slowed down on account of his damaged tire, it is quite likely that Milton's record would have fallen. During the last fifty miles of the gruelling contest, De Paolo was turning laps at 121 miles an hour, whereas he had been doing close to 130 in the first 200 miles.

CINCHES SPEED TITLE

This latest victory of the sensational De Paolo cinches for him the 1925 American speedway championship.

Second place in the great New England speed event went to young Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles. Hepburn drove an excellent race and was looked upon as a likely winner all through the final laps when it was expected that De Paolo's tire would give way.

Earl Cooper, the veteran speed pilot from San Francisco, won third place after he had taken the lead from De Paolo just thirty-nine laps from the finish and sacrificed a tire in accomplishing the feat.

Fourth place went to Harry Hartz after two disastrous pit stops. One call at the pits was for a tire and the other was on account of a broken universal joint.

Tommy Milton, driving McDonagh's car during the last half of the race, was the fifth man to shoot under the checkered flag, while Earl Devore, Norman Batten, Jerry Wonderlich, Phil Shafer and "Doc" Shattuck finished in the order named, and Pete Kreis was flagged down in eleventh place.

GREAT RACE CROWD

Despite the cold, it was a great race crowd that greeted the stars of the roaring road when they welled away from the starting line. There wasn't a seat in either grand stand. More than 1000 chairs were placed in front of the stands to accommodate race-wild New Englanders.

Long after the moon had risen from behind the New Hampshire hills race fans were thronged within the inclosure of the speedway and traffic officers from Boston and many other New England cities, strove to send the speed-thrilled Yankees to their homes in five States.

Cornell Tips Columbia by Great Rally

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Cornell's plunging backs rose to their full strength today in the final minutes of the game with Columbia and defeated the New York team, 17 to 14. The Ithacans took the lead early in the first period when Carey lifted a field goal over the bar for 3 points. Later in the period, Capt. Pease for Columbia intercepted a forward pass and ran seventy-five yards for a touchdown.

In the third period each side scored a touchdown, and they went into the final period with Columbia leading, 14 to 10. Cornell advanced the ball to the 5-yard line, where Columbia held and punted out of danger but the Ithacans again paraded down the field until Wester went over and Carey added the extra point.

Colgate Trims State Eleven of Michigan

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EAST LANSING (Mich.) Oct. 31.—Colgate's fast and heavy backfield, led by Eddie Tryon, leading point scorer of the East, turned aside Michigan State's defense today to gain a 14-0 victory before 7000 homecomers.

State's defense, which had held Colgate scoreless in the first half, weakened to allow Colgate backs to score touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters. Tryon added both points after touchdown.

STANFORD FRESHMEN WIN OVER MODESTO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

STANFORD STADIUM, Oct. 31. Stanford's freshman eleven administered a drubbing to Modesto Junior College, 45 to 13, in a bruising contest preceding the varsity game today. The Modestans opened impressively scoring two touchdowns at the start. Railsback carried the ball over for the first counter and Von Tagen made the second touchdown. The Cardinal first-year men came back strong, however, and began streaking through the Modesto line for touchdowns almost at will. Hawley made a spectacular ninety-yard run for a touchdown, taking the ball from the kickoff.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

CERTAIN scurrilous remarks purporting to be a comparison between the sporting population of this community and those inhabiting what was formerly the metropolis of this State, have been brought to our attention. We admit having read them at the time of publication in an afternoon periodical, but figured that we'd try to overlook them in view of the fact that the writer thereof once published a flattering reference to ourself and therefore shouldn't be taken too seriously anyhow. But such a large number of indignant citizens have galloped into our sanctum frothing at the mouth and registering alarm in other similar ways that we figure we'll have to rush to our own rescue forthwith.

The author of the aforesaid scurrilous remarks who admits having ventured into our midst about two weeks ago after inhaling fog for most of his life, sets up several premises, to wit, viz, etc.—

(1.) There is more sport of all varieties in Los Angeles than can be found in San Francisco.

(2.) San Francisco has better sport than Los Angeles.

(3.) There is far more interest in sport in Los Angeles than in San Francisco.

(4.) There is more intelligent intcrest in sport in San Francisco than in Los Angeles.

All of which goes to show that the author of these four statements isn't such a bad guy. He's absolutely right in No. 1 and No. 3 and wrong in the other two. That makes him 50-50, which isn't such a bad average.

Having unanimously approved of statement No. 1 we now pass hastily to statement No. 2. In proof of this above remark he points out that Stanford and California and St. Mary's have excellent football teams, the inference being that they are all better than any we have down here. He mentions that the San Francisco ball club has won three Coast League pennants out of four, that Bill Johnston and Helen Wills are pre-eminent in tennis, that the California Bears have gone undefeated for five seasons and that while we have in George Von Elm the most proficient amateur golfer in the West, he's a comparatively recent arrival here from Salt Lake City. Apparently this exhausts his case, which is supposed to prove that San Francisco has better sport than Los Angeles.

Space prevents any lengthy rebuttals, but they're not so very necessary. Sport runs in cycles and if we look back a little we'll note that not so many seasons ago one of our own ball clubs won three Coast League pennants in a row. That's more than the Seals ever did. As for California's great record, how about finding out the home addresses of the members of those great California teams. Where did Brick Muller, Charley Erb, Stew Beam, Stan Barnes, Pesky Sprott, Dutch Eels, Archie Nisbet, the Blewetts, Deeds, Majors, Horrell, Hoggy Evans, and most of those Californiaswarts hail from? Eliminate those Southern California boys from California's teams and they might have gone just about that many seasons without winning a game.

When they're talking about tennis what's the matter with Mary Browne, May Sutton Bundy, Tom Bundy and one or two other stars whose record over a period of years will probably never be equaled. What about our high school sports. Have they any teams that play better football than our city schools? Where were the northern high schools in the last five or six State track meets? What about prize fights? The boys who can't get past the preliminary bouts at Vernon, Hollywood and the Olympic Auditorium are providing San Franciscans with "star" bouts. Have they anything in mind to compare with the class of performers in our local clubs? Oh, yes, now that we think of it he did say in regard to boxing that in this one sport Los Angeles need not yield the edge to the northern city.

Did San Francisco ever put on a $10,000 cash prize event for professional golfers? Can San Francisco boast as good high school athletics as Los Angeles? Has a San Francisco polo team ever won the national junior and senior championships? Has San Francisco produced anybody to equal the record of Fred and Harrison Thomson, Los Angeles boys who, between them, have won the national all-around track championship five times? Has anybody from San Francisco won two events recently at the Olympic Games? Who's going to hold the Olympic Games in 1932? We might think of a couple of hundred other questions all of which would be very embarrassing for anybody from San Francisco to answer, but those are enough.

We proceed to point No. 4 that there is more intelligent interest in sport in San Francisco than in Los Angeles. To prove this he says, "San Francisco would walk out on such a football game as that between U.S.C. and Arizona; San Francisco considers Young Stribling as something awful; San Francisco wouldn't fall for wrestling; amateur sports with the exception of football don't get a tumble in San Francisco because the San Franciscans want professional proficiency; San Francisco wouldn't fall for Paavo Nurmi." We can't answer the above charges. It looks to us as though these statements merely go to prove that either (1) the San Francisco sporting public doesn't know a good many things of sport when it sees them, or (2) the San Francisco sporting public isn't numerous enough to support more than two or three varieties of sport, or (3) there isn't enough money in the town to allow the boys to attend everything they'd like to.

Our critic gives himself away when he presents the San Francisco attitude as follows: "If the Seals were not in the race all the time and if they did not win at least two pennants out of four, probabilities are that the fans would honor the athletes by staying away from the ball park altogether—Old-timers, born in the Mission district and living there all their lives can remember back to the days when fights were fights so they make unfavorable and uncomplimentary comparisons when the present generation of ten-rounders essays to amuse."

Aha—there you have it. The only thing the San Francisco sport will support is a winner and about the only winners that the dear old place has left are the Seal ball club, the California football team and Bill Johnston and Helen Wills. But there's one sport that San Francisco will always support with enthusiasm that is heart-rending—the well-known pastime of throwing the hammers—at Los Angeles. There's an event at which the San Franciscans will never be equaled. They work at it waking and sleeping and do us more good than our Chamber of Commerce. More power to 'em.

(Note to anxious correspondents—Yes, we were born on top of one of the hills just off Van Ness avenue, but left town as soon as the fog lifted so we could find our way to the railroad station.)

Boilermakers Give Stagg Chills With Last Quarter Rally; Score is 6 to 0

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Forward passes by Taube brought Coach Stagg's gridmen nearer to defeat at the hands of the Boilermakers than at any time since 1918. Although the Maroons won, 6 to 0, it will be long before they forget either Taube or the three minutes in the final period when they were on defense with the ball on their 3-yard line. Taube's arm hurled a total of twenty-three passes during the afternoon.

Outside of the pass attack, the light Boilermaker team was unable to gain consistently.

The march that almost gave Purdue a tie and possibly a victory, came late in the fourth period.

BALL BEATS WHISTLE IN INDIANS' VICTORY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Oct. 31.—A place kick by Smith with only fifty seconds left to play, gave the Haskell Indians a 10-to-9 victory over Gonzaga University here this afternoon, in a football game that kept a crowd of 15,000 on constant edge. Except for the Haskell offense in the second period, and the last period, when both sides resorted to a passing game, the play was largely defensive and marked by numerous fumbles and penalties for both teams.

Capt. Levi's passing and plunging was a feature of the Indian play, and Smith's toe also accounted for 4 points, although his fumbles proved costly to the Kansas team. Luce was the star for the Bulldogs.

ST. MARY'S TRIPS GRIZZLIES

Southern Branch Team on Short End of 28-to-0 Game on Berkeley Grid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—St. Mary's varsity, evidently working on the old principle that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," scored 28 points in the first quarter and the first part of the second quarter against the California Grizzlies this afternoon in the Memorial Stadium and then scored no more during the rest of the game.

The Grizzlies, though showing plenty of class, especially in the passing line, were unable to break in the scoring column, and came out of the game with a nest egg only to their credit, although they came near to scoring on the Saints near the end of the first half. The Grizzlies would probably have scored if the whistle hadn't sounded for the end of the half.

The Saints used the identical end-run play that they used against California three weeks ago to score their points in today's game. Underhill and Rooney ran the Grizzly ends ragged in the first quarter using the play and the Grizzly defense was unable to meet the situation.

Near the middle of the second quarter the Grizzlies showed a decided improvement on playing, but it was too late to be of any use. A brilliant passing attack, in which Birlenback figured as the nucleus, almost allowed the Grizzlies to break into the scoring column. From this point until the end of the game the Grizzlies put up a sturdy battle and the Saints did not score again.

The Saints kept the Grizzlies busy on the defense throughout the second half of the game, so that the southern team was unable to get near enough to the Saints' goal line to score.

Cy Walton and Scribe Birlenback showed that the passing game was not all the Grizzlies had in the offensive line when they went through the Saints' line for substantial gains more or less consistently throughout the game.

Drop Poor Game to Oregon Aggies; Sweet Scores Lone Touchdown in 27-to-7 Defeat

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CORVALLIS (Or.) Oct. 31.—University of Montana made a poor attraction for the annual homecoming game against the Aggies here today. They lost 27 to 7 and never at any time was their attack sustained long enough to be dangerous. The lone Grizzly touchdown was put over by Bill Kelly, star quarterback, at the end of the third period.

Snow on the ground at Missoula has kept the Montanans from practicing for a week, Coach Click Clark said and his team plainly showed it.

The Aggies made twelve first yards. In the first half Montana did not open up her passing attack when she had a chance but when her line plays failed, gave the ball to Sweet to punt out of danger and the Aggies punted back. Sweet was the best punter but his team did not make use of the yards he gave them on exchanges.

DARTMOUTH BEATS BROWN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PROVIDENCE (R.I.) Oct. 31. Dartmouth, playing powerful football in face of an eleven weakened by injuries, defeated Brown here today, 14 to 0. The Bears displayed an unsuspected strength, but weakened toward the end when their great halfback, Keefer, was carried from the field.

Dartmouth scored twice on blocked kicks, which rolled over the goal line. The first touchdown came in the second period, when the burly Green forwards hurtled through to smother Keefer, who was kicking from his 12-yard line. The ball bounded back beyond the goal posts, and there was no defender to interfere with Lane's recovery of it.

Again in the fourth, when Mishel had been compelled to punt from behind his line, Dartmouth was through and the kick was blocked. Rubin, substitute guard, recovering for Dartmouth's second touchdown.

SEALS TABOO FUTURE SERIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31. The nine-game series between the Louisville club of the American Association and the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, which was completed yesterday, drew 39,840 spectators and grossed a gate of $23,657. The San Francisco club won the series, but the attendance and receipts were so unsatisfactory that the San Francisco management announced that it would never again engage in such a series.

"We will never play any post-season series except with the unquestioned champions of the American Association and International League," George Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco club, said today. "True, Louisville was the association champion, but its championship was clouded when it was beaten by Baltimore in a post-season series."

Crimson Squad Barely Smears Southern Team

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Oct. 31. William and Mary battled Harvard to a standstill for more than half the game today before the Crimson started a forward-passing attack which, coupled with several breaks, gave them the victory, 14 to 7.

The Southerners displayed the hardest brand of tackling seen in the stadium in years and stopped the Crimson rushing machine dead in the opening quarter. In the second period, the visitors' fleet lef halfback, Irwin, downed Stafford, Harvard quarterback, in his tracks on the Crimson 5-yard line. Three plays later he blocked Coady's punt in the Harvard 26-yard line and recovered the ball, and on the next play Davis, right end, snatched a forward pass from Matau, the Southerners' shifty quarterback, and raced over the line for the opening score.

Capt. Dolph Cheek of Harvard was sent into the game in the second half and a forward pass from the Crimson leader to Sayles, substituting for Doherty at right end, led to the Crimson's first score late in the third quarter. Sayles took the ball to the 1-yard line and Crosby went over on the next play.

Harvard's final score came late in the fourth quarter, after Davis, William and Mary center, snapped the ball over Matsu's head on the fourth down, giving Harvard a first down on the Southerners' 35-yard line.

Missouri Near Second Title; Ames Defeated

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

COLUMBIA (Mo.) Oct. 31.—Crushing Iowa State, 33 to 8, the University of Missouri today topped its highest hurdle in its drive toward a second consecutive Missouri Valley Conference football title. The victory leaves Missouri the only undefeated valley team.

After a first half in which Iowa State proved threatening time and again, Missouri smothered the Cyclones in the last two periods with an attack they were powerless to check.

Ames lost a chance for a touchdown in the final period when they fumbled on the Missouri goal line and forced the Tigers to a safety, after Richerson fumbled but recovered.

The game was perhaps the most spectacular ever played on the Rollins Field.

Swarthmore is Easily Beaten by Princeton

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Oct. 31.—Princeton defeated Swarthmore today, 19 to 7, with Tommy Dignan, Tiger halfback, featuring the work of the Princeton team. He scored two of the three touchdowns, and passed the third to Diston. Evans and Wilcox with a passing and line-plunging attack, accounted for the one Swarthmore tally.

The playing field was wet, and, mainly for that reason, Coach Bill Roper kept Slagle and Bridges, considered his best backs, out of the contest for fear of possible injuries. He wanted his men in shape for the big three games, coming on the next two Saturdays.

HOLLYWOOD DIAMOND WILL BE REVAMPED

The Hollywood Merchants' baseball grounds are being revamped and leveled for the Merchants' game with Harry Carey's Indians next Sunday. The diamond will be one of the best in the State when completed, was the statement by Bill Clark of the Clark Cement and Construction Company, who are working on the park. All championship tennis courts in Southern California are constructed by the above firm. Clark also announced that the entire field will have the same finish of a tennis court.

Harry Carey's Indians have won sixteen straight games and are rated one of the most powerful teams in the State. However, in meeting the Hollywood club they will get plenty of competition, as the Movie City outfit recently ran their total string of victories up to twenty-three and have an all-professional club.

IOWA CRUSHES WABASH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

IOWA CITY (Iowa) Oct. 31.—The University of Iowa football team played to a standstill in the first half by the light Wabash College eleven, came back in the second half and overwhelmed the little giants by a score of 28 to 7. The Iowans rolled up three touchdowns and a place kick in the last two periods. The score:

It looks as if Solly Mishkin, Oxy halfback, who has the ball and is not only the center but on the bottom of the pile-up pictured below, were due for a trip to the hospital, but he survived. In fact, Mr. Mishkin not only survived but he went touring on several long runs through the Whittier defense after the pile-up below happened. BULLDOG WINS OVER CALTECH quarter, displayed much better headwork than his opponent and helped to win his own game by putting a drop-kick between the posts in the first period.

Ford and McGilbra were the big guns of the Bulldog offensive in the first half. McGilbra kicked off to Johnson, who returned the ball to his own 20-yard line. Baker was held through the line on two bucks and then Stanton punted to the Caltech 45-yard line. Ford and McGilbra then started down the field carrying the ball through the line to the Caltech 4-yard line, where the Engineers held. Stanton kicked from behind his own goal to the Caltech 35-yard line. 10-yard pass from McGilbra to Reidman took the ball to the Caltech 15-yard line. On the third down McGilbra scored a drop-kick from the 25-yard line.

The first part of the second quarter was a nip-and-tuck affair with neither team having much of an advantage. With but a few minutes to go, Caltech opened up with a passing attack that carried the ball to the Redlands 30-yard line. A Caltech pass was incomplete and Redlands took over the ball. On the first play Ford broke through left tackle and ran 70 yards to a touchdown. Stanton, Caltech's safety man, missed the tackle and Ford sailed over the goal line yards ahead of the nearest Caltech man. The kick was blocked.

Redlands was content to let well enough alone in the second half and outfought the Engineers to keep them from scoring. Caltech opened up with a passing attack in the final periods that kept the atmosphere filled with ovals, but only two heaves were completed, the rest being grounded.

Caltech will have to improve greatly, if it is to win any other contests this season, while Redlands is still a serious stumbling block and will carry a threat till the last game is played. McGilbra is a mighty fine quarter and Ford is his equal at half.

"ISSUED" FOOTBALL SUIT KEPT GRANGE IN SPORT

"Red" Played End in High School but Without Much Success; Dad Kept Illini Star in School

BY JAMES BRADEN

Former Yale and All-American Fullback

IV—STARTING IN THE ICE BUSINESS

The summer between grammar school and high school, Red felt discouraged. He decided to give up school. His father, who was now Chief of Police of Wheaton, had other ideas. "You can either go to school or go to work," said Red's dad. "I want you to go to school, but there will be no loafing."

"If it had not been for my father during those days, I should have become a bum," says Red.

RED GRANGE

He entered Wheaton High School and was impelled to go out for the football team. There seems to have been something fateful in the movements of Red toward the high places of football, yet, time after time, he almost abandoned the game. The thing which impelled him to go out for the team in his high school days was that he received his equipment free.

"That was my first 'issued' football suit and it certainly made me feel good," says Red in telling of his experiences. "Formerly I had been cutting off old pants and sewing them up and so gathering a heterogenous outfit together. I felt now that as I had a suit, I'd better play."

WAS HAPPY THEN

He started as an end. A picture of the team shows much happiness in the faces of the boys. Red at the present time has a face with many lines of care, worry and loneliness. That high school freshman football picture is the last one in which he seems carefree.

"It was so funny to be out on the field before a crowd," says Red, speaking of the first game. "Everybody seemed to be watching me. I felt so nervous and self-conscious that I wished I hadn't told them I'd play."

The boys won the game that day. They won one other contest that season. It was not a remarkable beginning. There was not much coaching at Wheaton High School during Red's first two years. The boys' team was rather a hit or miss affair. At his wing position, young Grange did not set the world on fire. He did become more interested in the game than at any previous time, and the desire to become a better player took firm root in his mind.

It was easy for him to make the basketball team and the track team as a freshman. In those lines of sport he excelled. Especially promising was he on the track. "I believe that the track is the great place to build up a strong athletic body," says Grange.

Red's father was agreeably surprised when his son approached him that spring and said something about working during the summer vacation.

Remembering several things about the joys of caddying on the golf links, Red advanced the idea that he was getting too big for such employment and casually suggested working on an ice wagon.

"Why, you can't stand that hard work," said his father. "That's the hardest job there is."

"If I can get the job, will it be all right?" asked Red.

"Sure," answered his dad.

HE FOOLED BOSS

A 16-year-old high school freshman with red hair approached L. C. Thompson, who had an ice plant in Wheaton, and asked for a job on the delivery truck that summer.

Thompson looked at the candidate and was not impressed.

"You see that 125-pound cake of ice there?" he said. "Well, if you can shoulder that, I'll give you a job. I'll bet you a dollar in addition that you can't do it."

them with dumb plays such as passing over the goal line. Mishkin put Oxy deep in Whittier territory in the third period when he ran twenty-five yards around right end on a reverse to put the ball on the 38-yard line. After three plays had failed to make much ground, Wheeler attempted a place-kick from the 40-yard line, but the ball was short, sailing under the cross-bar.

Godett blocked another punt and recovered on the Whittier 15-yard line later in the same quarter, but an incompleted pass over the goal line spoiled this chance to score.

Just before the third period ended, Mishkin got loose for a fifty-yard runback of a punt, being downed on Whittier's 35-yard line after he had shaken off a trio of Poet tacklers. Denny intercepted Mishkin's pass on the 5-yard line soon after the final period started, to stop this Tiger thrust.

WHO LOST HIS GOAT?

Along about this time somebody's goat wandered out on the gridiron and the contest was halted while all the small boys of Whittier took the field and staged a goat chase that would have been befitting for Catalina Island. There is a rumor that it was Whittier's goat, but there is a chance that it might have been Leo Calland's. Anyhow, it was a good-looking goat.

Coach Nichols sent in a couple of fresh halfbacks, Buxton and Brobst, in the final part of the game, and these two twice packed the ball to within scoring distance, but always something prevented them taking it over. Oxy was on the Whittier 10-yard line when the game ended. Line-up:

MIGHTY GRANGE DEFEATS PENN

port from his line. The same was true of the Nebraska struggle in which Harold was tackled before he reached the scrimmage line on the majority of his ground-gaining attempts.

In the last week, however, Coach Zuppke constructed an interference and taught his forwards a few of the finer points of blocking. Today's game is a reward for Zuppke's determination and ability to do things at unexpected times.

In order to show how thoroughly Grange performed today, it may be said that he scored three of the four touchdowns. On the other occasion he placed the ball on the six-inch line and then Earl Britton plowed through center for the other touchdown. Earl Daugherty missed all goals, as it was practically an impossibility to boot the wet and heavy ball with any degree of accuracy.

Grange carried the ball from scrimmage on thirty-six occasions for a total yardage of 363 yards. His longest run was 59 yards from a kick-off, while his dash for Illinois' first touchdown was 55 yards. His other long runs measured 30 and 20 yards.

To show how completely Illinois outplayed the Ben Franklins, the western eleven made twenty first downs against three for Penn. Illinois completed three out of six attempted forward passes, while Penn completed nine out of nineteen, the majority of which were just over the scrimmage line when long yardage was needed for first downs.

The dazzling attack which Illinois sprung completely baffled the local eleven, which had not seen the Orange and Blue use it in any of the former games. Zuppke went back into his bag of tricks and pulled a play which he used when he coached the Oak Park (Ill.) High School. It was a formation from a place kick in which a forward pass was made. This was followed by a lateral pass and Grange scampered over the line for a touchdown.

Illinois attack, however, was stronger than at any time this year. Coach Zuppke crossed the Penn scouts by completely reversing it. In the games Illinois has played this year, the play was generally sent to the strong side. Only occasionally was the ball carrier sent on the weak side.

COULDN'T SOLVE ATTACK

Today the offense was launched behind an unbalanced line but most all plays were sent back on the weak line. When the Zuppke eleven sprung an unbalanced line, Penn linemen shifted a position to meet the expected attack. Instead of the play going on the strong side, Grange would scamper off the weak side. Harold either cut in off the tackle or he swept the end.

Pennsylvania was unable to solve this attack until the second half when Coach Young had told his players not to shift so much. They were given these instructions between halves.

On this same formation with a shifted backfield and unbalanced line, Daugherty and Britton were used on short bucks into the line. This sort of play also gained many yards, while the forward pass was used a few times with Kassel on the receiving end.

While Grange was the show as far as Illinois is concerned, the playing of Daugherty is deserving of great praise. This player crashed through the Penn line on several occasions for gains which made first downs. The Illinois back had a pleasing habit of slicing to either side after he had crossed the scrimmage line and this clever little trick added many yards to his team's total.

UTAH TRAMMELS BRIGHAM YOUNG

NAVY SUNK BY MICHIGAN MEN

Passes, Not Torpedoes, Used to Conquer Middies

Tricky Yost Eleven Thumps Annapolis, 54 to 0

Modern Football Shows Up Old-Fashioned Game

BY JIM CRUSINBERRY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) Oct. 31.—It was clearly demonstrated here today that the Navy cannot survive an aerial attack. With a maze of forward-pass plays, double passes, delayed passes and criss-crosses, Michigan sunk the Annapolis Midshipmen on Ferry Field by a score of 54 to 0. It was the first time the Navy eleven ever came west for a battle, and it probably was the worst defeat it has had in twenty years.

Michigan's throng of rooters, 47,000 strong, were set for a close and intense battle. But the Michigan team won by such an overwhelming score that tonight Michigan feels sorry for the Middies. They didn't even do a snake dance when the affair was over. The Navy had fought gamely to the end without a chance. When it was demonstrated on the field that the Navy was helpless, one felt like saying, "Don't cheer boys, the poor devils are dying." Michigan had a wonder team on the field. It is hard to believe there is a team in the country that could have beaten Mr. Yost's outfit on this occasion. They were pointed to perfection. In the first quarter they scored 21 points, more than the most optimistic rooters had hoped for in the entire game.

BENNY STANDS OUT,

If any one man stood out, it was young Benny Friedman, who hurled forward passes with accuracy and abandon, time after time. No less than eight of them were completed during the fray. Besides that, Benny was a regular whirligig in carrying the ball. And it was Benny who was the field general. His selection of plays was something that would make any general envious. He soon found that the Navy had a stonewall line, so he seldom tried to puncture it. Instead, he employed tricks and passes that sent Michigan men around the ends and so bewildered the Navy players that they were helpless.

Benny Oosterbaan, the sophomore end, covered himself with glory by being on the receiving end of most of the passes and Battering Bo Molenda stood out for his great defensive playing, but found it tough to do his line-plunging stuff against the Navy line. However, he did tear through once for 18 yards and a touchdown. Michigan played more new football today than any team ever did in one game, and yet part of its new stuff was the same thing that Yost used with his famous team of twenty years ago, the old, time-worn criss-cross. He played that old trick on the Navy two or three times with great success. He got two touchdowns with it.

Michigan hasn't a team that can batter its way to victory, because of its superior strength. Michigan hasn't a Red Grange to build plays around. There are no great stars on the entire squad. It is doubtful if the Wolverines could even have scored today on the Navy team if they had played the same kind of football the Navy played.

YOST'S TEAM TRICKY

It took Mr. Yost a long time to become convinced of the possibilities of the modern game, but now he has perfected a modern team and equipped it with a repertoire of new stuff that surpasses them all. Michigan is not a strong team. It was a tricky one.

On the other hand, the Navy was old-fashioned. It would have been as sensible to have tried to win the recent World War with the battleship Constitution as to have tried to win this football game with the stuff displayed by the Annapolis eleven, they were fifteen years behind the times.

Once during the game, in the final quarter, when the team opened up a bit, it succeeded in completing a forward pass for a gain of about 20 yards. At all other times, the Navy eleven gave a pitiful exhibition of modern stuff. The boys didn't know the forward-passing game, nor did they know how to stop it. Not over five times in the entire battle were they able to make a first down.

H.A.C. MAKES CALL FOR MELON-TOSSERS

Coach "Chuck" Kearney of the Hollywood Athletic Club basketball team announced last night that the squad would hold its first practice of the year tomorrow night, starting at 8 p.m. Any former basketball player who thinks he can make the team is invited to come out and try for a berth. Kearney stated he would give them all a fair chance and that no man on the team now was sure of his job.

The Movie City five made quite a record last year and expect to do even better this year. Games will be played with the University of Southern California, the Oregon Aggies and several other organizations before entering the local A.A.U. Basketball League. Kearney also stated that if his squad won the local championship the team would go back east for a crack at the national title.

READY FOR SKI-ERS

Lake Arrowhead's ski jump is now six feet high at the take-off and the longest jump is seventy-five feet. The first contest of the winter will be held next month at the lake.

RUIZ WINNER OF FOREIGN CROWN

MADRID, Oct. 31.—Antonio Ruiz of Spain, won the European featherweight championship tonight by defeating Henri Hebrans of Belgium in eight rounds. Ruiz won by a technical knockout, Hebrans being unable to get up from his corner when the bell rang for the ninth round. The Belgian was near an actual knockout in the eighth.

CALGLASCO PLAYS MONTEBELLO NINE

The fast Montebello baseball club plays host to the Calglasco team of this city this afternoon on the Montebello diamond. The "glass house gang" claim to have a speedy outfit and are out to stop the Montebellans in their tracks. Manager Louis of the Montebello club has Lefty Williams to shoot at the Glassers and Kenny Emans will receive his slants behind the bat. Lefty says he won't be satisfied until he pitches a no-hit, no-run game, since he was so near it last Sunday. He allowed only one hit and that came in the last inning off the bat of Walt Slagle, former major-league pitcher. Briggs and Ingle, popular Montebello athletes, are playing bang-up ball at short and second, and Emans and Hatch are leading the club at bat.

HUSKIES BOWL OVER COUGARS

Bagshaw's Eleven Hangs Up 23-to-0 Triumph

George Wilson Important in Grid Victory

Cutting's 90-Yard Dash to Touchdown Features

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PULLMAN (Wash.) Oct. 31.—The Washington Purple tornado blew the grass roots out of the Washington State turf in a smashing first-half attack here today. Three touchdowns accounted for twenty points and a fourth-period drop kick by Quarterback Guttormsen from the 32-yard line added three more for a total score of 23 to 0.

Washington got the jump on Washington State on the very first play after the kick-off when Guttormsen slipped by the Cougars' left tackle for 4 yards, aided by splendid interference. Before the startled Cougars could recover from the inertia of the Husky attack, George Wilson had bucked in great smashes to within the 5-yard line, when Patton and Tesreau carried it over, some eight minutes after the game started.

CUTTING RUNS 90 YARDS

Shortly afterward, in the same period, Cutting, a Washington end, intercepted a Cougar pass on his own 10-yard line and ran 90 yards down the side line for a second touchdown.

And just before the half ended, Martin of Washington State fumbled a punt on his own 21-yard line. This same slippery young Mr. Cutting recovering for Washington. Four line plays gave Washington first down on the Cougar 9-yard line, whereupon another young Washington gentleman named Beck, who had replaced George Wilson, whizzed a swift pass across the scrimmage line to Mr. Cutting deep in the end zone, who grounded it without objection for the third touchdown.

Guttormsen kicked two of the goal points, but missed the third. This ended the Washington scoring except for Guttormsen's drop-kick in the fourth period.

The first touchdown was earned by Washington all the way through, but the second and third, both following breaks, were very much in the nature of gift scores, due to Washington State nervousness and blunders. Be it said, however, that the Huskies showed both power and resourcefulness in taking advantage of these breaks and passed up few chances to fatten the score.

In the second half Washington State got over its fright and gave Washington a battle, outplaying the Huskies most of the way, but it was too late.

All through the third and fourth quarters, the Cougars were savagely on the aggressive. Three or four times they marched or passed deep into Washington territory and just before the game ended, two brilliant forward passes carried them from midfield to a first down on the Washington 1-yard line.

W. S. C. LACKED PUNCH

But in the pinch Washington State lacked the punch. Washington held for downs on the two-foot line, stopping four ferocious assaults. On the other occasions Washington intercepted passes or slowed up the advance of the Cougar so that he had to kick. Twice in the third period Quarterback Meeker of Washington State attempted place kicks, the first time, after being stopped on the 28-yard line, the next time on fourth down, on the Washington 18-yard line.

But the Washington line charged so hard that both attempts went wide. Washington State made some beautiful gains in this half, both in rushing attack and on passes, but appeared to lack resourcefulness in the goal line emergency.

Washington, on the other hand, looked very good indeed in spots, especially when her great line plunger, George Wilson, was in the line-up. Wilson showed everything today that has been said of him during the brief period he played. It was while he was in that Washington scored her first touchdown and got the jump on Washington State. After he went out, half the drive of the Washington attack seemed gone. Wilson would probably have shown even better but he left a sick bed in Seattle to make the trip.

ONEONTA ACADEMY WALLOPS PACIFICS

Oneonta Military Academy became the outstanding choice for the military academy title here yesterday, when the husky eleven from that institution walked over the Pacific Military Academy squad by a score of 76 to 0. William and Arthur Benoist, and Barnes and Enz, who comprised the victorious backfield, buzzed their way around the Pacific ends for most of the gains. The Oneonta squad started out with a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, and Pacific never had a chance thereafter.

RAILSPLITTERS TAKE ON POLY

Title Contenders to Clash on Grid This Week

Lincoln After Revenge for Last Year's Defeat

Mechanics Made Favorites to Topple Bengals

The grid squads of Polytechnic and Lincoln, contenders for the City League championship, are scheduled to tangle in an elimination contest this week, but just where the battle between the two strong prep elevens will be staged has not yet been decided. However, whether the teams clash in an alley, somebody's back yard or on a regulation gridiron, it's bound to be some battle, because Coach "Rajah" Van Pelt's Railsplitters are "after" the Mechanics.

"HAPPY" VAN PELT

Never in the history of the City League has Lincoln thumped a Polytechnic eleven, but in the last two years the Mechanics have won out by the narrowest of margins. Two years ago Poly won in the last few minutes of play when Cody, a tackle, intercepted a Lincoln forward pass and ran sixty yards for the deciding touchdown. Last fall the Mechanics didn't beat the Railsplitters until the last six seconds of play when Ed Griffiths plowed over for a touchdown that gave Poly a 13-to-7 victory. Lincoln was leading, 7-to-6, when Griffiths scored to conclude a desperate last-minute Poly rally.

DEFEAT RANKLES.

That last defeat especially rankles in the minds of the Railsplitters, for had they won from Poly they would have had a chance to play L. A. High for the championship. Up until the Poly game Lincoln had won four games in a row and wanted to finish with a perfect record. That's the closest Lincoln ever came to a City League football title and the Railsplitters want revenge.

The Railsplitters, so far this season, have won two games and lost none. They have a husky forward wall, which includes such linemen as Nickelr, Pagenkopf, Glasser and McCue, and a little Japanese end, Hamamoto, who has been showing up well. In the backfield, the Lincoln threat is formed by Eve Pusich, a brilliant and speedy young gent, and Ray Chandler, a tough line plunger. Capt. Bill Medanich and Russ Strift complete the ball-packers, while Jimmy Roselli acts as quarter. Medanich, although he does not scintillate in ground-gaining, is a demon on defense and runs fine interference. Medanich goes to it that Pusich and Chandler get out where they can do their stuff.

While the Lincoln team is good, Coaches Van Pelt and Archie Nesbit are not satisfied with it so far. To date the Railsplitters have not shown the same continued driving attack that they possessed last season. However, the Orange and Black squad drew a bye last week and will have had plenty of time to have developed this strong offensive by the time the Poly game rolls around.

POWERFUL OUTFIT

Voyle Brennen's Mechanics have proved themselves as a powerful outfit and are favorites to down the Railsplitters this week. Still, the Mechanics may have an off day, as football teams will have, and it would not be considered such a terrible upset if the Lincoln team won Friday.

The Poly line is improving rapidly, Brennen having changed the Mechanic forward wall from a flock of green but heavy players, into a somewhat smooth-working crew. In the backfield, the Mechanics have the best set of ball packers in the loop in Capt. Jack Murphy, Ed Griffiths, Maury Lauterman, Burnett Stephens and "Chili" Carroll. There isn't the threat that Bill Ford gave the backfield last season, but it has plenty of power and an ability to drive a long way for a touchdown, if needed.

At any rate, it looks like a hot battle when the Mechanics and Railsplitters collide.

SANTA MARIA HIGH

The locals whalked up another victory last Saturday against the Lompoc eleven, after much fumbling and loose playing. The first half was held to a 0-to-0 score, but in the last two rounds the ball was passed over the whalks like three times. The game on the whole was nothing to shout about, if the playing is to be taken into consideration.

Ed Smith, a newly discovered halfback, was brought from behind the curtain and he was almost always a sure yardage maker. He is slight, but very speedy.

Johnny Hyer, running true to form, played an almost perfect game. Although handicapped by weight, he is speedy and shifty on his feet. He is very adept running the ball back.

Al Taylor, playing half, was also a good ground gainer in the Lompoc performance. Al hits like a streak of ball lightning.

Gill and Hughes, the charging linemen, did real work in the last half, but should have opened up sooner.

Hank Rojas, the captain and speedy back, was out of the Lompoc game, due to injuries received in the Taft game. It is hoped that he will be in the fray with the Santa Barbara-Santa Maria bunch Saturday.

POLYTECHNIC

Bud Rohrig, end on the 1923 Poly varsity, is now playing right end for the Stanford frosh. Will Ford, last year's star halfback, is now performing for the U.S.C. yearlings, so when the two teams, not the former teammates were on opposite sides of the battle.

Brady, husky guard on the Poly varsity, is out for practice again. He has been on the sidelines with a bad leg. He is the heaviest man on the team and is capable of filling a very large hole.

Jimmy Smith, another member on the invalid list, is still in bad. He will not be able to play this season.

It will be at least a week before Al Bailey and Lagasse, lightweight stars, will be able to play. Both of them have been on the sick list with two bones broken in their left hands.

The Poly lightweights cleaned the slate by defeating Huntington Park by a score of 6 to 0.

Joe Shaza, Poly end, was the hero of the game when he picked up a fumble in midfield and ran for the only touchdown.

JUDGE MUST BE BASEBALL FAN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—Nine boys whose ages ranged from nine to fourteen, were sentenced to form a baseball team, when they appeared before Magistrate Lasch in Juvenile Court here on a disorderly charge.

PART-TIME HIGH

Coach Daugherty is using every conceivable means to bring attention to the front. He gave the Part-Time Athletic Association members a real treat by bringing four prominent local grid stars to a recent meeting to show the "budding athletes" how it's done.

Those visitors, who are fellow-pigskin tossers of the Occidental varsity, were Bud Tennant, end, and stars heretofore, Turner, fighting half and former shotput champ of the California High School Conference; E. Cryan, guard, known as one of the State's famous football guards, and Sergio Fusco, a snazzy fullback.

These fellows, who are members of Daugherty's day physical training classes, will be present at future meetings of the P.-T.A.A. to give a few pointers on "the what and why of the game. The coach expects to secure other famous stars of the grid, planned any clodpoppin to aid him in coaching the boys. This plan is not only beneficial to the noncollegiate members, but will also provide valuable experience for those college men, the majority of whom expect to be coaches in the future.

The boxing meet, which is being planned about the last of November, will also be fathers' night. All the dads will be invited down to see the big tournament, which will be the first athletic night to be put on by the athletic association. A few of the fathers that will defend the Gray and Cardinal colors are Cleghorn, light heavyweight, and Abe Fisher, welterweight.

The outstanding team and the water nuts team are improving rapidly. Many of the boys on the last year's outstanding team have not lost their speed, according to a recent meeting. Joe Smith, famous basketball swimmer, made fifty yards in 27 seconds, slipping off 4 seconds of his last year's record. Pat Ralph has also shown a great form as a fancy diver.

Girls of the athletic association are completing plans to help make the association one of the biggest and greatest student organizations of the school. Every Wednesday night, the girls meet for the election of officers.

At the meeting the girls decided on the forming of basketball, volleyball and swimming teams. They also discussed hiking, beach parties and other social events.

FAIRFAX HIGH

The new bleachers at Fairfax have just been completed and will be ready for use by the students for the athletic field, which is considered one of the best in the city. The feature of the track field is the fact that it has a 220-yard straightaway. Few high schools in Southern California can boast of this feature.

In addition to the new bleachers, the Board of Education is passing the Fairfax field a check to settle field with a generous amount of sawdust. Loads of sawdust have been scattered about the field.

Fairfax will this year, for the first time, have an automobile team, because of the fact that automobiles there from other schools are now eligible. Fairfax, in fact, has one of the best cars in the city, owned by Fred Wadley, who won the 220-yard swimming event in the recent Y. M. C. A. public competition for all high school students.

Coach Ray Call, head of the athletic department and baseball coach at Fairfax, has been making quite a name for himself as a lieutenant in the Reserve officers' training corps. He has been assigned to the college football games played at the Coliseum.

Robert Eller, lightweight football player, who played a wonderful defensive game in the Bell-Fairfax football game, is out later in the game slightly injured.

The lightweight football team has been formed by Eve Pusich, a brilliant and speedy young gent, and Ray Chandler, a tough line plunger. Capt. Bill Medanich and Russ Strift complete the ball-packers, while Jimmy Roselli acts as quarter. Medanich, although he does not scintillate in ground-gaining, is a demon on defense and runs fine interference. Medanich goes to it that Pusich and Chandler get out where they can do their stuff.

While the Lincoln team is good, Coaches Van Pelt and Archie Nesbit are not satisfied with it so far. To date the Railsplitters have not shown the same continued driving attack that they possessed last season. However, the Orange and Black squad drew a bye last week and will have had plenty of time to have developed this strong offensive by the time the Poly game rolls around.

TUSTIN UNION

The mighty Fullerton scrub put the skids under Tustin's gridiron machine last Friday, defeating it by a 32-to-0 score last Friday. The game was not quite as one-sided as the score seems to indicate, for the Tustin team put up a stubborn fight against the heavy and experienced Fullerton team. Coach Smith of the Fullerton team has the pick of last year's varsity squad and has this year's team, so the game was not quite as bitter and hard to take.

The game was quite rough and there were many penalties on the Fullerton team. During the game Fullerton was penalized fifty-five yards in penalties on the Fullerton squad.

The real thrill of the game came in the third quarter when the Tustin squad started down the field and carried the ball to the 5-yard line before they were stopped, but only after an eighty-yard advance on a pass attack.

The line-ups for the game were:

Tustin		Fullerton
Gray	L.E.R.	Brandell
Mavis (C.)	L.T.R.	Nuttall
Crowder	L.G.R.	Dunn
C. Crawford	C.	French
Meister	R.G.L.	Burton
Cook	R.T.L.	Fuller
C. Crawford	R.E.L.	Fulerton
Tabary	Q.	Yerby
Hall	L.H.R.	Yerba
Melatino	R.H.L.	Rainer (C.)
Lolford	F.	Dunbar

BELMONT HIGH

Hodges, Belmont right halfback, did some snappy playing in the Fairfax game and put the ball over for Belmont's only score. Capt. Thomas was also a star performer in the line up in the backfield, due to his plunging ability.

Fairfax did all their fighting at the first and showed the ball over for their points, but Belmont came back the last half and held them to their stuff. The lightweight game ended 12 to 6 with Belmont supporting the heavy end of the score.

There was a good turnout from both schools which is not always the way at a lightweight game.

The varsity game was played the Friday after the lightweight game. Belmont came out on top again with a score of 32 to 0.

Belmont lowers started fighting from the whistle and hooked the ball over for 6 points without even letting Fairfax see the ball.

Ziskind, Swede Williams and Rousseau were Belmont's point makers. Capt. Orval Pyeatt played his first game since his arm was injured.

Fairfax started a passing game in the third quarter, but it proved unsuccessful. Belmont also tried some passes that were completed.

ALHAMBRA HIGH

Coach Stoddard has been looking over the track material for early training. He is confident that he will have something on the ball-packing for this season. John Adkins, Lee Phillips, Bacigalupi and Frye are expected to shine this year. "Mac" Thompson is expected to go his stuff in the pole vault.

Coach Downing has been giving his basketball team early practices. Official practice has not yet been called, but there are about thirty-five fellows out looking them over.

Alhambra is out to avenge her football defeats this year. The stars are Capt. Phil Mills, "Dene" Fulton, Fred Filsaker and Frank Clements.

Coach "Bo" Wilson is expected to have a good 150-pound basketball team. His team took the Central League title on a technicality last year. He will probably have a team to be reckoned with in the Coast League.

The tennis round robin came to a close last week. This week Coach R. E. Horne is going to start the doubles tourney. Big Blonde and Little Blonde should cop the honors with little difficulty. The race will be for second place between Wolf and Rowley and Mashlowe and Sullivan.

It is believed that the big game of the season for Alhambra will be played on Thanksgiving Day at South Pasadena. Alhambra and South Pasadena have been rivals ever since the schools have been in existence. South Pasadena is favored to win, but the Moors are going to give them a fight.

BEAR IS AFTER HUSKY

Coach Ky Ebright of the University of California rowing squad believes his varsity eight-oared crew will have its best chance to stop Rusty Callow's University of Washington crew when they race next spring. California has five of this year's varsity crew and the entire freshman eight which defeated the Washington Babes last spring.

TOILERS MEET PIONEERS NEXT

Coliseum Will be Scene of Annual Battle

Hollywood Outfit Journeys to Franklin Field

Easiest Game for Foothill Team This Season

Last year Los Angeles High School defeated the Manual Arts eleven by a single touchdown and completely ruined any aspirations the Toilers might have had of becoming city champions. Since that time relations between the two schools, in an athletic way, have been very keen. The two squads will tangle in a feature event at the Los Angeles Coliseum next Friday afternoon, where the Artisans will do their worst to spoil the Romans' chances for another championship.

HERBERT WHITE

Manual Arts is practically out of the running for anything better than third place, but it is often the cellar team that trips up a coming squad in the most unusual upsets. The Toilers would like nothing better than to set Coach Eddie Rich's Blue and White team in the corner, and Sid Foster is a very capable mentor when it comes to upsetting the dope.

Manual Arts has but one ace, namely, Junior Hanford, and his work up to date has been featured by streaks of brilliance, but at other times he has been unable to get started. This year's Toiler team is one of the weakest ever turned out at the school. The line has been unable to hold and outside of Hanford the backfield carries but little punch.

FAST GAME

It will be a game between a fast-passing team and a squad playing straight football. The Roman mentors have developed the forward pass to a fine point, while the Toilers depend on end runs and off-tackle bucks for their gains. Every one of the Roman backfield men passes and in DeFord and Lyons the Pioneers have two of the best wing men in the city prep ranks. Almada, all-city half of last year, is without doubt one of the outstanding players in the league. He passes accurately up to fifty yards, runs with the ball and kicks. Moses is another fine fullback and a demon at line plunging. Smith, a negro, has also shown great form to date. He is fast on his feet and plays a heady game of ball.

At last Hollywood gets time out for a short breath, but it will not be any more than they deserve after the tough schedule the Movie City eleven has played in the early games of the City League season. They opened the 1925 season with a tilt against Poly which they lost, followed with the Manual game which they won and proved Sid Foster's squad to be not a very strong contender for the bunting. Then came the game last Friday with the Pioneers, which was the first struggle for the Los Angeles High team. This Friday comes the breathing spell, which is the game with Coach Lopez's Franklin High outfit.

TAKE BREATHING SPELL

This is referred to as a breathing spell in a comparative sense, for the Kiteflyers are not a strong outfit and alongside of the fights the Foothillers have had against their three other opponents the game looks like much less of a battle.

Undoubtedly the Printers will put up their best in an attempt to win, but the dope will have to be upset much more thoroughly than it has been so far in this season of upsets for the Franklin rooters to see their team victors in the struggle at the York Boulevard school.

STANFORD

Wardie Poulsse has been sojourning in the local hospital at various times during the past two weeks. The giant tackle contracted a cold while on the trip south and has had a hard time shaking it off. The few minutes he played in the Oregon Aggie game did not help it any.

It must give Pop Warner great satisfaction to watch Frank Wilson, halfback on the frosh eleven, perform in the preliminary game each Saturday. The former Huntington Park man only weighs 150 pounds, but will make a great bid next year for the place left by Ernie Nevers' graduation. His punts are around 50 yards and in the open field he is a difficult target for any tackler.

Three P. A. A. championship swimming events were held in the Encino pool yesterday. The men were the 500-yard free style, the 220-yard breast stroke, and the pentathlon, consisting of five events. Stanford was represented in the pentathlon by Bob Williams, sprint star, and Ted Smith, varsity diver.

Arrangements have been made for the University of California, Southern Branch, and the Stanford varsity golf teams to tangle on November 14, at the Burlingame links. This is the first of the gridiron struggle between the two institutions. It is anticipated that Capt. Turnbull will bring a strong squad from the South. Lant, Merkley, Sayer, Edmonds, and two others will represent the Cardinals.

BAY LEAGUE GIRLS

Preparatory to the field events, at the Los Angeles Coliseum and the Pasadena Rose Bowl in December and January, girls of the Bay District Lacrosse League are working out weekly on the Venice High School grounds under the direction of Coach Jack Hooper and assistants.

Besides forming lacrosse teams, the athletic managers are also organizing hockey, basketball and relay squads from among the lacrosse-playing groups.

The Bay region basins have been working out for nearly a month now and are eager for competition. Challenges will soon be issued to various lacrosse teams of the south.

It is expected that the Bay girls will be soon in action for the first time when new uniforms, ordered some time back, are donned. Besides participating in numerous contests, the Bay lacrosse girls annually have big social seasons. The first social event will be announced soon.

LONGEST DROP KICK

The longest field goal from a drop kick ever made in intercollegiate football was the 62-yard goal scored by Mark Payne of Dakota Wesleyan in 1915.

COLORFUL CAPTAINS

BY FEG MURRAY

Here are some 1925 football captains who are colorful in name as well as in their playing. Brown of Michigan, and Gray of Penn State, are the two most famous, but White of Louisiana College and Green of St. Bonaventure also carry out the general color scheme. Brown and Gray and White are all centers which is rather a coincidence, while Green is halfback.

There is another Capt. Brown, too, tackle at Colorado College, and another Capt. White, full-back of the University of Tennessee Doctors. And don't forget Capt. Rose of Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C., another "colorful" fullback.

Basil Gray, younger brother of the late Alexander Gray, who was also a star center at Penn State and captained the team in 1910, is serving his second year as leader of the Nittany Lions. Gray was one of the few men who ever held the honor at State College during their junior year, and he was also captain of the Freshmen team. Basil either intercepted a pass or recovered a fumble in every game in 1923. Injuries kept Gray out of the first games of this season.

OCCIDENTAL

As a result of the arrangements made between Los Angeles and Polytechnic High schools, Occidental College and Joel Peter, the manager of the Coliseum, football fans will see one of the most colorful games that could be offered in this part of the State. The two prep teams meet in their grudge battle as a curtain-raiser for the Occidental-University of Hawaii game on Thanksgiving Day.

The Hawaiian team has defeated everything in sight on the islands so far this season and are reported to be even stronger than they were when they whipped up the Tigers in Honolulu last year. The long trip that a team has to take when making such a journey often spells defeat for the visitors, but the Hawaiians are in good condition to beat Occidental on the Tigers' own stamping ground.

Patterson Field, the college gridiron, will be a scene of activity this week, according to the announcement from the athletic office stating that a turf field will be planted immediately after the game this year. The baseball diamond will also be planted in grass.

A turf baseball diamond for a college team to play on is almost an unknown thing in these parts. Caltech is the only college that has such a diamond and that was due to the fact that the Chicago Cubs did their early season training there a few days earlier in the third quarter.

Coach Cook Smith has discovered four new men that will bolster up the already strong freshman team. Harlan Wilson and Ed Brun are the new men at guard positions, Roy Tait at end and Ellsworth at tackle. All four of the men have been playing high-class football for the past year.

Plans for a gymnasium on the Occidental campus are being brought to a head, which will give the college basketball quintet a place to practice. In fact rumors the team has had to use the Franklin High School gym and the Occidental women's gym, which is too small to play a game on. The proposed gym will be for smooth floors to allow the Tiger five to hold their games on the new floor when the season arrives.

TORRANCE HIGH

The gridiron warriors of Torrance High School went down to defeat before the powerful Gardena eleven. The clean, hard-fighting tactics of both teams was a feature of the game. "Stop and Go" Briney played a sensational defensive game and did some powerful kicking from the kick-off. The work of the entire line was very good and the boys worked hard to stop the plunging Gardena backfield. In the backfield Capt. Ray Sleppy played a strong all-around game. Ted Romine, a late comer in the backfield, has promise of making him a backfield star before the season is over. Chandler is fast as a bear. After four long quarters the final score was Gardena, 39; Torrance, 0.

Torrance High fairly glows with pride whenever her former Student Body President George Watson is mentioned. Not content with resting on past glories, Watson is making a name for himself at Caltech. Watson is playing at left guard on the Caltech varsity football team.

In the write-up of the first frosh game with the Southwestern University, Watson was mentioned as playing an outstanding defensive game.

In the Pomona game Tech scored but one touchdown, this time by a 6-0 count. Quoting from this write up: "The work of Watson, the red-headed fighting center, was especially commendable. He seemed to be in every play." Now George has been honored with the position of captain of the frosh team of Caltech.

At a rally held recently a new kind of entertainment was furnished. Coach Mitchell took the time to explain tackles, passes and kick-offs that come in football.

This was greatly enjoyed by those who go to the games with slight knowledge of the game.

GARDEN GROVE HIGH

The "A" team has broken up on account of injuries and some of the men have gone on the "B" team. This will make the "B" team a great deal stronger.

In the second league game with Orange the Argonauts won by a score of 12-0. Samuel Crist scored the first touchdown and John Fitz blocked a punt and scored the second against Orange. Crist, Raymond Munz, Clyde Collins and Leighton Phillips showed up well.

On Thursday the "B's" played Tustin, at Tustin.

Warren Kimbel is leading in the tennis tournament with Donald Arrowsmith second. The other boys are hurrying to play off the rest of the games so the chart is removed Friday.

CALTECH

The Caltech frosh team is somewhat of a pyrotechnic display this year. The first victory came when the passgrounders succeeded in downing the Occidental frosh by a 7-6 count. The frosh, however, at last succumbed to a superior passing attack launched by the farmers of Ventura J. C. The frosh have about an even break to come out on top in their confrontes.

Football isn't "the only sport that the Engineers indulge in. The college has upset precedent this year by organizing a pistol team. The first match was held last week with the Anaheim police team. The final score was: Tech, 996; Cops, 191.

Underclassmen succeeded in supplying plenty of pep and amusement in their annual scrap, this year a pushball contest. Although no casualties were reported, both teams are busy resting up. Comedy was supplied by the sophomores, who, seeing the fight, passed the lowly freshmen to appear on the campus bedecked in garbers of various hues, and with pants legs neatly pilled up to a convenient height.

PASADENA HIGH

Pasadena High School stock took a rise as a result of a 3-to-0 win over the South Pasadena Tigers at the latter's field on October 24.

Navis, fullback and acting captain, made the only score of the game by kicking a field goal in the first quarter. Navis's punting was effective, outdistancing that of Mullins, Tiger captain.

As a preliminary to the varsity game, Coach Leland C. McAuley's midgets ran roughshod over South Pasadena midgets by a 19 to 0 score. He also placed the Pasadena babes at the head of the league.

After receiving the kick-off Strutt, midgets fullback, ran ninety-five yards for a touchdown. Later in the game he made another run of forty-five-yard run. Capt. Scotty MacGregor was responsible for two touchdowns, while Roth and Morse made one.

"Red" Massey, varsity halfback, received a sprained ankle in practice.

Coach Glenda Hippler's lightweights lost their first league game of the season to Glendale, October 23, 6 to 3. The Bulldogs took the lead in the first half, Ninde, left, kicking a field goal in the early minutes of the game. Hanaman, South Pasadena quarter, made the winning touchdown early in the third quarter.

Coach McAuley's little men defeated Manual Arts 12 to 0, at Pasadena. They beat Los Angeles October 29.

LOS ANGELES HIGH

Cy Maddox was elected captain of the 110-pound team for the coming season by the squad. Maddox plays quarterback.

At a big rally held last Wednesday to arouse pep for the Hollywood-Los Angeles game, Bill Spaulding, football coach at U.C. at Los Angeles, was the principal speaker. Coach Wm. Cauldwell, Mr. Noble, captain of the varsity, and Capt. Luckett of the lightweights, were the other speakers.

Les Pendergrass of football and golf fame is now becoming famous as a polo player. He is starting the idea of having a school polo team.

L. A.'s 110-pound team defeated the Huntington Park Midgets by the score of 6-0. Beaver scored the only touchdown for the winners. Coach "Hacky" Millard was pleased with the showing of the boys.

The L.A. tennis squad will play its first practice match November 7 with San Diego, on the latter's courts. The probable L.A. line-up will be: Jack Phillips, Rex Goodsell, Charles Bennett, Jorge Bergstrom and Hal Sheldon.

The second lightweight team defeated the Fairfax eleven last Wednesday by a score of 6 to 7 on the latter's field.

The girls' coaches of L.A. have five volley teams. The girls are getting ready for the play day with the other high schools.

MONROVIA HIGH

The Pee Wees won their second league game against Covina, with a score of 7-0. At the end of the last quarter the centers, Milligan, Martin and Blaine held the line on the 1-yard line.

Merkle Rothwell made a touchdown in the second quarter.

The heroics lost their second league game to Covina with a score of 29-0.

Four of the best players were laid out in the first half.

Ted Mann, whose position was changed from tackle to center, played better in his new position.

Even though the team lost, a decided improvement was noticed in their playing.

MOORPARK HIGH

Several of the first-string football men are out now due to injuries and sickness. Among them are Oran Brown, Raymond Chandler and Manuel Echevaria.

Capt. Sam Hitch, star quarterback, is now back in the game after being out, due to a broken rib. His presence has added considerable spirit to the team.

While most of the interest is now centered on football, some of the boys are out for basketball.

The girls' basketball team is having a very successful year and they have a good chance of finishing second in the league.

SANTA BARBARA

Lightweight basketball practice has started under Coach Harvey J. Holt.

Prospects for a strong team are excellent, with four veterans back from last year and thirty additional hoopsters out for a sixth.

In all probability games will be scheduled with the other Class B quintets in the Santa Barbara County League.

PASADENA TEAM MEETS MOORS

San Diego Host to Whittier This Week-End

South Pasadena Tigers Play Long Beach Squad

Aztecs Outstanding Eleven of Coast League

The clouds of battle having cleared away from the skies of the Pasadena High School football team after the game with the San Diego eleven yesterday, the Bulldogs are sympathising wiht the Whittier boys who go to San Diego for a tilt Saturday and at the same time pointing to the game with Alhambra which should go to the Crown City team Saturday.

Frank Baker

Then comes the Santa Ana tussle, a tough game the next Saturday and then the day of days on the 21st inst., when the Bulldogs launch an attack on Long Beach, their traditional rivals, at the beach city. This closes the season in the Coast League for the two schools. The other teams play their last games the same day.

TIGER GAME TOUGH

This week Long Beach plays South Pasadena, who lost to the Pasadena outfit by a 3-to-0 score a week ago last Saturday. Novis scored a field goal for the only scoring in the game and this came right after the Tigers were penalized at the beginning of the game for being late in appearing on the field, an unusual penalty. Such a score might be the only points made in the game Saturday and should that prove to be true it would make the Long Beach-Pasadena game look all the more interesting.

San Diego, the team that is scoring in much the same wholesale manner that the Trojans have scored this year, having made 209 points in the first four games of the season while holding their opponents scoreless, is much touted as the Southern California prep champs and there seems to be no reason to doubt this.

IS TOUGH TASK

At least somebdy is going to have to play a whale of a game to beat the team with such stars as Ritchie, Saunders and Moeller playing for them. These three are largely responsible for the Aztecs' success this season. The former two are backfield men and Moeller is an outstanding tackle in prep leagues. Saunders is captain and a player much the same type as Hobo Kincaid, the plunging back who used to play at U. S.C.

Glendale plays the Saints at Santa Ana and though it comes in for less interest than the other games of the day, it will be good football. Santa Ana has not proved to be outstanding and Glendale is not a strong contender for the title, but one of the schools is apt to affect the deciding of the champion yet.

MOSER RANKING SCHOLASTIC ACE

Allen Moser of Los Angeles High School, by winning the Spreckels Cup tourney at Coronado recently and placing well up in more than a score more representative golf events, is ranking high school player in this vicinity.

POMONA COLLEGE

"Tex" Maxis, hard-hitting halfback, is again out for a berth on Coach Fess Merritt's fresh eleven after having been laid low with an early season injury. Maxis is one of the hardest tacklers on the squad and should see a lot of service in the coming games.

Les Heald with a net 73 was the winner of the blind-hogey golf tournament conducted over the Indian Hill course this week for Sagehen golfers.

Following the California game played Saturday at the Coliseum, the next two games for the Sagehens will be both played at Claremont. These will be the Whittier game November 11, and the Occidental affair November 21. Pomona will make extensive plans for the annual Tiger game, always a big feature with Pomona students and alumni. Although the locals have been eliminated from the conference race they would like nothing sweeter than bumping over Guy in the final contest.

Walt Shannon, former star Redlands High School athlete, was elected captain of the Pomona frosh football team recently. Shannon is now holding down an end position on the squad.

Possible varsity tennis players are now being discovered in the first annual Pomona College novice tournament. The tourney has been under way for two weeks and the final match will be played next week, according to present plans. Jordan, Andrews, Newman, Rogate, Willis, Smith, Kadow, and Powell, have been showing the best stuff to date and one of them is expected to cop the honors.

Athletic relations with Stanford University that were started with a basketball game last season will be continued this year. The Sagehens will open the 1926 court season in the Palo Alto gym, meeting Andy Kerr's squad January 9. Coach "Bradley" Heath will round the first vaill as soon as football is completed.

Possible plans for the coming track season include a meet with Stanford University in the south. If the affair is booked the Pasadena will combine with another conference team, probably Occidental. The meet would prove a big drawing card for Alumni Field and the speedy track would be just right for such men as Richardson, Miller and other stars of Dink Templeton's team.

Long-winded runners of Coach Jiko Stralik's cross country squad are practicing three times a week for the annual conference cross-country run to be held December 12 at Griffith Park. Pomona, probably Occidental, The meet would prove a big drawing card for Alumni Field and the speedy track would be just right for such men as Richardson, Miller and other stars of Dink Templeton's team.

The fresh team will be rather small and unless more prospects turn up soon, Coach Stralik will be unable to enter a full squad of pedestrians.

FREMONT HIGH

Otto Anderson, U.S.C. star in football and track, is coaching the Fremont high school athletes, assisting the basketball under the supervision of Head Coach Biff Nanny. There is a fine array of basketball men on the team. There are two complete basketballs, of which either one is up to strong and fast a basketball as there is in the league.

Anderson was on the United States Olympic team which went to Paris.

Fremont has a turf field this year.

Work has started on Fremont's new gym building. There will be one for each, the boys and the girls. Steel and concrete bleachers are to be constructed between the two gyms. A 440 straightaway will run north and south along the front of the bleachers and there will be a 440 track.

Girls' tennis has started.

Dame fortune has been kind on the Polytechnic football team this year and promises to stay until the season is over. The Poly chanic lightweights have been stepping in the footsteps of the varsity, winning their games with regularity. The Poly babes defeated the Toiler lightweights by a 21-to-6 score in their second start last Thursday, and at the same time branded themselves as the strongest team in the league.

At the present writing the Franklin babes would seem to be the only team capable of upsetting the Mechanics' aspirations for a championship. The Kiteflyers got a little dope upsetting last Thursday afternoon by taking the league-leading Jefferson squad into camp. Poly will meet the Franklin babes on November 13.

JEFFERSON IS STRONG

Jefferson, although defeated by Franklin, still looks good, and should win the rest of its games to take second or third place. The Jefferson squad started out strongly with two wins over Lincoln and Manual Arts, but they seemed to lack pep in the Franklin game and the Kiteflyers pushed over a lone touchdown to win.

Manual Arts was swamped by the Poly gridders last week and so far this season has won but one contest from the occupants of the cellar position, the Hollywood eleven. However, the Toilers won two weak teams in the Los Angeles and Lincoln elevens, both which they overtop by a big margin.

Hollywood and Lincoln are both out of the running. Hollywood is in the lead with three defeats and no wins, while the Railsplitters have two losses and no wins. Both squads have plenty of power, and may be able to stop some of the opponents. The Foothillers lost to Los Angeles by 1 point, and Manual Arts by 9 points, while Lincoln lost to Jefferson by 6 points and to Franklin by 1 point.

Penalties, a great offensive by the Pasadena Bulldogs, and an indomitable fight put up by the visitors kept the strong San Diego High School eleven scoreless for three quarters and held them to one touchdown for the game at Pasadena yesterday afternoon. Given the southern eleven that heretofore has not scored less than 40 points on an opponent this season had to, not be content but may be feeling lucky to have won a 7-to-0 victory.

During the entire first half of the game the Bulldogs kept the Pasadenan in his Cave and the Cavemen in his turn kept the Bulldog lions growling, though he threatened and pulled at his chain viciously. That is to say, the ball was near midfield at all stages of the half, with neither eleven coming within striking distance of the other's goal.

The real game came in the third and fourth quarters. Coaches Bakewell and Perry of Pasadena and San Diego, respectively, sent their teams back into the game in the second half with a greatly renewed offensive. Pasadena was the first to launch the attack. They received the kickoff, Stellman taking the ball and passing it to Stock on a criss-cross play. Stock was tackled on his own 42-yard line. Stock passed to Hambrook for 12 yards. This was the first pass in the Bulldogs' first passing attack and nearly took them to a score.

TWENTY-FIVE YARDS

The next play was another pass, Stock to Stock, for 25 yards. Norton then passed to Ramsey for 7 more yards, but Pasadena here got the ball on downs.

San Diego then took the ball on their own 30-yard line and set out on a drive for the length of the field. Reed passed to Kemp for 15 yards, the only pass attempted by the Hilltoppers during the game. Donohue repeated with his single-handed first downs in the plays. Ritchie and Reed helped Donohue advance the ball to the 11-yard line to the 1-yard line, where Donohue scored and converted. He dove over the center of the line for the touchdown.

Pasadena then opened its second scoring attack starting at their own 40-yard line after the kickoff and carrying the ball to the 50-yard line when Ramsey and Stock each made 2 yards on plays from scrimmage. Ramsey then attempted to pass, but the ball was intercepted by a San Diego back in the end zone and ran back to the 1-foot line from where Kent carried 50 yards to safety and victory for the Hilltops.

HEAVY PENALTIES

San Diego was penalized 100 yards during the game, six times for 5 yards and twice for 5 yards. Pasadena suffered two 5-yard penalties. The visiting Hilltoppers made first downs, as compared with eight for the Bulldogs. Pasadena completed seven passes for 127 yards, while San Diego tried but once and completed it for 10 yards. The Bulldogs attempted eleven passes that failed.

The line-ups:

Northwestern Eleven Noses Out Indianans

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EVANSTON (Ill.) Oct. 31.—Northwestern's fighting Wildcats staged a comeback in the final moments of its game with Indiana this afternoon and won, 17 to 14, before a large home-coming crowd. Vice-President Charles G. Dawes witnessed the Purple victory. It was Northwestern's first defeat since win this fall.

The Purple took the lead in the third quarter and was not threatened until late in the final period, when the Hoosiers, aided by a long pass, Balmi to McConnell, started marching down the field, Balmi carrying the touchdown which evened the score at 14-all.

Only a few minutes to play, the home eleven started a drive toward the Indiana goal. On the 5-yard line, the Hoosiers held and Lewis made a kick from placement. The game ended a few minutes later.

SAINTS DEFEAT TIGERS

Santa Ana Downs South Pasadena by Score of 33 to 6 Showing Scoring Strength

Santa Ana continued its neck-and-neck race with San Diego for the Coast prep league leadership yesterday by smearing South Pasadena 33 to 6 in a game that clearly demonstrated the scoring power of the Saints.

Capt. Dawson, fullback for the winners, smashed his way through the Tiger line for two touchdowns, while Norton, a sub for English in the backfield, tallied twice in the last quarter. McDermott, end, scored the other touchdown on a pass from Dawson.

South Pasadena's only tally came as a result of a short end run by Blakesley, a substitute.

The Saints easily had the best of the enemy. They plunged, ran and passed their way about the field almost at will. San Diego and Santa Ana promise to fight it out for the league championship when they meet in the final game of the schedule in San Diego the day before Thanksgiving.

OCCIDENTAL FRESHMEN WIN

Run Up 32-to-7 Score in Three Quarters on Pasadena Junior College Eleven

Occidental freshmen yesterday afternoon defeated the Pasadena Junior College eleven in the game preliminary to the Pasadena vs. San Diego High School game. The Tiger freshmen scored 32 points to 7 for the junior college eleven.

Occidental scored two touchdowns in each of the first and third quarters and each team scored seven points in the second quarter.

Hunt, substituting for W. Sweitzer, scored two touchdowns, as did Klein, freshman fullback. Klein was responsible for the greater amount of the ground gained by the victors, but the line bucks of Hunt also helped the Tiger cause.

Novis, captain and left half for the junior college men, was largely responsible for the score by his team. Novis passed to Jaqua for twenty yards and then carried the pigskin for a fifteen-yard run and a touchdown in the second quarter.

CALTECH FROSH SUBDUED

Strong Bakersfield High Eleven Returns to Old Championship Form to Win 52 to 0

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 31.—Slashing into its old irresistible State championship form Coach Griffith's Bakersfield High School scoring machine subdued the powerful Caltech freshman grid aggregation 52 to 0, on the local field here today. The southern college freshmen fought a hopeless battle. Threatening for brief instants and then wilting before the crushing attack of the Drillers, who played flawless football the opposing safety as the pigskin settled in his arms.

As the first half of the struggle drew to a close, Caltech made a desperate attempt to stem the tide of defeat. Six passes were completed by them in rapid succession and then Harper speared a long one from the freshmen and pranced twenty yards (with the ball, ending the gray jerseyed warriors' onslaught for the session.

Harper, Driller fullback, considered the best prep school toeman in the California conference, was easily the master in the frequent punting duels throughout the game. His twisting, high boots were hard to handle and his ends were always ready to spill

SPORT FOR SPORT'S SAKE

BY JOSEPH A. PIPAL, OCCIDENTAL COACH

Sport for sport's sake! That spells amateur spirit, yes, amateur spirit even in professional athletics.

Amateur ideal infers playing to play well, not simply to win; it means playing for the love of the sport, playing for a cause, the honor of a club, or a college, not because of remunerations. No one could imagine the late Christy Mathewson being in the professional game simply for the money it paid. He was great because his spirit was bigger than his salary check.

It is reported that Ernie Nevers lost twelve pounds in the Trojan fracas. Nothing but touched-off imagination; loyalty, which in this case was love for his alma mater, could possibly produce the spirit to drive one to the point of sweating twelve pounds of flesh and blood in just one hour of effort—yea, verily, this is some strenuous business for the young bloods of our schools and colleges. Not so bad at that, when in these days we have some that are worrying about the wildness of our youth, and others exhorting against that softness. Here we have an element in our American life that should tame the wildest, and harden the softest.

Right here is the sumum bonum of our college athletics; here is the chief reason for the existence of our school and college sports in this age and generation. In this day of Dad's husky bank roll, this age of ease and plenty, of "bringing up father" instead of father bringing up Jimmy, this push-button age, this day of getting by, just getting by in school, this day when the rigors of pioneer life will no longer play a part in producing rugged characteristics, this day when we talk much of peace, and should do more, and will do more in the future to prevent war—in such an age—we will presume to contend that we need our strenuous sports.

Our new friend, Bill Spaulding, the sensational University of California, Southern Branch, coach, is not only making a real showing in the win column, but is also establishing himself as a real sportsman in the ranks of Southern California coaches.

He has shown himself not only a good loser, but also a generous victor. He was the first one to congratulate Coach Calland after Whittier's win over his Grizzlies. After the Occidental game the writer extended his felicitations on his unlooked-for stunt of trimming the Oxy Tigers. He expressed thanks, but in the same breath added: "Your fumbles helped us materially."

Dipping into the more remote history of amateur athletics, the writer recalls an unusually fine bit of sportsmanship shown in a football game, between the two great rivals, the universities of Chicago and Wisconsin, on Stagg Field. Wisconsin, in the early part of the game had the ball in its own territory, and after two assaults at the line completed a long forward pass, to Paul Meyer, its captain, who, running close to the side lines in front of the Chicago bench, eluded his pursuers, and tore down the field for a touchdown. There was some question among the officials as to whether Meyers stepped out of bounds. At this point Coach Stagg stepped forward, and assured the officials that the young athlete stayed in bounds. This settled the controversy in favor of a touchdown for Wisconsin.

Santa Maria Wins County Pigskin Title

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA MARIA, Oct. 31.—Santa Maria High School's football eleven defeated Santa Barbara High's team for the third consecutive year here this afternoon, winning the county championship. Santa Maria scored 26 points today, while Santa Barbara was able to count but 13.

Billy Burgett, the scrappy, little fullback for Santa Maria, made three of the touchdowns for his team. Capt. "Hank" Rojas, the local squad's star player, was out of the game on account of injuries. The record crowd of the season witnessed the game.

REDONDO HIGH

R.U.H.S. was put out of the running for Bay League championship in the Class "B" division because of the ineligibility of our Quarterback Arguetion. We were forced to forfeit all the games, three, which they won by hard work. However, they have another quarterback, who has been calling signals for the second string that can handle the first string as well as Arguetion. He goes by the name of Healey and has 120 pounds of fight and speed.

This is quite a bitter pill to swallow, but they will go into the next game against Huntington Park with grim determination and if they finish this game on the long end it will show that they did not have to depend on an ineligible man to win their games.

This week both Sea Hawk squads are stretching their limb with a bye. The heavyweight eleven is taking it easy as they threaten to go stale, but the lightweights are in fine condition and are running smoothly under the leadership of Coach Cuenca. Their new quarterback, Healy, also is leading them fine.

UTAH FARMERS BOW TO COLORADO AGGIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OGDEN (Utah) Oct. 31.—The Colorado Aggies succeeded in defeating the Agricultural College of Utah by a score of 13 to 0 this afternoon. The Utah team was outclassed in all departments of the game and was outweighed approximately fifteen pounds to the man. Hyde, Brown and Clammer divided the honors for Colorado, while Thomas, Leddingham, Foxley and Norton for Utah. The Utah team was built around Thomas, flashy right halfback.

GLENDALE LOSES TO JACKRABBITS

Middlestedt Bucks Over for Lone Touchdown

Glendale Fleaweights in 13-to-3 Victory

Driving down the field in the third quarter with an attack that would not be denied, Long Beach High School's powerful eleven scored a lone touchdown and defeated Glendale, 6 to 0, in a thrilling Coast League game played at Glendale yesterday. The Dynamiters, facing an unusually lean grid season, put up a terrific struggle, holding Long Beach even over the first half, weakening only for five minutes in the third quarter.

Fresh from a 28-to-0 victory over Alhambra last week, the Jackrabbits were expected to plow right through Glendale and score before the game was very far along, but the slashing defense that they met held them off and even had them backing water.

Neither squad was able to do much in the first half. Glendale's attack couldn't make much impression on Long Beach, but the defense that they offered had the same effect on the Beachmen. The two periods were largely spent in kicking. Few first downs were made.

After an exchange of punts as the second half started, Long Beach took the ball in midfield and went right down the field, making four first downs in a row. Middlestedt, quarter and outstanding Beach player, bucked it over. He failed to kick goal. Middlestedt and Fry starred for Long Beach. Huse was the big hero on the line for Glendale, with Brooks and Stewart performing well in the backfield.

In the preliminary game, the Glendale fleaweights bumped Long Beach, 13 to 3. Mainland and Everett starred for the winners. The score:

Glendale (6.)		Long Beach (6.)
Harris	L.E.R.	Thomas
Lundy	L.T.R.	Hightone

Syracuse Grid Squad Bumps Penn Staters

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Oct. 31.—Syracuse University maintained its unbroken string of victories here today and became the only eastern team with an uncrossed goal line in conquering a hard-fighting Penn State team before 20,000 spectators, on a muddy field. The score was 7 to 0.

A fumble by Dangerfield on the first line-up after the kickoff starting the second half paved the way for the Orange score, but Syracuse had a distinct advantage in play all periods but the second.

WHITMAN'S JINX BEATS WILLAMETTE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SALEM (Or.) Oct. 31.—Whitman's jinx over Willamette University predominated again today and the Missionaries defeated the Bearcats, 20 to 13, in the third annual homecoming football game. The first half was scoreless with Willamette picking up an over-pass from center and registering the first tally early in the period. An open-field run from the center of the gridiron enabled Whitman to tie the score. The Missionaries registered twice and the Bearcats once in the final period, all touchdowns being converted with field goals.

KANSAS SUCCUMBS TO DRAKE PLAYERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LAWRENCE (Kan.) Oct. 31.—Wilting after three scoreless periods, Kansas succumbed in the fourth to Drake's slashing assault in a Missouri Valley Conference football game here today and lost, 7 to 0. It was the Jawhawkers' fourth successive defeat.

VAN NUYS HIGH

Coach Ryneerson has been changing the lightweight team around considerably the past week with the hope of strengthening the line, which heretofore has been somewhat weak. He expects to make it one of the best defensive lines in the valley.

The local midgets lost their first league game when the Lancaster lightweights took a 12-to-0 victory from them. The Castus Growers were somewhat smaller than the locals, but made up for it in fighting spirit and brain work. The game was played on the victors' field.

The Van Nuys and Lancaster football teams enjoyed a delightful feed in the cafeteria last Friday after the game. The feed was given by the Girls' League. Much credit is due Virginia Laurence and the committee that aided her in arranging the feed.

The local R.O.T.C. has been practicing during the past week for the Armistice Day parade, which is to be held at Van Nuys. The practice has consisted mostly of bayonet drill.

The Van Nuys High School Huskies defeated the Lancaster squad October 23 in the first league game of the season. The game was played on the locals' field and was well attended.

Brentwood Invitational Next Week; Annual S.C.G.A. Meeting at Los Angeles Club

RECORD FIELD SET FOR ANNUAL GOLF CLASSIC

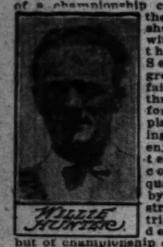
New Greens and Fairways Add to Championship Layout; Foursome Play Closes Event

BY BILL WISE

More than 300 members of the local golfing fraternity will start qualifying one week from next Tuesday for commanding places in one of the nine flights scheduled to comprise the annual Brentwood invitational tourney. Entrants will be permitted to play their eighteen-hole medal round, Tuesday, or the day following, Wednesday, while match play in all flights, including the title and consolation, will start Thursday. Finals in all flights will be played Sunday morning, leaving the remodeled championship course clear for the feature mixed foursome event that will be included in this year's invitation.

Martin Leach, tourney chairman at the home of Wee Willie Hunter, has secured a flock of cups that has transformed the comfortable Brentwood Club into a regular jewelry store. Beautiful trophies will be awarded the winners of low gross and low net in the qualifying play, also the winning teams in the Foursome event, and winners and runner-ups in all flights will also draw silverware. And just to show what Brentwood bats in the foursome event, and winners in all nine defeated eight flights will go home with trophies that are distinctly representative of the progressive organization.

Brentwood is a true example of a championship course and in the near future, should rank with the best in the country. Seven new greens and two fairways will be thrown open for tournament play and visiting golfers will enjoy a stiff test over a course adequately guarded by a series of straight backed traps, at least deep enough but of championship caliber nevertheless.



GOLF CLASSIC

With "championship" courses springing up like mushrooms all over the State, the word appears to be overworked, but publicity only fools the few who don't care, and as the Brentwood golf test, the club hospitality and the general all round enjoyable features of the organization from the curly-haired, smiling English professional, Willie Hunter, through to Judge Lewis R. Works, president, are too well known to local tee devotees, to need any introduction, it becomes a distinct pleasure to predict a very successful golf week at Brentwood, starting seven days from Tuesday.

VENICE NEWSBOYS OPEN GYM TO PUBLIC

Anyone with a desire to have his nose flattened or his boxing ability tuned up a bit is given the free opportunity to do so at the Venice Newsboys' Athletic Club gymnasium. The management has thrown the place open on Monday and Wednesday evenings to all.

All manner of gymnastic and pugilistic apparatus is at the disposal of those caring to use it. Among the organizations which have taken advantage of the newsies' offer is the Santa Monica Bay Lodge of Antlers, No. 5, whose boxing team is being shown through the fine points of the art by Barney Fikes of Culver City.

Impressive Ceremonies to Usher in New Country Club November 28 and 29

Saturday and Sunday, November 28 and 29, has been fixed officially for the formal opening of the Parkridge Country Club, according to Dan Gilkey, president. In the opinion of Hutt Martin, professional, and Jack Wilson, greenskeeper, the championship eighteen-hole and the nine-hole "pitch and putt" courses, designed by John Duncan Dunn will be in splendid shape. The clubhouse decorations by the Cheesewright Studios, also will be completed.

All speed ahead is being put on the construction program, the airport, gun range, equestrian stables, tennis courts, children's playground, bungalow colony and 100-foot boulevard from the clubhouse to the motor highway are well under way. A full calendar of novel sport and society events is planned.

CABALLERO PLANNING NEW HOME

Tennis and Polo Added to Sports Calendar by Club Officials

El Caballero is the largest golf course in the country, officials of the club announce. Measured from the back tees which are used in tournament play, the course's length is 6970 yards. Jack Tarrant has a force of men at work clearing out the brush skirting several of the fairways.

Plans are being drawn for a $250,000 clubhouse at El Caballero, construction of which will start as soon as the membership warrants. Polo fields and tennis courts are included in the contemplated improvements.

HARTZ IN CLASSIC

Harry Hartz is entered in the third championship race on the Charlotte Speedway, November 11, to further clinch his claim to being the "business man" of automobile racing. He has entered with his team-mates, Fred Comer and Leon Duray.

BEST-PAYING SERIES IN 1923

The largest sum ever received by the players in a world series was the $1,661 received by each of the New York Yankees for winning the series of 1923.

NEW GIRARD MENTOR

Charlie Guest, professional at Girard, is demonstrating his 300-yard drive for the benefit of Vic Owens, San Pedro pro, who also laces out a lot of long wood shots. Girard and Guest trimmed Ed Gayer and Jay Nunnally in a feature foursome that opened the first nine holes of the new course last week.

Joe Norwood, professional of the Los Angeles Club, will be host to more than 100 of the leading national big guns when the open fireworks let go—over the north course at Beverly. With the exception of Walter Hagen—and possibly Bobby Jones—all of the outstanding and internationally famous golf stars will be here. A joint committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Pros Association will stage the midwinter classic.

FLINTRIDGE MANAGERESS IS POPULAR

Club Affairs in Fine Shape Under Efficient Direction of Miss Murphy

Miss Edna Murphy, recently installed as manageress at Flintridge, is serving very successfully in her new capacity, according to an announcement released by club officials recently. Miss Murphy has been with the Flintridge organization for many months, but recently took over the direction of club affairs.

Miss Edna Murphy

Efficient and co-operating committees have been directly responsible for the success of the popular institution. Numbering such members as E. P. "Bud" Yoacum, Joe Hageman, Lynn and Ralph Reynolds—and scores more, just as popular, Flintridge, with George Kerrigan, professional, and Jack McNamara, caddy master, will remain one of the finest clubs in the State.

Miss Kathleen Wright, outstanding Southern California star, winner of the Del Monte Women's championship tourney last September, is now a member of Flintridge and Miss Margaret Cameron, former Midwick star, may also play under the club banner this winter, presenting a solid golfing front in the Women's Auxiliary Team League.

WOMEN'S INVITATION EVENT AT HOLLYWOOD WEDNESDAY

Mrs. A. E. D. Trabue, president, will have the pleasure of being hostess to more than 100 of her golfing auxiliaries in the Hollywood Country Club's invitational tourney for women, opening with an eighteen-hole medal qualifying round Wednesday, and match play Thursday and Friday.

Including the title flight, players will be bracketed in flights of eight each, and will play first and second round matches Thursday and finals Friday.

Many enjoyable surprises are in store for the feminine contestants, chief of which will be the man-less grill, all day Thursday. Scoring in the club invitational two weeks ago was very good. Bill Amor's course is always in good condition, fast, and has always been a favorite with Southern California's scores of women golfers.

Beautiful trophies will be awarded the winners in all events and flights. The Hollywood feminine invitational is the first of many similar enjoyable ones scheduled for the coming season.

Entries may be forwarded to the club now, and while players are requested to arrange their own qualifying foursomes—or twosomes—all players will be cared for at the tee.

LARGE TEES AT LAKESIDE

Yardage Figures at New Course Provide Enjoyable Test for Champs, Near Champs and Golfers

Recently a transit survey was made of the Lakeside course to accurately determine the length of the holes from the front, regular and back tees. When it is realized that the tees average forty yards in length, with proportionate widths, it can be readily seen that three sets of figures are required.

The statistics gathered are quite interesting. It is quite evident that the front tee position will give yardage of exactly the proper length for women's competitive play, while from the back tees Lakeside will thoroughly test the strength of Abe Mitchell, the exquisite precision and consummate strategy of MacDonald Smith and the brilliance of Bobby Jones.

The regular positions will provide a layout ideal for the average golfer, giving plenty of opportunity for the use of every club and with a constant succession of interesting and thrilling situations. The total yardage is such that a round of golf will never be an endurance test. There will be no impossible or annoying conditions or any call for freak or stunt shots. To score well, however the player must use his head as well as his hands.

Lakeside will be an ideal medium for a professional championship event, although Mr. Behr's aim from the start has been to furnish a pleasing and interesting layout, primarily for those whose memberships have made Lakeside a glorious reality.

From either front, regular or back tees, the course will be well-balanced, that is, the traps and other strategic points will harmonize well with the yardage. Mr. Behr has done a fine bit of work in this respect.

AD CLUB GOLFERS COMPETE

Dinner and Entertainment to Follow Regular Tourney at Wilshire Club

The next golf tournament of the Advertising Club of Los Angeles will be held at the Wilshire Club on Thursday afternoon, November 12, according to an announcement made by the golf committee, composed of J. W. Shaffer, chairman; Sherman A. Paddock and Ted M. Denison. The golf committee is being assisted by Frank Delect, Arthur Mass and Ed Loftus, members of the Wilshire Club as well as the Advertising Club. They are arranging for a good dinner and a snappy entertainment in the evening.

The prizes for the second tournament will be even better than for the first, the committee promises. Forty-three players attended the latter, which was held at the El Caballero Country Club. More players are expected at the next.

THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG IN THIS YARN

Here is one of the rarest things in the world—a story of a duck hunter back from the big duck country, unaccompanied by a photo of himself and many ducks. The hunter is Del Andrews, just back from Big Bear Lake, where, amid fog and snow, he directed the shooting of scenes for "No Man's Law," for the Bob Custer company.

The lack of ducks—and pictures—is due to the fact that camera-shooting occupied all the daylight hours, and to the further fact that Andrews didn't take a shotgun along.

Auxiliary Foursomes at Midwick

Semifinal matches in the women's auxiliary mixed foursome tourney will be played at the Midwick Country Club today. All entrants are requested to be on the first tee, ready for play, at noon.

Record upsets featured the second round matches in the medley event over the Flintridge course last Sunday and the golfing battle today, for finalists honors, promises to be on a par with any recorded in the many enjoyable events sponsored by Mrs. A. E. D. Trabue, auxiliary president.

Three Hollywood teams will meet in the semifinals of the first flight, while still another strong golfing duo from President Richards's hospitable club, Mrs. Wallis Lohman and Earl Neitzel, will golf through for second-flight honors.

Pairings for today's play follows:

FIRST FLIGHT

SECOND FLIGHT

Mrs. Wallis Lohman, Earl Neitzel vs. Mrs. and Mr. L. E. Coffin.
Mrs. F. S. Hardin, Harry Carroll vs. Mrs. C. W. Fellows, William Carrigan.

"WOODIE WOULDN'T WOULD HE"

Wilshire's Caddy Master Genial Czar and Youthful Toters' Friend

Willard "Woodie" Wood, Wilshire caddy master, in addition to being the fastest functioning and most popular bag-toting director over the circuit, enjoys the distinction of being a student and teacher for the scores of efficient caddies playing from the Wilshire club.

"WOODIE"

"Woodie wouldn't, would he?" has become a stock phrase around the best-managed golf shop in the city. Woodie takes great pains with his pupils. Before a boy is permitted to work for Wilshire and visiting members he is first instructed thoroughly in the intricate art of bag toting.

Mistakes are natural, but Wilshire caddies are justly famed for their ability to follow the ball, speak when spoken to, and otherwise live up to the unwritten formula for successful human golfing, aids and divots don't wander at Wilshire; in fact, uninitiated members often wonder what becomes of them; but the Wilshire caddies know, for they replace them. In addition to his manifold duties, Woodie enjoys the full confidence of Charles Orr, resident manager, and it is within Woodie's jurisdiction to question any visitors desiring to use the club links.

LONDOS IS CONFIDENT

Believes His Stomach Too Small for Joe Stecher to Have Any Success With Leg Scissors

Joe Stecher's body scissors will have no effect on the stomach of Jim Londos when the pair meets in the Olympic Auditorium on the night of November 9 for the world's heavyweight championship, under the direction of Lou Daro. At least that is the claim that Londos is making now.

According to the Greek challenger, Stecher needs a big man between his legs in order to properly apply the body scissors. That kind of a man is an easy dish for the tremendous pressure Joe brings to bear when he locks his underpinning around the body of his victim.

But Londos, weighing 194 pounds, measures only thirty-four inches around the waist and he claims that Stecher will not be able to clamp down on him with the same power that he applies to larger men.

JIM LONDOS.

On the other hand, Londos asserts that his own reverse headlock will be a cinch to use on the champion because it can best be applied from a standing position and when it is locked on a tall opponent, such as Stecher will be, the small man has a big advantage. Londos is making no secret of the fact that Joe has never developed a real defense for the headlock, either as applied in the regular way or for the reverse position. Londos is pinning his hopes on his speed and ability to clamp this one hold on the champion.

Stecher's arrival Monday will be the signal for mat fans to gather around the gymnasium every day to watch the men train.

Mushy Callahan boxes them as they come.

He boxes youngsters. He boxes veterans.

But he has yet to meet a man of the national ring rating of Pal Moran of New Orleans.

Due to Mushy's tremendous popularity here, he will be favored to beat Moran at Vernon Tuesday night in the ten-round main event.

Moran is not a champion. But he has fought champions. He has always been a bad man for an upbound fighter to face.

There are three instances that gleam in Pal's record of over 200 battles.

They were Johnny Shugrue, Charley White and Benny Leonard.

None of these three ever fought again after boxing Moran.

The New Orleans Italian stopped Shugrue when the boy appeared headed straight for a title shot.

Moran stopped White when the Chicagoan was practically signed to fight Leonard for the championship.

Pal was selected by Leonard as a warm-up for the Walker match a year ago. It was a no-decision fight at Cleveland. Moran got very favorable mention. Leonard was dismayed at his own poor showing.

Leonard hurt his thumb in the fight, called off the Walker battle, which was a cinch to draw $500,000, and retired.

TURK IS FOOTBALL STAR

Coach Jim McCarthy of the Manhattan College of New York City football team is delighted with the return of Kemal Hasson, the 170-pound Turkish prince, to the squad. He has been the bulwark of the inner defense since the revival of the sport at the Gotham institution. He is called "Turk" by the students.

RABBIT PUNCHES

FRANK CHURCHILL

FRANK CHURCHILL probably has had a more varied career as a fight manager than any other man alive. He did a little boxing in his younger days, prospected for gold in Alaska, was a customs official for eight years in the Philippines, opened a small boxing club there, started the Filipinos on their boxing craze, later built a mammoth auditorium of the proportions of our Olympic Club in Manila, and besides being boss of that institution is now the manager of the greatest boxing stable in captivity.

A quiet, retiring sort of individual, Frank Churchill modestly deposes that whereas the Spaniards might have used boxing gloves when they possessed the islands back in the eighties, he was the first man to lace a boxing glove on the Filipinos. In other words, he is father of boxing in the Philippines, "the Walter Camp of pugilism" in the little brown man's land.

Back in the '97s or '98s he went into Alaska for the first time with Rex Beach, the author, and Tex Rickard, the famous New York promoter. The only difference between Rickard and Churchill then was that the former had a million in cash and the latter had nothing. After picking for gold a few seasons above Nome, Frank took a whirl over to the Philippines and accepted a job with the customs department as custodian of Uncle Samuel's property there. He stuck at it for eight years.

There was no boxing in the islands then. The law permitting it was passed in 1910, and that marks the beginning of Churchill's big career as promoter and manager.

It took nine years to get the native Filipinos really interested in boxing. The fighters of his small club were mostly sailors and soldiers, and the patrons were high government officials with a small smattering of Filipinos.

But when the Filipinos really became interested in boxing, as they eventually did, Churchill says they took to it like ducks to water. His gymnasium was open to them free of charge. They could come in and box, using all the equipment without cost, and if they showed any adaptability they were taken in charge by an instructor. For four years Churchill had Rufe Turner, a California gent of color, on the job until Rufe fell prey to too much prosperity and beat it back to the States.

In that gymnasium Churchill discovered little Pancho Villa, the late flyweight champion who died in San Francisco last summer—the greatest piece of fighting machinery he ever knew, Churchill says.

Sarmiento, who fights Billy Bonillas at the Olympic Auditorium next week and later Bud Taylor at the same place, is another product of that Manila gym. So is Clever Sencio, who, Churchill predicts, will some day be the flyweight king.

Through his long association with fighters Churchill has become a keen analyst.

He picks champions by their eyes. The real champ has an unmistakable fire and sparkle, Churchill says. Benny Leonard has it. Pancho Villa had it. Clever Sencio is blessed with the attributes of the eyes. So is Fidel La Barba.

Churchill has been in the game a long time. He is about ready to retire and let his partner in Manila run things. He sent his wife East last week to close their New York apartment. He has made a lot of money in his ventures and is ready to take a rest and live quietly in a California bungalow and drive an automobile around 365 days of the year.

Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, also has added a new stake to the list. Bull Dogging Will Continue Despite Objections

Montana Ethel Hall Suffers from Broken Ankle

Finals in the first annual Los Angeles Round-up at Ascot Park are booked for this afternoon and evening, when fourteen world's championship and $25,000 in prize money will be awarded.

Yesterday's features were the fining of Bobby Askin, world's champion broncho rider of $15 in Judge Richardson's court on a complaint by the S.P.C.A. that accused him of abusing a horse by hitting him with a wire when Askin was defending himself from an attack from the maddened animal, and the lead acquired by Bert Higgins of Hollywood in the all-round contest.

HIGGINS LEADS

Higgins jumped into the lead when Paddy Ryan drew a disqualification in the broncho riding and now the Hollywood picture man is expected to breeze in with the all-events money, although he is being given a hard race by Breezy Cox in the figures.

It was also announced yesterday that in spite of the objections of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, there would be steer bulldogging and flank-cinching in the finals today. All week the officials of the round-up have been handicapped by the officers of the society, and many of them attribute the numerous accidents to the rules of the organization. The sports will be much more thrilling by the decision of the round-up officials.

BREAKS ANKLE

Montana Ethel Hall of Lakeview, Or., suffered a broken ankle yesterday during the downtown parade, when her horse slipped on a street car rail and fell on her foot. She was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where the injury was treated, and then removed to the General Hospital.

Heavy advance reservations indicate a capacity house at the contests this afternoon, when all the top hands of the cowboy will be in the finals for the world's championships in fourteen events. Managing Director Add P. Day, elated over the success of the show, also announces that practically all the winners in the contests to date have already signed contracts to appear in the second annual round-up in Los Angeles next fall.

NOTES FROM THE HOLLYWOOD A.C.

"Chuck" Kearney will start the basketball season all tomorrow night when he sets the results out for the first practice of the season. He has a lot of fellows to work around and anyone wishing to try for a berth can do same with Kearney any night after 7 p.m. in the gym.

When the announcement was made several days ago regarding the football teams at least seventy-five former college stars made application for a tryout.

Ten former and present Olympic swimming and diving champions are entered in the open swimming meet to be held at the club Wednesday night.

M. Lomski, who recently turned professional, won his first bout for the Los Angeles Athletic Friday night. He had his first two bouts by close decisions, but last night he looked like he would be heard from in the future.

Bob Howard is getting ready to start the William McDonald system boxing class, and Jack Butler, winner of the first bout, has entered.

For real action the bowling alleys slated to take place on November 11 should be a pip with sixteen fast teams battling for the right to be in the big affair with some swollen bowers. It's a case of getting knocked for a row. Howard made a trip to San Pedro recently and signed some of the best bowlers to send into the tourney and they are ready to send each other split-fingers and goodness.

A very hard and mineral hundred blindfolds will journey over with the sloggers.

It's worth a "buck" of anybody's money to see Eddie Smeltzer, Walter Kley, Chester Bennett, Beatty Dunlap and Eddie Gribbon in that friendly game of "rounds."

Carl Johnson is thinking of nothing but the Pacific Coast wrestling championship to be held at the club December 4. Johnson has his heart set on making the tournament a success, if can't be done very well without the help of the members.

The members of Johnson have never been defeated in the mat and holds turning by the Bronze. If he was wrestling instructor by the N.Y.A.C. and was the idol of the members there. Let's show him that we can challenge for him and turn out to see the bouts in one night, anyway. It is not a question of financial success—it's from an attendance standpoint. Will you help?

"Bat" Roberts, All-American center, has signed from Somerset, Ky., that he would be glad to play on the football team and will arrive here the first of the year.

POLOISTS CLASH TODAY

Blues Meet Purple Riders in Clash at Hollywood Heights Polo and Hunt Club

The second game of the polo tournament which is being conducted between the four teams of the Hollywood Heights Polo and Hunt Club, will be staged this afternoon on the club's field on Ventura Boulevard, and from all appearances it should be a very fast and hard-fought match.

Last Sunday the first game of the tourney was staged and the Blues walked off with it, 8-5, beating the Whites only after a tough fight had been staged throughout the match. This week the Blues will meet the Purples, one of the more recently formed squads, and it is believed that the Blues will again win.

The fourth team, the Bees, which consists of the three Barneson brothers and Earl Barger, hence, the name, will meet the Blues next Sunday, and, although confident of victory, will probably have to stage a great game in order to step out in front.

A polo committee was elected this week at a meeting of the new board of directors, elected on Monday night, and C. M. Crawford, prominent sportsman and a member of the Purple squad, was elected chairman of this important part of the club's organization. Cliff W. Lord and Earl Barger, both well known for their prowess with the polo stick, were named as the other members of this committee.

This committee has taken over the management of the present tourney and is planning a number of other matches between the club's teams and those of other organizations.

Plans are being formulated for running off the finals for the challenge cup, which was put up at the time of the Santa Barbara Mission School benefit match, and which was won once by Hollywood Heights and once by Santa Barbara. It is believed that the local team will soon make a pilgrimage to the northern city in an attempt to permanently cinch the trophy.

CAULIFLOWER ALLEY NOTES

Joe Levy, the hustling match maker of the Culver Athletic Club, is stirring things up in the pairings of his fistic menus. He has gathered some excellent cards and experts, before the bell-ringer's job, by setting a program that will almost knock one's eye out. Levy intimates that he will be eager a opponent, the Olympic Club would make temporary use of the Culver City ring trade. When a Tunney and Dempsey was blasted, the affable little matchmaker replied, "That's telling."

Pete Sarmiento, the Filipino whirlwind, imbued with the beauties of Los Angeles took unto himself a gas wagon of touring model. It naturally followed that he grabbed a number of his countrymen for a spin or two during which time he pandered a little on the gas. Last Tuesday, as the Manhattan, he was greeted by Manager Churchill: "How come?" Before Pete could get an alibi, Churchill added, "There will be no more gasoline stuff." Sarmiento usually joined gink who overhead the retort, was near enough to hear Churchill wanted the car for his own use and that the roasting was only a stall.

This Frankie Garcia is an inventive cuss. He entered attention on himself last Tuesday afternoon at Dempsey's by springing a Charleston quirk in his shadow boxing. Lassoing well forward with his left he swirled back his arms backward and forward very much like a farmer sowing seed. Frankie didn't last long—he said it was to much like hard work.

Tom Shanley, that sure famous old sailor, was a guest of Jack Root's last Tuesday at the Olympic Club's downtown office. Tom and Jack went over much of the old stuff and made a great afternoon of it. During the fanning Root let loose a few of his Mexican beans on the adjacent wall. Shanley perplexed by the sudden fracas as he kept rubbing his chin and forehead, now and then ejaculated, "I've often seen flies and birds come back before, but this is the first time I ever knew they had wings."

Is Spider Roach angry? One might as well ask, "Is a lobster crabbed?" Spider's hair bristled and his eyes shone Tuesday when Tony Irwin sprung a cockeyed verdict against "Spud" Myers up Frisco way recently. According to the northern expert, Tommy Ryan, in addition to "Spud," had to his credit five of the ten rounds against Bilby Alger and should have had his mitt raised. Roach declares that Irwin was almost smothered to death with complimentary cushions and had to leave the ring surrounded by airplanes. Of course—this from Spider Roach.

Phil Rosenberg and Nat Fleisch were awarded the leading honors at the Manhattan last Tuesday. Fleisch stood three rounds of break-neck speed. In the first round, Phil got mussy and really showed Nat best—from then on Fleisch changed the leather pretty well into Phil's anatomy and on several occasions made Rosy fall in love with the canvas. Rosenberg won—Otis Sellers, Rosenberg totes a nasty right uppercut—one that should make many an aspiring 126-pounder think seriously of the forest Ranger service.

Phil Morgan believes that Ace Hopkins has improved wonderfully in the last few months. Says he—"Ace has improved at least 100% since he fought Joe Benjamin and is now twice as good a boy. When he fought Benjamin Ace was of the mauling type and didn't move away from Joe's punches. Now he is showing class and using his brains, getting away from a lot of punches and displaying more accuracy in timing and distance. He is beginning to make ringspots and to land cleaner blows. He is bearing in faster than ever and is making his movements more. I think he pulled out of the toughest fight of his career when he lost to give up the Johnny O'Donnell fight. Johnny is about the style of a guy that would beat Hopkins. Ace has fought tougher boys but would have much trouble in solving O'Donnell's style. Johnny at present is confined to the minute. He put up a fine fight and will be equal to his workers for this scrap and it was the one desire of his life to win it."

The Manhattan boasts a tall, slender fellow named Norman Wilson, a Canadian welterweight, on whom Joe Waterman is very sweet. Norman stuffed the floor last Tuesday in his boxing togs and some did some class. A well-known local manager (who did not wish his name to be mentioned) declared he tried to sign up Wilson about a year and a half ago but missed fire. He also added that Wilson impressed him as being the hardest-hitting welter he had ever seen. Norman wore heavy, black velvet tights last Tuesday which he brought from Mexicali, Can. Barney Dempsey, in commenting on the heavy tights, said to one of the spectators, "They go in for the heavy stuff at Mexicali and when one of their fighters lands on your jaw you sure think that a moose has fallen on you."

Billy Wallace worked out last week at the Manhattan with his body encased in rubber bands. The bands act as a Turkish bath, and thus Billy separates himself from a bunch of superfluous beef in a short time. When Wallace had gotten to that stage where he looked as if he had just been yanked out of a river, a ring wiseacre snarled: "Say, Billy, why don't you get out of bed earlier in the morning when the evening is fresh and good? Why use all those fancy robes? The first thing you know you will become inflated with this hot gym atmosphere, and shoot you through the skylight."

Joe Rivers has swung into the bird dog and bloodhound business—he is now a real realty man. He will stage his first four-round bout near Venice on a five-room bungalow. Then he intends gradually to go up to the line to apartment-houses. Joe expects to be pressing the buzzer from the back porch of a flat before he hits the seven-year-old mark. Now, Ad Wolgast—what have you to say?

Ring worms got rambunctious at the Manhattan now and then. Almost a fight was precipitated last week when one of the pests exalted Mushy Callahan into Benny Leonard's shoes. Exception was taken to this by an old-timer who ventured, "Mushy would last about one round with Joe Gans. Joe would fiddle him into a corner—feint him into a knot and then almost kill him with either a right or left. It would be cruelty to animals to throw the two into the same ring." Silence supervened.

The toughest leather slinger seen at Romey Dempsey's castle in the last few months is Walter Ehle, a sturdy middleweight, who claims that he is the bouncer for Gov. Hunt of Arizona. He says that when the Governor stumps the State, he (Ehle) sort of hangs around and puts the squeeze on malcontents. From his looks Walter is evidently raw meat. His last work under the tuberculars are taken off at the big hotel at Grand Canyon. Ehle, in his haste to show the Governor that he was always Johnny at the ringside, slashed into the dining-room attired in tuxedo. Now this same dining-room has a Jap bouncer of no mean ability. Clash—bang and a rapid fire of his fists with Ehle finally landing a Sunday on the Nipponese's jugular. Walter's memory here goes kind of foggy, for he swears he lifted the Jap out of the window and threw him into abysmal oblivion. Well—let it go at that.

Lou Daro got a double wrist lock and the hold on Hymen last week and slowly pressed his shoulders to the mat. Ever since Otis—the greatest match of his life—Lou has discarded that blinding carnation that seemed to bloom eternally on the left lapel of his coat. Daro was so happy last week that he intimated to Joe Levy, "It's a good thing I haven't a show on this week or I had—I'd give the whole house away in coupe."

RECORD RECEIPTS BUT NOT FOR ATTENDANCE

A total of $1,182,554 was paid by 282,830 persons in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D. C., to see the contests of the world's series. While the receipts reached a new record, the Pirates and Senators played to 18,600 fewer persons than did the Giants and Yankees in 1924, when the record of 301,430 was set.

Weekly Health Talk by Barclay L. Severns

PERFECT HEALTH
Article CLXVII

A man's choicest possession is perfect health!

Don't spend your last years with one foot in the grave! You are judged by your appearance! The world sizes you up by your opinion of yourself—as expressed in your looks, your actions and the force of your ambition. It is the strong, clean-cut, virile man of tireless energy, that gets to the top. One cannot be alert, cannot have full control of one's faculties, cannot have the inexhaustible supply of vitality and energy that means success in life unless one has perfect health. Your physical condition is the root of your whole life. Build your body and muscular strength and you build your mind and vitality and insure success.

The weakling is handicapped from the cradle to the grave—looking for pity from the strong. From his viewpoint, the whole world is against him. His work is pushing him; while the strong, healthy, active fellow is pushing his work.

A few in the weakling class have great ambitions, but are lacking in vitality and energy to make the goal after reaching within a few feet of the desired mark. But the fellow who built up a reserve force of energy, forges ahead, regardless of conditions—he is not looking for an easy time—he knew when he started what obstacles would have to be encountered—interruptions of various kinds must be expected—there would be embarrassing moments when every ounce of energy in his body must be called into play. He prepared himself beforehand, trained for the occasion. Nothing would discourage him, there would be no interference great enough to check him. He wins because he has no thought of losing—he knows his own strength, and has confidence in himself that he will be able to use when it is necessary.

The red and white corpuscles are playing tag through his arteries and veins, his eyes have that 100-candlepower brilliancy, his brain is on the job at all times.

The pessimistic grouch is pushed aside, while he reaches out to shake hands with the optimist. The weakling is looking for the pessimist to console him. He knows he will agree with him that business is rotten, that the world is all wrong.

The real man that plays at any game, whether it be a game of sport or business, looks for a battle, asks for no odds, expects to win. He would not enjoy the game unless it was an even break, he would not be interested in an easy game—he wants the other fellow to have the same chance that he has, he then is compelled to call forth every spark of vitality he has stored up to win—and if he loses he has not failed; because he fought every inch of the way. Credit is due, and is always given to the man with stamina, that puts up a good fight. He lost this time, but he is determined to win next time—he will never lay down.

The weakling is continually complaining about the other fellow having the best of it, luck was against him, it was his off day, they were breaking good for the other fellow, but not for him. Not so with the strong man with "pep;" if he gets into a tight place he will grit his teeth, call on the reserve force and go at it with stronger determination than ever to win, the game becomes more interesting because he has to fight.

We admire a man with these qualities, we feel honored in making his acquaintance. The world is full of opportunities for that class of men, while the weakling spends his time dreaming and fails to see them, and would be too weak to grasp them if he did.

All can be strong if they will be.

SOCCERITES STAGE TWIN BILL TODAY

Scots Face Mercurians in Opener; Hollywood A.C. to Tackle St. George Sons

The soccer bill of fare at Loyola Field this afternoon is undoubtedly the most appetizing dish that has been served local fans this season. Both carded games are stellar attractions, and in each the leadership of the league will be at stake. Local fandom is on edge and a record crowd is anticipated by league officials.

In the first game of the twin bill Scots will attempt to wrest victory from the L.A.A.C. eleven. Manager Archie Murdoch of the Scot squad is entertaining strong hopes that his rejuvenated team will trip the champs. If they succeed in this it will be the first time that the Mercurians will have been stopped this season.

Greatest interest, however, is centered on the scrap between the Sons and Hollywood A. C. Here is a game that is likely to pack the fans into the park. The bitterest of football foes, their meetings have always been productive of foot culture and rousing exchanges that keep the spectators on their feet.

While on the basis of games won Hollywood has a slight edge, nevertheless the Sons are being favored by quite a large percentage of the fans to douse the light of the calcium boys. In accomplishing this purpose, the Sons will have to demonstrate a brand of football of big-league caliber. Hollywood, masters of the finer intricacies of the game, may be expected to combat with everything they have and the result should be the hardest-fought game of the season.

FLEET CANTER COPS RACE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Oct. 31.—The fleet Canter, J. E. Griffith's crack 2-year-old, won the $10,000 added Kentucky Jockey Club stakes at Churchill Downs this afternoon, beating a field of seven other juveniles. He won $23,315 net for his owner. His time for the mile was 1:41.

Flight of Time was second, a length and a quarter back, and Rhinock third, a neck in the rear, but six lengths ahead of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Lancaster.

Canter paid $8.50, $3.70 and $3.10 on each $2 mutual ticket to win, place and show; Flight of Time's price was $3.60 and $2, and Rhinock paid $4.10 to show.

The race, the richest in the West for juveniles this season, was run on a very heavy track. A dense haze hung over the field at post time.

MALLORY DEFEATS BROWN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—Molla Mallory defeated Mary K. Browne, California net star in the semi-finals for the Mexican national championship yesterday afternoon by a 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 score. Miss Mallory will meet the winner of the Charlotte Hosmer, Elizabeth Ryan match in the finals.

Mary Browne gave Molla one of the hardest fights of her long net career and every point was won after a hard fight. Mallory seemed invincible in the last two sets and kept wearing Miss Browne down with a back-court game that had the loser running into every corner of the court.

In the men's singles, Alfred Chapin of Springfield, and partner of Tilden was defeated by William Johnston in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1, 10-8. The match was witnessed by a large crowd. Chapin played superior tennis at the net, while Johnston's service was perfect.

Yesterday's results:

William Johnstone beat Alfred Chapin, 6-4, 10-8.

Elizabeth Ryan and Howard Kinsey beat Williams and Sinsabaugh in the semifinals doubles, 6-0, 6-0.

Mary Browne and Harvey Snodgrass beat Mallory and Walter Westbrook, 6-3, 8-6.

William Johnston and Clarence Griffin beat Casey and Neil Brown in semifinals mixed doubles, 7-5, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

Elizabeth Ryan beat Charlotte Hosmer in semi-finals, 6-4, 6-2.

Kinsey brothers lost to Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Westbrook, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Stock Market Declared in Condition Without Parallel

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. — The stock market today had passed the point where intelligent prognostication was possible. In fact there was a condition without parallel in Wall street's history and defied all attempt satisfactorily to diagnose. The countless cross-currents which daily were witnessed in a persistent push of speculative leaders into record price territory, a big volume of transactions and a wonderment expressed regarding the probable purchasers, were in process of distribution were some of the outstanding conversations in the financial district. Commissionhouse partners today made it plain that former stock market precedents had gone by the board and that one-time traders of 100 shares now were handling 500 to 1000 shares.

What of the Future

Stock exchange men, especially those given to spending many of their idle moments in study, thought they were inclined to look for a similar action which would find reasonable comparison with one former decade and that some five years ago when it was that the public, as we are pictured as "holding the bag" was able to turn tables on Wall street and proceeded to sell back to the "big men" so-called, shares which the former netted substantial profits. These securities, furthermore, were not readily disposed of at a profit, and banked by their friends were investments. Investors for a long time will tell you later than written in finance history be repeated? Was the question currently asked and, from one or two close observers with whom the writer talked, it was thought that duplication was possible and even now in the making. So long as business showed growth and inflation was not overdone commentators today pointed out the stock market trend was likely to proceed, as at present, by healthy reactions were expected. The fact, strongly desired, for the beneficial effect they might have, is a prolonging the present-day conditions.

In The Van

The preference for motor shares lately made apparent in the stock exchange records naturally revived the rather ancient query regarding the saturation point of automobiles. And invariably this ply bore on this steady increase of population and the fact that replacements were necessary and in what ways would be. In the continuing demand for this newer mode of transportation, Wall street points optimistically to other industries greatly benefited through the use and upon them for raw materials combining to make up the present-day motor car. Thus it carries through the steel and leather trades to copper, rubber, cotton and finally to the petroleum industry from which the motive power is derived. Applicable it was to the pleasure and trucking fields. Wall street again stressed the new era in which railroads were made to suffer, but which condition was partially offset through their control entrance into modern action. The steps taken by railroads were small, but growing, and gradually tying up of bus lines with railroad operation was going to light.

An Old Topic

That railroad consolidation matters were coming to the forefront Congress was made apparent by the emphatic declarations from Washington that mergers were necessary if thousands of miles of line were to be retained in use. Originally no more than lukewarm toward the entire subject, railroad executives finally entered the arena of the times and today have laid plans they hoped would win out to their satisfaction.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Financial markets were closed today and changes were dull, especially sterling.

Dispatches from New York figure the fact that the Wall-street boom has been stimulated by the absence of a rise in the British bank rate. The papers give considerable prominence to interviews with the president of the Federation of British Industries on his return from America and statements by Robert Horne, who were greatly impressed by prosperity. The president of Federation of British Industries says:

"The United States is on the verge of astounding prosperity because capital and labor have come together and under the stimulus of mutual ambition, mutual confidence, and mutual sharing of profits have increased production with a decrease in the number of workers."

The official then contrasts conditions here and concludes: "My slogan is a new age for industry."

Shareholders of Vauxhall Motors have confirmed the resolution to bring an agreement for the purchase of the company by General Motors Corporation.

League Urges Proper Display of Old Glory

That the American flag should be displayed in a uniform way has been approved by the Board of Public Works and a flag outfit consisting of a twelve-foot varnished pole, cap and flag may be obtained from the American Legion Post No. 8, at Room 206 South Broadway.

William A. McConnell, Jr., in supervising the installation of the flag outfits. In placing them a hole is drilled twelve inches from the outer part of the curb, and each flag is set twenty feet apart which will keep it from touching any vehicle standing or pulling to the curb. McConnell is asking residents and owners of stores erect these flag outfits before Armistice Day, and is urging persons to call at Legion headquarters, or write him at 1447 La Brea avenue, Hollywood.

FAITH IN COOLIDGE URGED

Number of Important Resolutions Adopted at First Convention of Republican Women

BY MYRA NYE

"Have faith in Calvin Coolidge!"

With this as the final appeal to a splendid oration on "The Foreign Policy of the United States," William R. Castle, Jr., eminent speaker of Washington, D. C., member of the Department of State, brought before the first annual convention of the California Federation of Republican Women's Clubs at Santa Monica yesterday a brilliant and concrete outline of America's place in the world and her relation to the countries of Europe.

Mr. Castle, on a trip around the world, came directly to the convention from the steamship City of Los Angeles, just arrived from Honolulu. This address, written for the Republican women of California, crystallized and emphasized the definite policies of the federation, headed by Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, who presided yesterday for the southern division and by Mrs. O. P. Clark, president for the whole State.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

"Have faith in the Republican party." This was the added slogan presented by the women in their talks of the morning and in the resolutions passed. The outstanding resolution of six was in substance as follows: "Whereas candidates for State and national offices frequently seek support from all or several political parties and so state on the ballot; and since it seems inconsistent and impossible that in so doing loyalty to party principles can be maintained; we believe that party loyalty and responsibility will be lessened and the integrity of the candidates can be justly questioned if this continues; therefore, we, the California Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, numbering fifty-three from as many communities with a membership of thousands cannot support or indorse any one whose name appears on any but the Republican ticket."

Enthusiastic discussion followed the presentation of the resolution by Mrs. George Wing, chairman of resolutions, by many prominent women including Mrs. Van De Water, who spoke against it, but voted for it.

"You cannot serve God and Mammon. You cannot serve the Democratic and the Republican party at the same time," said Mrs. Josephine Winn, president of the Los Angeles club, which numbers nearly 1000 in its membership. Mrs. Winn was emphatic in her declaration for the resolution without qualification or amendment and it was her speech that carried the day.

MAKES PLEA FOR "BLUES"

Another resolution of beautiful sentiment was the one pledging the whole federation to work for the affirmative answer to the plea made by old soldiers of the Civil War that they be allowed to wear blue uniforms in place of the khaki. This resolution was presented by Mrs. Frances Wyant of the Sawtelle Club, aunt of the late President Harding, who said that the blue was worn as authorized when the soldiers fought and they came to be known as the boys in blue as contrasted to the boys in grey.

"They are now so pitifully few in number and are most unhappy now in khaki and in the prospect of being buried in brown in place of their beloved blue. Let us protest against the change and entreat the government to restore to these old patriots this thing so near to their hearts. They are justly proud of the blue. Let us let them know we are still proud of them."

A resolution enthusiastically indorsing the present administration and particularly the leadership of the President was passed unanimously. A courtesy resolution to all having a share in the entertainment of the big convention, large for so recent an organization, formed less than a year ago, another one pledging support and work in the safety campaign of the Development Association of Streets and Highways, and a resolution promising to indorse candidates only after the primary election were all acted upon favorably. The latter one being entirely distinct from the resolution which provided that candidates shall be upon one ticket only to gain favor with the Republican women.

Candidates of every color were present unofficially at the convention. "To see which way the wind blows," as was said repeatedly. Among new names of women mentioned for office in coming elections were: Mrs. Helen Mathewson Laughlin for Superintendent of Public Instruction for California; Mrs. George L. Wing of Riverside for Assemblywoman from her district, and Mrs. Cora Deal Lewis of this city for Assemblywoman. Songs were sung during the luncheon hour to these women, parodies of popular airs composed by Mrs. Ida Koverman, State secretary, and sung by members of the Junior Auxiliary young Republican voters from the hostess club.

"The aim of American policy toward Europe," said Mr. Castle, "is helpfulness without impertinence or impudent interference; cooperation without entanglement; avoidance of promises, which cannot be fulfilled and the scrupulous fulfillment of engagements. The aim of the administration, first, last and all the time, is to promote peace, a peace that will be permanently based on a sympathetic understanding of common problems and on recognition of national rights. This policy must always continue thoroughly American, in that it must be based on the fundamental interests of the United States."

DEBT ATTITUDE OUTLINED

Mr. Castle said that the attitude of this government on the war debts was that of an honest and generous creditor, that it insisted on payment, but would be lenient as to terms, that a nation must pay its debts no less than an individual.

"As I was coming in on the city of Los Angeles into the harbor someone asked me if I didn't think it too bad that Los Angeles is not the capital of the United States," said Mr. Castle.

"No I don't. In a capital of a great national government like ours there has to be a speed limit and you have none here in your growth and expansion. You fall into the error—and error it is—of forgetting that Los Angeles is not the whole United States.

"You might well emulate our President. He is a New Englander by birth, but he is as much a Californian as he is a New Englander, because he is so thoroughly an American. I wish every one of you might know this great man of vision personally. He is not willing for a little temporary applause from those who think on the surface to jeopardize two principles: First, that he is the servant of all the people and must not give or favor special privileges; and, secondedly, that nations must as individuals pay their debts. He believes in the people. He believes in you. To speak definitely, the administration favors our application for membership in the World Court without yielding its position against our entering the League of Nations.

BELIEVES IN LEAGUE THEORY

"Theoretically I believe in the League of Nations. But I, personally, cannot favor entering the present League. The Department of State of which I am a member is closely connected with the Executive. My personal views are the same as that of the State Department and that of the President."

Among the women who spoke yesterday, presidents of individual clubs for the most part, and also, officers of the federation, were: Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. W. E. Evans of Glendale; Mrs. Charles Van De Water, Long Beach; Mrs. F. A. Springstead, Mrs. R. F. Garner of San Bernardino, at whose home the San Bernardino county unit was organized; Mrs. Winn, Los Angeles; Mrs. Harold McDonald, San Pedro; Mrs. Fred Kellog, San Fernando Valley; Mrs. Ella Richardson, Glendale; Mrs. I. S. Hatch, Long Beach; Mrs. Parlane Reid, Manhattan Beach; Mrs. Charles H. Lippincott, Hollywood; Mrs. M. R. Conable, Monrovia; Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich, Sawtelle; Mrs. Nellie E. Terry, Anaheim; Mrs. O. C. Rogers of San Bernardino; Mrs. Laura Kelly of Ontario; Mrs. Dora Stearns, Mrs. Chester Ashley and Mrs. S. L. Creager, who summed up the whole purpose of the convention, by saying:

"We believe that by learning to be good Republicans, we make ourselves better Americans."

CLUB DELEGATES TO MEET SCREEN CELEBRITIES

Delegates of the Federation of Women's Clubs will have an opportunity to meet and discuss motion pictures with prominent producers, stars and directors at the luncheon at the Biltmore Tuesday noon, according to an announcement of Mrs. Alfred Graham of the motion-picture division of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

Among the directors who will make brief speeches on clean pictures will be Charles Brabin and Fred Niblo.

LEAGUE FAILURE IN BALKANS PREDICTED

An optimistic view of the future of the Hawaii Islands with Los Angeles-to-Honolulu steamship service, were expressed yesterday by William R. Castle, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, on his arrival from the mid-Pacific city on the steamer City of Los Angeles.

Castle went to Honolulu to attend the golden wedding of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle. His father was born in Honolulu in 1849. Mrs. Castle came all the way from Berne, Switzerland, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Allen F. Winslow, wife of Maj. Winslow, former army aviator and secretary of the American Legation at Berne, for the celebration. The Castle party was given the courtesies of the port on arrival, being landed from quarantine by the customs department cutter in charge of E. R. Marshall, secretary to Collector Schwaebe.

"I have noticed great changes in Hawaii since my last visit," he said. "The islands are making great progress, and the largest single factor in this, I believe, is the direct steamer service between Los Angeles and Honolulu provided by the Los Angeles Steamship Company.

"This service stimulates all the activities of the island group, and will be of increasing commercial importance as time goes on. Hawaii has a great future before it, and Los Angeles is entitled to much of the credit. You will reap your reward, of course."

Castle has been Assistant Secretary of State for seven years, in charge of the department of European affairs.

CONTRACT COTTON IN HARD DROP

Prices Touch Low Mark of Four Years as Tired Holders Unload

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Another sharp break in cotton contract prices occurred today, extending between 45 and 55 points for the general list from yesterday's closing decline, which was between 50 and 60 under the final prices of Thursday.

December contracts were brought down to 18 3-4 cents; January, 18 1-8; March, 18 3-8, and May, 18½, and as far off as next July deliveries, 18.18 cents. These are the lowest prices reached for the last four years.

Many speculative holders among the bull element here and in the South who had been holding on through the break of early this week, started selling early yesterday and at the same time a large amount of southern hedge selling came on the market. Today there was more of this pressure and, as substantial support had been lacking for the last three days, the market ran into new low levels before the slump was checked by the reappearance of good trade buying by spot houses for mills on the scale down from 18 1-4 cents for January, and 18½ cents for March.

The market rallied about 15 to 20 points from the day's lowest quotations in the late trading, but there was still an unsettled feeling up to the close. The Liverpool market for futures closed with a net decline of about 25 of their points against the decline of 26 to 29 due. Spot prices for middling cotton on the southern markets now range from 18 to 19¼.

SEVENTH HAWAII EXCURSION ENDS

Chamber Party Returns on Local Liner

Members Loud in Praise of Island Trip

Music Box Troupe from KHJ Enlivens Tour

Another triumphant conquest of the Hawaiian Islands terminated yesterday with the return of the seventh excursion party of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce on the liner City of Los Angeles. The friendly invaders came back in high spirits, laden with colorful leis and mementoes of their trip, and full of stories of island hospitality, of business opportunities and business connections cementing the two resort communities in closer bonds.

They went over 125 strong. They came back shy eighteen who found the islands' allurements irresistable.

The communities tried to outdo each other in their welcome. "We saw everything, and made many friends. These 'hands across the sea' campaigns of Los Angeles are twice beneficial—splendid trips and splendid business getters. There should be more," declared R. F. McClellan, chairman of the board of Los Angeles County Supervisors, and chairman of the excursion committee.

TROUPE ENTERTAINS

Going and coming the travelers were entertained by Uncle John and his Music Box troupe from KHJ, The Times broadcasting station, who also toured the islands giving entertainment. Coming back, the travelers improvised a burlesque on the Music Box, with Charles P. Baer, field secretary of the chamber appearing in costume as the prima donna.

The liner brought back more than 100 other passengers, not members of the excursion party, including William R. Castle, assistant Secretary of State at Washington who, with Mrs. Castle and their daughter, went to Honolulu to attend the Golden Wedding anniversary of his parents. The Castles will take train tomorrow for Washington.

Hawaii was represented among the passengers by Dr. Arthur L. Dean, president of the University of Hawaii, en route to Chicago to attend a conference of university presidents. He will return to Los Angeles to attend the Occidental-University of Hawaii football game Thanksgiving Day. Dr. Dean has been credited with being chiefly responsible for the present treatment of lepers, which he says, is proving beneficial but still needs perfecting.

BRITON ON LIST

Another traveler with an entourage, making a leisurely trip around the globe is Capt. Algernon J. D. Jameson of London, gassed during the war and pursuing renewed health. He is accompanied by Mrs. Jameson, and their physician and a secretary. They will pass the winter at Pasadena, proceeding thence to their home in London. Capt. Jameson is the son of the Countess De Villamorina.

Henry McClelland, trade commissioner for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who accompanied the excursionists to Hawaii, will remain there three months to make a commercial survey and stimulate business concord between the resort sections.

OCTOBER TRADE AT PORT GAINS IN VALUE

Commerce in and out of Los Angeles Harbor during October topped all previous months in value by fully 15 per cent, according to estimates compiled yesterday by the Marine Exchange of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. The docks in October handled 1,700,730 tons of cargo valued at $74,367,119. The highest total struck any previous month this year was slightly more than $65,000,000.

Inbound commerce exceeded the outbound in value, being $43,200,395 as against $31,166,724, while outbound tonnage excelled with 1,349,400 tons against 351,330 tons inbound. Outbound trade follows:

	Tons	Value
Foreign	331,262	$ 6,037,444
Hawaiian	969	259,371
Intercoastal	289,637	11,253,951
Coastwise	727,532	13,615,958
Inbound trade:
	Tons	Value
Foreign	44,948	$ 4,472,939
Hawaiian	6,248	929,336
Intercoastal	82,365	17,396,650
Coastwise	217,369	20,361,069

Outbound oil shipments maintained a strong monthly average with 8,521,958 barrels shipped out of this port, apparently assuring a mark in excess of 100,000,000 barrels for the year. Lumber shipments inbound also sustained its average with 112,971,000 board feet, bringing the year's total to date to 1,056,610,000 feet.

Five hundred and twelve ships visited port during October, representing 1,392,755 net tons. Of these 101 were engaged in the foreign trade, 103 plied intercoastal, 311 operated coastwise and four ran to the Hawaiian Islands. Flags flew from 445 American ships, 31 British, 9 Japanese, 4 Mexican, 4 French, 3 Dutch, 2 German, 2 Swedish, 15 Norwegian and one each from Panama and Italy.

COTTON COMPRESSES EXPECT BUSIEST YEAR

That the Los Angeles municipal cotton compresses are handling cotton in a flattering way was the statement of Gerald Fitzgerald, president of the Union and Associated Terminals of San Francisco and Los Angeles, following his visit to the harbor yesterday.

Shipments of cotton are beginning to come in from San Joaquin Valley, Arizona and Imperial Valley in quantity, according to I. E. Blohm, manager of the two compresses, and he expressed the hope the plants would handle 100,000 bales this season, comparable to 20,000, 30,000 and 75,000 bales the three years previous.

The country's cotton yield was 157 pounds per acre in 1924, whereas the yield so far this year in California is 370 pounds. Last year San Joaquin Valley averaged 459 pounds, Riverside 298 and Imperial county 196.

Speed in handling, Mr. Blohm said, is the most attractive feature of the Los Angeles compresses, the practice being to have samples, weights and statistics in the hands of cotton dealers in Los Angeles within twenty-four hours of the arrival of the cotton at the compresses.

"The saving of twenty-four hours or more to the cotton men, where they are buying in the thousands of bales and paying interest on perhaps $1,000,000, may mean the difference between profit and loss," said Blohm. He is employing eighty men on the compresses at present, and expects to double or treble the number when shipments pile up. Bales so far this year exceed the number handled at the same date last year by a big margin, he said.

Shipments are being received from as far as the eastern boundary of Arizona.

The Panama Mail liner Columbia was given the privilege a few days ago of returning the favor to the freighter Robert Luckenbach, which once gave the liner succor at sea. Capt. Omar Baarstad, master of the latter, reported when the freighter put in from the east coast yesterday.

In June, 1924, the Columbia went ashore near the Panama Canal. The Robert Luckenbach rushed to the rescue and took the liner's passengers off safely and carried them to the canal.

October 26, while ninety miles off Acapulco, Mex., the Robert Luckenbach broadcast a message for medical aid for her oiler, ill of blood poisoning. The Columbia appeared as if by magic; her surgeon boarded the freighter, administered first-aid and transferred the sick man to the liner, taking him to a hospital at the canal, where his recovery is believed assured.

Hammond's lumber steamer Trinidad was taken to Craig's shipyards at Long Beach for reconditioning yesterday, marking the first big craft in that yard since it closed down shortly after the war. It marks the re-entry of the yards to active business, giving the port district three such institutions, the others being the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation and the Bethlehem shipyards. Long Beach's stride toward a coming shipping center received a big stimulus this week, not only by the Trinidad, but by the arrival there of the tanker Richfield and the steamer Palisa with 7000 tons of gypsum, largest ship and largest cargo ever entering that port. Contract for dredging a channel opening Long Beach's inner harbor directly to sea, also was awarded during the week.

Heavy listing of Los Angeles passengers for the globe cruise of the big liner Belgenland has prompted the appointment of W. F. Ohlson, manager of Los Angeles headquarters for the International Mercantile Marine, as a member of the staff of escorts to make the trip. The Belgenland, ninth largest liner afloat, and largest ever visiting this Coast, is making her second cruise by way of Los Angeles. She will sail from New York the 25th inst., and will arrive here December 14 with an all-day stopover here. The cruise will cover 28,000 miles and occupy 132 days. She is expected to carry 400 travelers when she leaves this port.

Bids for a passenger and freight steamer, the use and owners of which are still secret, were opened in San Francisco two days ago, from the Los Angeles and Bethlehem yards, as well as several San Francisco and east coast shipbuilding plants. A. W. Lawson, marine architect of San Francisco, who is representing the backers, would reveal nothing more than that the vessel would have something to do with the Philippine Islands. He wouldn't disclose whether it is to operate from this coast. Speed in construction, he said, would dominate in awarding the contract, not necessarily the low bid, but he hasn't had time to check the bids and declined to make them public. Bids also were opened yesterday morning for the construction of two $500,000 ferries for the Golden Gate Ferry Company. Los Angeles shipyards being among the bidders.

Two more Luckenbach freighters put into port yesterday. The Andrea F. will sail at 1 a.m. tomorrow for New York, Boston and Philadelphia, after taking on 1600 tons of beans, tomato paste, canned fruit and fish, walnuts, junk rubber, flour, tile and such. The Robert is discharging 2500 tons from the east coast, ranging from iron and steel to Egyptian cotton, peanut oil, art calendars to pianos and cigars.

Capt. Edward P. Bartlett, commander of the Pacific Steamship Company's coastwise liner Emma Alexander, is reported to have presented his resignation and will become a bar pilot at San Francisco, succeeding Capt. John Eliorich, resigning in December. Capt. Bartlett was the first skipper with the fleet, taking command of the steamer Jeanie when H. F. Alexander formed the Pacific Navigation Company in 1904. It is understood he will be succeeded on the Emma by Capt. Fred Nystrom, who has been on the Alaska run with the Admiral Watson, the latter going to Capt. C. G. Graham, former skipper of the Admiral Evans.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—The T. K. K. liner Taiyo Maru arrived here today from the Orient with 149 passengers in all classes and 2188 tons of cargo. The liner also had in its specie tanks $1,000,000 in gold coin. The cargo of the steamer included 2080 bales of raw Japanese silk and 171 bales of waste silk.

With a good-sized passenger and steerage list and a capacity cargo, the Dollar liner President Pierce, sailed today for the Orient by way of Honolulu.

A new boat deck is being installed on the Matson steamer Wilhelmina which will resume its schedule on November 18, after having missed one voyage.

SEATTLE, Oct. 31.—Large shipments of Philippine hemp, coconut oil, vegetable oil and rice from Chinese ports arrived here today on the American Oriental Mail liner freighter Eldridge after a long voyage to oriental ports, touching Cebu and other isolated Philippine island ports. Capt. Fred W. Brooks reported the shipping situation in China much improved.

Bringing a $6,000,000 cargo of silk and other oriental freight, a good passenger list and 2700 bags of mail, the passenger liner President Jackson is due here tomorrow.

In addition to seventy-five head of reindeer, which are to be distributed throughout the United States as department store Santa Clauses' appurtenances, a large quantity of whale oil and by-products and copper ore, constituted the cargo of the Alaska Steamship Company's freighter Nabesna which arrived here today.

The Alaska mail boat Starr owned by the San Juan Fishing and Packing Company was drydocked here today for annual overhaul and inspection.

VICTORIA (B. C.) Oct. 31.—Seizure of the old exploration ship Ocoukanish, built in Seattle for Vilhjalmur Stefansson for a cruise in the Arctic Ocean many years ago, for asserted rum running activities, will be challenged in the Exchequer Court of Canada, present owners of the vessel announced today.

The Ocoukanish is said to have received 1000 cases of liquor from the ... and ... Lirio de Agua of the Pacific Coast. Both vessels were ordered forfeited to the crown and are being held at the marine department's wharf here.

For inspection, overhaul and repairs, the Imperial oil tanker Mina Brea, now discharging a cargo of fuel oil from California at the company's Vancouver plant, will come here Monday to spend three days in dry dock.

After towing 400,000 feet of lumber from local mills, the steamship Alaska has shifted to Genoa Bay to complete cargo before sailing for California.

The K. K. K. Line freighter Kaisho Maru, with 1,000,000 feet of lumber taken on here, shifted to New Westminster this afternoon. After loading the Fraser River shipments she will clear for Japan.

With twenty-two passengers and 4800 tons of cargo, the latter including 2200 bales of raw silk, the N. Y. K. liner Shidzuoka Maru is due from the Orient tomorrow morning. Four passengers and 254 tons of cargo will be put ashore here, the rest being for Seattle.

Instant Beauty

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy Hair in a Moment

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, an abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.—[Advertisement.

The Story of a Household

Evening always found Mrs. A. nervous and irritable, although there wasn't actually much housework to be done in her small apartment. But she complained that every time she bent over her kitchen table the same old pain in her back seized her, so that it was real agony for her to attend to the simplest household duties. It didn't seem right to be so completely worn when her work was done, and she knew something was wrong. A consultation with a physician solved the problem. Mrs. A. had been suffering from kidney trouble for a long time, just as are many people who suspect it no more than she did. Just a little disorder that could have been overcome long ago was being allowed to develop through ignorance and neglect and was ruining her health.

The treatment was simple and one that the nearest drug store provided. Dr. Pierce's An-uric tablets proved to be the remedy that put Mrs. A. on her feet again and brought her old energy. How sorry she was that she hadn't thought of it long ago! She recommends "An-uric" (kidney-backache) Tablets to all her friends now.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks — Sparkling Eyes — Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.—[Advertisement.

For at least two months, ... present into the past, Los An... capital of the world.

Assurance of this fact came ... by William Alanson Bryan, ... Museum, that the first unit of ... eight additions to the present ... be formally opened to the public ... seen circumstances.

Simultaneously, the Pan-American Exhibition, one of the outstanding events of the art world for the year, is to be inaugurated. Canvases with an aggregate value reaching close to the $1,000,000 mark will be on display, fittingly, in the new museum unit.

Coming together as they do, the two events become the most important episode in the life of the local museum since its formal dedication in 1913. In that year, three years after the laying of its corner-stone, William M. Bowen, now president of the board of governors, and a group of earnest citizens with the recreational and cultural future of the city close to their hearts, saw before them a completed structure upon which $350,000 had been spent and which appeared at that time to be amply adequate to its particular purpose for all time.

GENIUS ARRAYED

Probably none of the group which officiated at the dedication ceremonies dreamed of the pressure gauge on the artistic pulse of the community the museum was to become. In not far-distant years, the present structure will be completely absorbed in an ensemble covering a square block bounded by the present sunken gardens, Thirty-eighth street, Menlo avenue and Exposition Boulevard. The entrance facade will look out upon the Coliseum. The initial step in this commanding program of expansion is a visual certainty in the unit to be opened the latter part of this month. Although only an eighth part of the projected whole, a comparative idea of the enormity of the completed achievement stands boldly forth in the size of the initial unit—three times that of the entire museum as it now exists.

No less arresting is the array of genius on canvas that dedicates the new structure.

The Pan-American Exhibition is to be exactly what its designation implies. The most prominent artists of this country are listed among the exhibitors as well as notable artists of Mexico, Canada, Central and South America and the West Indies. Thirteen of the South American painters who are living at present in France and Spain have sent canvases from those countries, the local museum having arranged for the shipment through its European representatives in Madrid and Paris.

LIMITED TO OILS

The exhibition is limited to oil paintings. When installed in the new unit and in the main gallery of the present unit, the collection will comprise nearly 500 canvases. Of these, 225 are from the brushes of artists living in the United States, twenty-five, of Canadian origin and the remainder from Latin-American sources.

Examples of the older school, from those who rank as deans of painting, are to be side by side with studies by the younger artists and the modernists, providing an excellent opportunity to trace the trend of art during the last forty years or more. Another contrast of interest will be afforded between the work of South American painters who have used the Indians as subjects and our own New Mexico artists who have pinned the Indians of the Southwest to the easel.

Unlike the Commemorative Exhibition by the National Academy of Design at Washington, D. C., this year, the Pan-American is wholly contemporaneous, Director Bryan declared.

"That this first Pan-American Exhibition has been realized from the plans formulated in the spring is a good augury for the future plans of the museum," said he. "To undertake the assembling of so large an exhibition to celebrate an event of local significance means that contracts have been established in other parts of the world which may be of great value in the next few years.

CITY TO BE CAPITAL OF ART WORLD THIS WINTER

BY FLOYD J. HEALEY

For at least two months, as the year of 1925 slips from the present into the past, Los Angeles is destined to be the art capital of the world.

Assurance of this fact came yesterday in the announcement by William Alanson Bryan, director of the Los Angeles Museum, that the first unit of the elaborate proposed series of eight additions to the present structure in Exposition Park will be formally opened to the public the 27th inst. barring unforeseen circumstances.

Simultaneously, the Pan-American Exhibition, one of the outstanding events of the art world for the year, is to be inaugurated. Canvases wite an aggregate value nothing close to the $1,000,000 mark will be on display, fittingly, in the new museum unit.

Coming together as they do, the two events become the most important episode in the life of the local museum since its formal dedication in 1913. In that year, three years after the laying of its corner-stone, William M. Bowen, then president of the board of supervisors, and a group of earnest citizens with the recreational and cultural future of the city close to their hearts, saw before them a completed structure upon which $250,000 had been spent and which appeared at that time to be amply adequate to its particular purpose for all time.

TRADE TOUR TO ARIZONA SCHEDULED

Business Men Plan Trip to Cement Good Relations Existing Between States

In furtherance of the program to strengthen the already cordial business and industrial relations existing between California and Arizona, a party of fifty prominent business men and industrial leaders of Los Angeles will leave here tonight for a tour of Arizona points. R. W. Pridham, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will head the delegation.

The tour is being undertaken upon invitation of the Arizona Industrial Congress, which will be the host to the party on its itinerary of visits to the leading agricultural districts, dams, mining projects and other points of interest in the neighboring State.

The trip, however, will not be all business, according to William Lacy, chairman of the Arizona cooperation committee, who will be one of the members of the party, as the Arizona congress has promised a long list of specially arranged entertainments.

"The trip is made solely for the purpose of cementing and augmenting the cordial co-operative spirit already existing between business and industrial interests of the two States," Lacy declared last night.

"Undoubtedly the vast amount of business and agricultural and industrial interchange now existing between Arizona and California will increase steadily in the future.

"A complete interlocking of the two States' business and industry is not improbable, so closely allied are the interests. For instance, Arizona doubtlessly receives a vast benefit from advertising placed by California in eastern publications. There are many similar examples.

"In view of this it is the desire of both States to preserve and enhance the spirit of co-operation now existing."

Other officials of the Chamber of Commerce who will be in the party are F. L. S. Harman, assistant secretary, and F. C. Simons, market director.

MANY VISIT COUNTY EXHIBIT IN CHICAGO

BOOKLETS ALL GONE, WIRES AHLBORN, AND MORE HELP NEEDED

With 1500 visitors a day flocking to the Los Angeles county exhibit recently installed by the local Chamber of Commerce in Chicago, present shipments of Southern California literature are proving inadequate to meet the demands, J. Frederick Ahlborn, Chicago representative in charge of the exhibit, declared in a telegram to the Chamber of Commerce here yesterday.

"County booklets all gone. Believe interest will continue indefinitely. Double shipments," mas gist of the telegram, which also asked for fresh fruits and vegetables to add to the horticultural exhibit which, according to Ahlborn, is proving of immense interest to the snow-weary Chicago inhabitants.

On account of the interest manifest it has become impossible to give individual attention to all visitors, the Chicago representative declares, though W. F. Fowler, local man assisting him, has agreed to remain over a few days longer to help with the tremendous rush for information. More help is needed at once, Ahlborn says, as the response to the exhibit has exceeded all expectations.

Two of Paintings and Sketch of New Museum Hall

JANE OPENS CONTROVERSY WITH SANTA CLAUS QUERY

When Jane Bessemer wrote a letter to the editor of The Times asking if there really is a Santa Claus, apparently she started a controversy in which not only boys and girls, but grown-ups of Los Angeles are taking sides.

Fred C. Packard

Some of them, according to letters received by the editor, are siding with Jane's playmate who nearly broke Jane's heart by telling her Santa Claus is only a myth. Others, and they represent by far the greater number, have written to Jane through the editor, insisting that there is a Santa Claus.

Included in the army of dyed-in-the-wool believers in Santa Claus is a genial mail carrier named Fred C. Packard. He has three boys, the youngest being 3-year-old Dwight, and the other two being Harrison and Junior.

"Of course there is a Santa Claus!" said Packard, as his face lit up with a smile. "He has been to our house lots of times. And we mail carriers certainly ought to know. Every year around Christmas time we carry thousands and thousands of letters between him and the many little boys and girls of Los Angeles. We hope that everyone will follow Santa's example this year and do their Christmas mailing early."

Russell Beechtel

But, on the other hand, there is Russell Beechtel of 529 California street. "Santa Claus? Aw, applesauce!" And there you are. Although Russell admitted that if he could just actually see Santa and his six live reindeer he might be induced to change his mind. Maybe some other boys and girls who read The Times can throw some light on this question.

HUGE FACTORY FOR HARBOR

Million-Dollar Can Manufacturing Plant to Be Started Within Sixty Days

Los Angeles Harbor is to get another new million-dollar plant. Work on the first unit of a new factory to be erected at the port by the G. N. Easton Corporation, can manufacturers of San Francisco, will begin within sixty days, according to an announcement yesterday by the industrial department of the Chamber of Commerce.

Located on the main channel, the new factory will be close to harbor fish canneries. It was the growth of the seafood packing industry here that played a leading part in bringing the new plant to Los Angeles, according to Carl J. Gordon, vice-president and general manager of the corporation, who will have charge of the Los Angeles plant as well as of the northern units.

The new factory will be equipped with the latest equipment and between 400 and 500 persons will be employed, according to Gordon.

Giles N. Easton is president of the company and is one of the oldest can manufacturers in the country, having founded the United Can Company in San Francisco, which in 1906 was taken over by the American Can Company. Another pioneer manufacturer associated with the Easton Corporation is Oliver J. Johnson, for the last four years a resident of Los Angeles. Edward B. Jordan, manager of the corporation's plant at San Jose, has been engaged in the can manufacturing business in California for twenty years.

Selection of Los Angeles as the location for the southern plant of the corporation was made only after a thorough survey.

Foreign Legions to Have Part in Armistice Ball

Emphasizing the international aspect of the Armistice military ball to be held at the Ambassador Auditorium November 11, the committee in charge yesterday extended invitations to every Allied war veterans' organization in Los Angeles. Prominent among these were the British, French, Italian and Belgium societies.

The ball is being sponsored by nine distinct American patriotic organizations and the Interpost Council of the American Legion, all of which groups will be beneficiaries from the proceeds derived. These organizations have all indicated their intention to open individual headquarters at the dance, and, with the invitation extended to the Allied warriors, the affair will mark the first comprehensive reunion of American and other World War veterans held in the city since the Armistice.

TOO EAGER IN TWIN CONTEST

Contestants Must Wait for All of Pictures

Incomplete Sets Sent in Now Have No Chance

Final Group the 8th Inst.; More Given Today

So eager are some of the contestants in the Twin Matching Contest now being conducted by the Los Angeles Times that they are forgetting the rules, and sending in their matched pictures now.

Pictures must be saved until the last page of twins appears, in the rotogravure section of the 8th inst., and those submitted earlier, being necessarily incomplete, can have no chance of taking a prize.

Again: Do NOT send in any matched pictures before the 8th inst.; but DO send them so that they reach the office of the Twin Contest Editor on or before 6 p. m. the 13th inst.

RETAIN NUMBERS

Assembled pairs of twins should be pinned or pasted side by side, preferably pasted, on a single sheet of paper or in a notebook of convenient size, or a roll or strip, or on large sheets bound together. Remember that neatness counts. Do not cut off the numbers.

The Times has all the twin pictures needed for the contest and no more are wanted.

So much as a preliminary to the announcement that the fifth series of pictures in the Twin Matching Contest, for which $250 in prizes is offered, is published in the rotogravure section today and that the sixth and last series will be published next week. Today's series, like the second, third and fourth, belongs in the second or larger group of twins—the matching pictures for today's half-twins may be found in any one of the last six series. The first series formed a complete group in itself.

TEST OF SKILL

Each picture is numbered, but the numbers are no aid in matching up the pictures. They are, however, for the guidance of the

THE irony of it is this:

France is rampaging around the world like a mad dog at a Sunday-school picnic.

Sowing dragons' teeth; and stirring up a world war that will threaten the existence of the Christian nations.

And she is doing it with our money.

The Liberty Loan money that the "four minute orators" assured us was to be used to clothe and arm our own soldiers.

WRITING A NOVEL

Michael Arlen told me some interesting facts about novel writing at his luncheon the other day.

He spent two months writing "The Green Hat." Of this time one month was devoted to the opening conversation of the book.

NAMING THE GIRL

He regards the names of the characters as the most vital part of the problem.

After working a whole year on a novel, he tore up the manuscript because he couldn't find a name for the heroine that rang true. He said that he knew there was something the matter with the whole story if he couldn't find a woman's name that seemed to fit.

So novel writing isn't such a cinch, after all.

WHAT'S THE MATTER

There must be something radically wrong with the inner apparatus of our Army. In a well disciplined army, this absurd Mitchell affair could never have happened.

It would seem that a stronger man is needed at the top.

IN CHAFFEE'S DAY

The last great character who commanded our Army was Gen. Adna R. Chaffee.

There was no back-talking melodrama in his day.

ASK LOWDEN TO IOWA FETE

Hawkeye Banquet Will Be Conducted at City Club on Evening of the 21st Inst.

Hon. Frank O. Lowden, the almost penniless Iowa farm boy who became one of the leading figures in American public life, has been invited to attend the Hawkeye banquet at the City Club, under the auspices of the Los Angeles-Des Moines Club the evening of the 21st inst., after the U.S.C.-University of Iowa football game.

Mr. Lowden has accepted an invitation to speak at Oakland two days before, and it is believed by W. B. Brown, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the local affair, that there will be no question about the former Governor of Illinois being present. Mr. Lowden was graduated from the University of Iowa in the early '90's.

A meeting has been called next Thursday noon at the City Club for the entire membership of the Los Angeles-Des Moines Club by its president, C. A. Ballreich. Final details will be announced at that time concerning the preliminary arrangements for the banquet at which the University of Iowa football team will be guests of honor.

Souvenirs for the Old Gold football men are to be provided by a special committee of three appointed yesterday by President Ballreich, C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Iowa Association, will be chairman and his assistants will be B. A. Landers and B. N. Moss.

Word also was received yesterday by James H. Van Law, chairman of the reception committee, to meet the Iowa team at the train that it was probable that Gov. John Hammil of Iowa would be able to accompany the gridiron representatives of his State university to the Coast.

Prominent former Iowans from other parts of California are expected to be present at the game and banquet, according to reports received by Los Angeles residents originally from the Hawkeye State. Among these will be Mr. and Mrs. James G. Berryhill of San Francisco and probably Edwin L. Sabin of La Jolla, nationally known author.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale at the University Club, the City Club at 529 West Sixth street, and Long Beach Iowans and their friends can obtain tickets from John G. Spielman and in Whittier Dr. Walter F. Dexter will have charge of the sale.

MANY TO AID CHEST

The 14,000 workers who are to canvass Los Angeles and outlying districts during the Community Chest campaign are donating their services to the cause of charity. Thousands of them will work longer than the ten-day duration of the appeal as there has been much work in the lining up of teams for the campaign.

paintings to travel so far except in the case of a large international exposition of art where all countries compete for honors. But the Pan-American has been received, as an idea, with enthusiasm and a spirit of cordial co-operation."

The most important shipment for the event has reached the museum. In it were canvases from the Eastern States, Canada, France, Spain and Venezuela with a valuation in excess of $500,000. They came through the Panama Canal, in whose paradoxical separation and binding of two continents lies the theme for the coming exhibition.

Included in the lot is Childe Hassam's "April—1859," valued at $15,000; Gari Melcher's "MacPherson and MacDonald," worth $12,000, and the $10,000 Eugene Savage creation, "Recessional."

Twenty paintings from among those submitted were nominated by the jury of acceptance meeting here during the last week. The jury was composed of William Wendt of Laguna Beach, Armin Hansen of San Francisco and Monterey, and William Clapp, director of the Oakland Art Gallery, all of them being artists whose work has been exhibited many times at the local museum.

For the Pan-American, the United States was divided into two groups, an invited section and one to be selected by jury competition. In the latter group, seventy-five was the maximum number of acceptances. Preliminary juries in New York and Chicago, composed of Kenneth Hayes Miller, John Costigan and Jerome Meyers, selected the canvases that have just arrived. In Chicago, the full quota of fifteen was nominated.

Locally, the jury named twenty from 140 submissions by 120 different artists. Seattle, Santa Fe, Kansas City, Chicago and Honolulu were represented at the final selections here.

NEW COSTUME COURSE

The costume design courses given at the University of California extension division have been so popular that Louise Pinkney Boog, the instructor, will also give a course in the history of costume, beginning November 5.

SPEED UP NEW CLUB BUILDING

Promoters of Southern California Athletic Rush Construction Plans

Work preliminary to the beginning of construction of the Southern California Athletic and Country Club will be speeded up in the next few weeks, according to Charles H. Thompson, president of the organization, who said yesterday building operations are expected to start early next year.

The new clubhouse, which is designed to be one of the finest of its type in the world, will be built on Wilshire Boulevard in the block between Carondelet and Coronado streets. Revised plans for the structure provide for stores on the ground floor which will greatly increase the annual revenues of the club.

With all of the officers and directors of the club co-operating with special committees, an intensive drive is now being conducted to obtain new members for the organization. Dr. K. Chester Gummess is chairman of the membership campaign committee. Headquarters of the club are established in the Consolidated Building, with Secretary H. B. Lawrence in charge.

President Thompson pointed out yesterday that every facility will be provided in the club to enhance the comfort and enjoyment of the women. Two floors will be set apart for exclusive use by women. A women's entrance will be on Coronado street.

Discussing the plans for the clubhouse, Edwin Bergstrom, the architect who designed the building, said yesterday:

"This clubhouse was planned to offer to the members every facility for exercise, bathing, comfortable living, dining and entertainment. Especially was it planned to provide the comforts that would appeal to the out-of-town members who come to the city with their families.

"Provision for family accommodations for members promises to make the club the first real one of its type in Southern California. The idea of a combined city and country club with these family accommodations greatly appealed to the residents of this section of the State, with the result that approximately 4000 memberships were purchased by them in less than two years.

FREE-HAND DRAWING COURSE

Elementary free-hand drawing and design will be taught at the University of California extension division, starting November 5.

Rules of Twin-Matching Contest

1. Every Sunday for six weeks, up to and including November 8, the Los Angeles Times will print in its rotogravure section a group of twin pictures. The public is invited to match the twins by cutting out and assembling the pictures in correct sets and sending them in at the close of the contest.
2. The Times will pay $250 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correct and neatest sets of pictures, as follows:

First Prize	$100
Second Prize	75
Third Prize	50
Fourth Prize	25

3. The contest is open to everybody—men, women, boys and girls—except employees of The Times and their families. Costs nothing to participate. No subscriptions required. Just prove your skill.
4. A new set of pictures has appeared every Sunday during the contest. Cut out and save them and match them as they appear. The first published group of twins was complete and you could finish matching them at once. Thereafter, pictures have appeared mixed so that twins of the same set may or may not have appeared in the same issue. For example, when a single twin picture appeared, you were to save it until the other twin's picture appeared or appears in a later issue.
5. Save all your pictures and pin or paste them together on separate sheets securely fastened or in a convenient-sized notebook. After the sixth group has appeared next Sunday and you have assembled all the pictures in correct sets of two each, send them in one large envelope or packet to Twin Contest Editor, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal., so they will reach The Times not later than 6 p.m., November 18. Write your name and address plainly both on outside of envelope and on a slip attached to entry inside.
6. Each entry must be sent by first-class mail—postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will not be considered. Each contestant is entitled to send in one set of pictures only. No alterations permitted after receipt of entry.
7. Each picture bears a number, but this is to be disregarded by contestant, as it is intended solely for the guidance and convenience of judges in checking. The judges' decisions will be final. Accuracy counts. Neatness counts. In case of ties, full amount of prize will be given each tying contestant.

HE WAS BOSS

After old Chaffee captured the Gates of Peking during the Boxer Rebellion in China, a foreign diplomat sent word he would like to have a "conference." Chaffee sent back word that, inasmuch as he captured the works himself, he would do all the "consulting" single-handed.

CUT THE WIRES

He didn't believe in civilian chair warmers meddling with the Army. When he took the field against hostile Apaches he sent out a corporal with a squad of troopers to cut all the telegraph lines, so Washington couldn't mix in.

PANNING THE PRINCE

A great hullabalioo has been stirred up in England because the Prince of Wales dressed up as a girl during some amateur theatricals on ship board.

This is a peculiarly interesting incident.

In the olden days of English royalty kings were not averse to monkey shines and horse play.

NAPOLEON PLAY-ACTED

Perhaps the strongest monarch in English history was Henry VIII; and Bluff King Hal seems to have been a frisky old chap.

Even Napoleon liked to play at being an actor; and his biographers say he was a good one.

Now that kings and princes have been absolutely stripped of power they are expected to act like kings without any infractions of royal dignity. In other words, having become lay-figures, they are to be impressive looking lay figures.

Metropolitan Founds School of Engineering

Another forward step will mark the progress of the metropolitan college of the University of Southern California with the establishment of an engineering school granting a degree in electrical engineering, beginning with the winter quarter, which opens on December 28, according to an announcement made by Dr. Thomas W. MacQuarrie, director of the college.

The course in engineering is intended to fit men to engage in the design and manufacture of electrical apparatus, and in the production, distribution and utilization of electrical energy.

In charge of Prof. P. S. Biegler, head of the electrical engineering department of the University of Southern California, the work in the engineering laboratories will be so arranged as to co-ordinate with that in the lecture rooms, in order that it may supplement and drive classroom work as well as develop the initiative and judgment of the students.

College algebra, electrical engineering and construction design are among the courses which will be given next quarter. Information regarding this work in engineering may be secured by application on the thirteenth floor of the Transportation Building, Seventh and Los Angeles streets, or by calling TRinity 1701.

It is not too late to enter the contest. Back numbers of the rotogravure sections may be had at The Times office on personal application. The prizes are well worth while: $100 for the best job of matching, $75, $50 and $25 for the second, third and fourth best, respectively.

The contest is entirely one of skill. Observation will enable the contestants to trace family resemblances, even where the resemblance between twins is slight. Look closely for the points of similarity and you will be able to match the twins correctly. The contest is open to all without restriction, save that employees of The Times and their families are barred.

So get in and win.

FAR CORNER OF EARTH ON 'TIMES' LIST

American Consul Thanks Chamber for Copy Sent to Him in Madagascar

James G. Carter, American Consul at Tananarive, Madagascar, expresses his appreciation of the Los Angeles Midwinter Times special edition in a letter received by the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. The letter was mailed August 14 last, in reply to one sent him by the local chamber on March 14.

"The Los Angeles Midwinter Times, your chamber's manufacturers' directory, and other booklets you sent me have come to hand," Carter wrote.

"In thanking you for them I want again to express my thanks to you for your continuance in remembering me, and in thinking to keep me on your list for the regular booster numbers of The Times and other publications.

"Personally I get considerable pleasure out of these publications, and the visitors to the consulate and persons to whom they are communicated also find them interesting.

"I found your article in the Midwinter Number of The Times on the doubling of the trade of Los Angeles in 1924 and its thirty-fold increase record in the last eight years exceptionally interesting, particularly your reference to your shipments to Delagoa Bay. You asked if persons knew where that place is, and then stated that it is about as far away from Los Angeles as it is possible to get. I trust Los Angeles will be able to make some shipments to Madagascar within the near future, and you will be able to make a similar statement concerning our remoteness from your fair land."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS GO IN FOR ATHLETICS

The organization of an athletic commission by the Knights of Pythias has been announced. As a start a bowling league is being formed in which about ten local lodges will be represented by teams. Members interested in this sport are requested to get in touch with their local organization and unaffiliated members may report to any local lodge.

CITY HEADS EXPORTS TO LATIN TRADE

Los Angeles Shown to be Nearly $5,000,000 Ahead of Nearest Coast Rival

An investigation just completed by the trade extension committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce has shown the Los Angeles Customs District to have a decided lead in exports to Latin America as compared with all other customs districts of the Coast, according to an announcement made yesterday by C. H. Matson, chairman of the extension committee.

The figures released by Matson are based on a compilation made by B. A. Williamson, assistant district manager of the Seattle office of foreign and domestic commerce, and upon estimates and figures gathered locally.

"Total sea trade with Central and South America, Mexico and the West Indies from the Los Angeles Customs District is $18,343,178, of which $7,297,410 is with South America," Matson stated.

"The nearest competitor is the San Francisco district, with a total of $4,389,789 in export trade with South America and $9,175,393 with Mexico, Central America and the West Indian markets. This is almost $5,000,000 less than that done by this district."

South American export trade of the Washington and Oregon districts with South America also is far short of that here, declares Matson, the former State doing a total business of $4,073,809 and the latter $1,141,140.

"It must be remembered that fully half of our exportations to Mexico are made by rail," adds Matson.

OPERA AND ARTS CLUB WILL PRESENT DRAMA

TWO PLAYS WILL BE GIVEN TOMORROW NIGHT BY DRAMA DIVISION

Under the direction of Mrs. Florence Dobinson, the Los Angeles Opera and Fine Arts Club, through its drama department, will present a program of unusual interest tomorrow evening, at the clubhouse, Menlo avenue and San Marino streets.

Two one-act plays and two groups of song numbers by Hortense Barnhart-Jones and Bernard Klassen will make up the evening's entertainment.

The first of the plays, "Mothers," by George Middleton, is a serious drama. It provides for a cast of three, Gertrude Kellar, Mary Isabelle Alpaugh and Kenneth Childs, the former two having won recent laurels with the Dobinson Players in "Manna" at the Philharmonic Auditorium.

Second of the two plays will be a smart satirical comedy by Aurania Rouveyrol, entitled "An Affair of Art." This is the first production of the sketch, made up of good dialogue, plenty of laughter and with an underlying note of seriousness. In the cast will be Montague Shaw, Mary Isabelle Alpaugh and Charles Fortier.

The musical end of the program will be contributed by Hortense Barnhart-Jones, who has returned to Los Angeles for a visit after a successful stay of five years in New York, where she achieved unusual honors as a mezzo-soprano in opera and concert, and Bernard Klassen, a tenor of exceptional talent.

JUDGE TO INSTRUCT MEN ON CHEST PLAN

More than 1000 men of Los Angeles will become intimately acquainted with Chest plans on the 5th inst. when former Federal Judge Bledsoe addresses the United Church Brotherhood banquet. The dinner is to be in the Chamber of Commerce banquet hall, with John M. Chamberlain as chairman.

REAL ESTATE LAW CLASS

A course of interest to property owners in general in law relating to real estate starts at the University of California extension division the 4th inst.

Dare-Devil Will Again Do Stunt That Broke Neck

Dare-devil stunts like the one in which he broke a bone in his neck and dislocated two vertebrae will be attempted by Richard Talmadge in his newest picture, "So This Is Mexico," work on which has just been started at the F.B.O. studios under the direction of Noel Smith.

Talmadge is the only man known to American surgery who ever broke his neck, survived the injury and returned to normal health with the full use of his body and faculties. Invariably in such cases the victim has been paralyzed generally from the neck down. Surgeons have marveled at Talmadge's recovery and attributed it to his remarkably fine physical condition and his good clean living.

In "So This Is Mexico" Talmadge has another scene to do very similar to the one in which he was hurt, but he is not in the least perturbed and will go through it. Talmadge has lost none of his nerve as a result of the accident as has been attested by his recent story leap from a window of the Biltmore Hotel to an adjoining room some months ago.

On a Vacation

"How long are you in jail for, Mose?" asked a fellow-prisoner.

"Two weeks."

"What is the charge?"

"No charge, no charge, everything is free."

"I mean what did you do?"

"I shot my wife."

"You killed your wife and are in jail for two weeks!"

"That's all, then they hang me."—Indianapolis News.

CHILDREN PLAN BOOK-WEEK

'll Be Star Performres' In Event, While Adult Leaders Are Asked to Share Interest

BY FAITH HOLMES HYERS

The year 1924 brought out 533 children's books in America and in England. With this evident interest of English-speaking people in books for children, we may ask why a Book Week? But it is very wealth of material that necessitates an organizing of forces concentrating of attention on directing and protecting juvenile Children's Book Week was inated in 1919 through the ed interests of the Boy of America, the American Association and the Amer- Booksellers' Association. Los has been a leader in the ing of interest in books this annual celebration endures through the year. year the "Earn-a-Book" idea, ing in the Public Library developed through the schools, ed in the purchase of 4000 by Los Angeles children. earn-a-book and own-a- slogan is not encouraged careful instruction by and children's librarians to select a book worth own- Not only are lists of worth- titles supplied but brisk dis- of good books, talks on illustrations and bindings given.

The boys and girls themselves are to be the star performers in the week's activities. They will stage plays, dramatized from their favorite books, in the schoolrooms and at the branch libraries. They will make lists of best books compiled from their own experience in reading. They will examine editions and choose illustrators and will discuss book people. They will make posters and enter contests about books. Junior high school students will compete for a prize of $10 worth of books given by the Broadway Department Store for the best advertisement written about a book. Senior high school boys and girls will write on "What is the greatest good the printed book has done for mankind?" and the prize will be awarded by the Children's Book Store.

The lists made by every school will be posted in the branch libraries, and as many as possible of the chosen titles will be on display. Children's librarians will give talks on books and stimulate discussion by the children. That such talks have borne fruit in past years is shown by a letter received by a librarian from a boy in Angeles Mesa School:

"When you compare Tom Swift, whose adventures never could happen, to Tom Sawyer whose adventures could have happened to any regular boy, then you know the difference between a good book and a bad book. You can find real adventure in Verne's 'Mysterious Island' or real invention in his 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea.' And remember, a good book is not overdone nor underdone!"

The committee on recreational reading with Mr. L. E. Hoffman of the Boy Scouts of America as chairman and Mrs. Gladys Case, principal of work with children of the Los Angeles Public Library, as secretary, together with their many loyal helpers feel that Book Week itself will be "underdone" unless every adult tells some child of the pleasure and profit to be found in books.

PLANS TO GIVE DIRIGIBLE RADIO

Chamber of Commerce Offers Set to Namesake, 'Los Angeles'

If Secretary of the Navy Wilbur gives his approval, the dirigible Los Angeles soon will be equipped with a radio set which will be presented by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. The chamber has written to Secretary Wilbur in an effort to determine whether such a gift will be acceptable, according to a statement made yesterday by A. G. Arnoll, secretary of the organization.

The set will be of aluminum construction conforming with navy regulations, especially with regard to airship construction, it was said.

Conference of Boy Scouts Set for Pasadena

Representative Boy Scouts of California and Western Nevada are to discuss the four problems of "The Boy and His Home," "The Place of the Older Boy in Scouting," "The Place of the Older Boy in School" and "The Place of the Older Boy in His Community" at a three-day conference at Hotel Green, Pasadena, on November 27, 28 and 29.

In addition to four official boy delegates from each of the district councils, all Eagle Scouts have been invited to participate in the conferences. Los Angeles has fifty-one Eagles, the highest Scout rank, who will attend. The discussions will be attended by more than 200 boys, of a minimum age of 15 years.

Similar conferences are being held elsewhere, the reports collated by adults, and from the mass of material it is expected that valuable material will be gathered in the way of new welfare literature prepared from the boy point of view. Utah and Eastern Nevada Scouts have just completed their three-day conference and Arizona Scouts will meet at Prescott for three days beginning November 20.

In addition to the large number of Los Angeles and Southern California Scouts, Oakland will be represented by twenty Eagles, San Joaquin by twenty, San Antonio Council by twenty-five, Crescent Bay Council by fifteen and Centinella Council by ten. This is the first western conference of Boy Scouts to which Eagle Scouts have been invited as a whole.

WILL STUDY INCOME TAX

A class in the income tax starts Wednesday at the University of California extension division. Roy Burton, a C.P.A., instructs.

BRANCH OF LIBRARY TO OPEN SOON

Public Admitted Tuesday to New Building at Naomi and Twenty-fifth Streets

With the removal of the Helen Hunt Jackson Branch Library from its rented roms at 2701 Central avenue to the new stucco building at Twenty-fifth street and Naomi avenue, the Los Angeles Public Library numbers twenty-one out of its forty-four branches housed in their own buildings. The Helen Hunt Jackson Branch is an outgrowth of the Central Avenue Branch, which, due to overcrowded conditions and its location on a main artery of travel, was divided into two, the Bret Harte Branch at 508 East Twenty-third street and the Helen Hunt Jackson Branch.

Noerenberg, the architect, who also designed the buildings for West Jefferson, Figueroa and Edendale branches, has succeeded in combining in this new library ample window lighting with sufficient wall and shelving space together with an attractive exterior. There is a main reading room 26 x 25, a children's room 22 x 23, a delightful clubroom for the neighborhood gatherings and kitchen and workroom for the staff.

The new building will be open to the public Tuesday. Miss Rood, librarian, plans to invite different neighborhood groups to inspect the building on stated days in order to avoid the congestion of a general opening.

Waugh, dean of the college of liberal arts at the University of Southern California, has just been elected president for the term 1925-1926 of the Southern California chapter of Sigma Xi, national honorary fraternity, organized for the promotion of scientific research work. The election took place at the University of California, Southern Branch.

POOR VOLIVA

The founder of Zion City pretends to be both poor and inspired. Yet he paid $15,000 income tax and, as proof of his inspiration, says the world is flat.

THE DREAMERS

This idea of saving our flappers by inculcating a love for a higher grade of music sounds good in the argument, but the girls are still keeping in the wake of the saxophones.

TWO IN ONE

Killing two birds with one stone is not as easy as the proverb sounds, but the trick was turned with a golf ball on an English course recently. A player drove a ball that not only cut a bird in two at the outset of its smashing flight, but brought down another 100 yards farther on. It would seem that a couple of birdies should be good for an eagle.

THE MISSING LINK

The British Museum is once more seeking to trap the missing link. Some bones found near the shores of Lake Tanganyika, in East Africa, supply a plausible warrant for the quest. If the explorer can find the skeleton of the missing link it is thought that the brain pan will be big enough to fry an egg in. Most of the searches for the missing link centralize in Africa. This is possibly because they have bigger and better monkeys on that continent than any other.

WORLD-WIDE PHILANTHROPY

Ed W. Howe, during an address in Chicago, declared that John D. Rockefeller was the world's most useful citizen. Through the Rockefeller Foundation and other aisles of jointed activity he has assembled a mass of priceless information that is freely released for the benefit of all mankind. This organization fights plagues and diseases wherever found and has saved the lives of thousands. It has also spread healing knowledge into every corner of the earth.

NOT MIXING

A German writer asserts that, although America was not officially represented at the Locarno conference, our government was in substantial control of that gathering and not a step was taken or an agreement reached without the consent and approbation of the Coolidge administration. This is romance of the first quality. Uncle Sam is agreeable to anything that will advance or promote universal peace. He is in tune with national understandings that make for righteousness and progress, but he was not either behind or in front of the scenes at the Swiss performance.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Several countries of Europe and South America are becoming heavy buyers of American phonograph records. The demand for these disks of harmony across the water and in the Latin Americas has been speeded up to a remarkable extent in the last year or two. The radio may have brought a slump in the United States, but in other lands the phonograph is more popular than ever. The American makers of music and the builders of radios and talking machines have still a broad field before them after the peaks of saturation have been climbed in this country.

SAFETY MEASURES

Boston must be being made safer for the pedestrians on the narrow streets of the city. In one week nearly 700 motor licenses were suspended or canceled and the work of correction is going on. The licenses were taken up when the drivers were under the influence of liquor or indicated a dangerous speed. They were also suspended when the cars were found without proper brakes or with blinding lights. It has been found that the most effective way of meeting the mistakes or penalizing the crimes of motorists is to take the car away from them. Suspending the license is the surest means of doing this.

THE RICHEST PEOPLE

According to Sir Robert Horne, England's former Chancellor of the Exchequer, the average American is richer than the average citizen of any other country. If he refers to some of the original Americans he is indisputably right. The Osage Indians, for example, could finance France's military enterprises in Palestine and Africa without casting a feather. In 1922 every member of the tribe down to the sixty-fourth degree received $11,700 from oil royalties alone. There are only 2100 Osages, counting bucks, squaws and papooses, yet they have received a total of more than $50,000,000 in royalties since 1915. If all the white man's wealth in this country were evenly distributed each white American would have about $1800. If all the wealth of all the Indians were equally distributed each individual would have about $2100. On all the reservations Indians are riding in Fords, but they have no reason to envy Henry's millions.

FOOLISH WAR SCARES

Demobilizing the armies after the World War ended was much simpler than demobilizing the combative spirit that four years of war nurtured and developed. The hectic emotions stirred by the clash of shock troops and the clash of heavy artillery that deadened the thunder of the storm clouds were slow to subside. The men who won the war were glad that it was ended, and they have no desire to repeat their experience. Only those who were always safe far behind the lines and enjoyed the thrill of reading of wholesale slaughter regretted that they were deprived of their daily narcotic.

War furnished their chief entertainment. It fed their craving for new thrills; and since the war period they have not ceased to scan the horizon for new storm clouds. Every international conference that falls fills them with secret rejoicing; and when a conference seems to have achieved its purpose they are loud in their prophecies that the pacts negotiated will not be kept and that another great war must follow. They infest all European capitals, revel in war scares and are international nuisances.

If they could have their way wars would never cease. They are petty Neros that would set parts of the world on fire just for the pleasure of witnessing from afar the conflagration. They are always throwing lighted matches about, hoping that one of them may start another fire.

Fortunately for the peace of Europe and of most of the rest of the world, the last great war served as a flood to so thoroughly soak all the countries involved that no dry branches or leaves remain with which to feed a flame. When the mountains are dry in summer a single match may start a forest fire; but for weeks after a winter rain a million lighted matches could be thrown into the brush without starting even the tiniest blaze.

That is the condition of Europe at the present time; and that is why a few sparks, like those emanating from the Greek-Bulgarian clash, are not dangerous.

Those who listen to reason, in place of becoming a victim of hectic emotions, are not disturbed by prophecies of another great war, of an impending clash between the white and yellow races, of another baptism of blood for the Christian nations.

The World War was fought because the generation in Europe that was conducting affairs in 1914 had never seen a serious war. They had no conception of what it meant. Each country imagined that it could win glory and reap material rewards. But that generation is wiser now. France perhaps won more than any other single nation engaged; but France's material losses far overbalanced her winnings. The account, both in finances and in human life, stands indisputably in the red.

If the winners are left in a state of financial and physical collapse, what is there to win in a war? This question has been driven home to Europe and to the world. War has lost its glamour and its promise of reward. The politicians who agitate for military decisions are no longer popular. The people support the government that keeps them out of trouble.

Only those blinded by ambition or by passion and prejudice make wars, those who have a contempt for humanity as a whole. Wars of aggression are not made by those who are of the people, but by those who are above the people, dictators by reason of birth or successful violence.

Representative government has replaced most of the old despotisms, and the despotisms that remain exist in name only. The people of the modern nations must be consulted about making war. They are the arbiters of war and peace. Under the old dictatorships war was an affair of the king and his counsellors. The people fought because they were driven to battle. Wars were often conducted by hired mercenaries, military bandits who slew and plundered under royal license.

Parliaments must now vote the necessary war budgets; and the parliaments, representing the whole people, know that they can no longer resort to military decisions. At no other time of historical record has peace been so firmly enthroned in Europe.

Russia is perhaps the only country whose government might drag the people into a foreign war. But the experience of Russia in its attempt to overrun Poland shows that the soviets cannot maintain an army in the field. It is axiomatic that an army moves on its belly, and Russia's belly is empty. That, in plain Anglo-Saxon, sums up the Russian situation.

Hectic imaginations may envision another World War. But it is little more likely than Wells's imagined attack on the earth by the Martians. Religion and education have been planted as seeds of peace in the heads and hearts of the whole Caucasian race; and that seed is ripening to a harvest. As for those fevered brains that see a bucket of blood flowing from a mosquito bite and a potent forest fire in every match, it is better to regard them as mental addicts than to take them seriously.

THE PEKING PARLEY

Quite characteristic of the eruptive moods of modern China was the demonstration made by the disorderly mob before the winter palace in Peking, where the delegates of the foreign powers were assembled with Marshal Tuan to discuss the Chinese demands for tariff autonomy. It must have been none too reassuring to those of the delegates who had regard for their own lives to learn that only one policeman was killed and a score of others injured while preventing the rioters from getting into the palace and assaulting the members of the conference.

That Marshal Tuan's demand upon the delegates that China be granted the desired autonomy should be met with the statement from Japan's representative that autonomy presupposes the existence of a strong unified government is not surprising. The October meeting is not likely to determine anything beyond a program of procedure for the November and December conferences. For China, at this time, to hold that she is in a position to demand anything save sympathy from foreign powers is by no means in keeping with the conditions in evidence. The peculiar nature of her nationalism is demonstrated by the fact that there are now several warring factions in the field, each bent upon defeating the rest and assuming the mastery.

Gen. Chang Tso-Lin is now fighting to regain his hold upon Kiangsu, in which Shanghai is located. He is master in Manchuria, Shangtung and Chihli. Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang has picked out the northwest for himself, four provinces with Mongolia. Gen. Wu Pei-Fu is cracking a nasty whip over Central China, where he dominates three provinces. In Canton and Kwangsu there is the Red regime established by the late Sun Yat-Sen. This makes four. The fifth aspirant is Gen. Suan, who has driven Chang's soldiers out of Shanghai, and of all the frogs in the puddle is now croaking the loudest.

What there is left of China for foreign powers to treat with is a miserable remnant which calls itself the provisional government, feebly intrenched at Peking and governing so little Chinese territory that one wonders what permanent good there would be in granting it tariff autonomy, extraterritoriality, a box of cigars or anything else save pity for its miserable weakness and ineptitude.

It took Japan fifty-three years to win tariff autonomy, and at the present rate China may not gain it in 500.

THE GHOST WALKS

It seems that France is peeved because her American bill collector has called for settlement.

The call of a collector peeves us also. We shun his approach. We do not make him one of the family. We hesitate to answer the summons at the door. We call him names.

It seems that about the best way to miff a man or a country is to do him a favor. Allow a man to put himself in your power and he begins to undercut you.

If you would keep a man as a friend, says an old maxim, never lend him money. To feel himself under obligations to you arouses his antagonism. He does not like pay days.

Human nature is a queer combination. The very people who should be the most grateful often turn against one and launch their attacks. Honor with some does not seem to count for much.

Few men can say "Thank you!" gracefully. They are so suspicious of being patronized. They want the ghost to walk; but never away from them. This is one ghost whose approaches are a delight.

The little blue envelope makes all the difference in the world which way it is headed. If you would have a man your friend induce him to make an investment in you at whatever cost. Let a nation sacrifice for you and it will be your backer forever.

We enjoy our investments. It is complimentary to have them turn out well. It speaks for our foresight and acumen. On the other hand, we grow suspicious of the hand that helps.

America will forgive France for all the ingratitude. That will be in accordance with the law just stated. France will ever be but a spoiled child to Uncle Sam.

Whether France can ever be cordial again is the question. If she pay up she will. If she fail she will not. There will be continual justification of her attitude. England will pay up and be a better friend than ever. It is human nature.

THE NUDE IN ART

In purifying the State another little matter to be attended to is the pruning of examples of Greek art as revealed to students in the high schools and colleges. Rev. Bob Schuler is reported as having joined with others in laying the problem before the State Board of Education with a protest against the reproductions or illustrations of ancient sculpture and art.

If the rising generation is to be kept unsullied the eyes must be guarded against the nudities of Roman marble. The Psyches, the Venuses, the Junos and the Dianas must be put in two-piece suits. Their dazzling pulchritude must be swathed from susceptible eyes. When Pluto bears off the struggling Proserpine the lovely maiden must at least have a bath robe to hide her embarrassment. The fauns and satyrs must at least have their mufflers on.

The examples of the old masters which have been offered to students indicate a distressing lack of apparel on the part of the subjects. There are Hebes that lack even a string of beads to cover their distress. All the matrons must have been broke when Phidias was a lad. At least they were not able to visit the photographer with a decent rag on their gleaming backs. There were whole flocks of goddesses who never had a nightgown between them. No wonder their pictures bring indelicate fancies to our growing folk.

There must be no bare-backed Circes to demoralize our youth. Grecian art must be freed from its insidious but fell influences. Students may have their synthetic gin and their necking parties, but the Venus de Milo must be put in a Mother Hubbard.

Just About It

A POLITICAL CINCH

Time was when a member of Congress
For votes had to barter and trade,
And to tell all the hicks who abode in the sticks
What a wonderful record he'd made.
He had to point out many measures
He had valiantly helped to put through,
Or a different face would appear in his place—
When the Congress assembled anew.

But now he goes back to his district
And says with a wan, weary smile:
"I have come here to say that I only can stay
Among you a very short while.
I love all the friends that I see here,
I love this delightful home town
But I cannot remain, for my duty is plain,
I am cutting the income tax down.

"A terrible task is before us,
Who stand for the people like me,
Who are plying the ax at the root of the tax
That is rotting this land of the free.
Grim forces are marshalled against us,
But we never shall falter or pause
Till we've lifted this yoke from the necks of the folk
Who have sent us to fight for their cause."

No matter what party they train with
Their speeches are always the same,
They stoutly affirm at the end of the term
That to cut down the tax is their aim.
At last they have hit on an issue
Which none is prepared to attack,
And there's reason to fear at the end of next year
That they all of 'em likely get back.

THE WORLD'S FIRST MUSEUM

Among the innumerable records in stone and clay tablets which the old Sumerians left, and which are included in the collection of objects found at Ur of the Chaldes, the city of the patriarch Abraham, now at the British Museum, is one relating how Sin, the vice-regent at Ur under an Assyrian king, set up a museum—the first in the world's history of which we have record. The great feature of the exhibition is the stele, or big monumental stone, which was set up to record the building of the Ziggurat—a tower like that of Babel, with a temple at the top of it—and the making of canals by King Ur-Engur (or Ur-Nammu, as he was alternatively called.) Of Teraphim (household gods,) such as those Rachel stole from her father Laban, and hid in the camel's baggage, there is a large number of quaint specimens among the exhibits.

SOME REFLECTIONS

BY J. A. GRAVES

If any further evidence were needed that our fool criminal laws, including the indeterminate sentence, the parole and the power of the State Prison Board to release prisoners at its own sweet will, the discharge of "Big Hutch" affords that evidence.

"Big Hutch" is one of the most dangerous men in the United States. He is a notorious criminal. He is not a retail petty-larceny thief, but a wholesaler. Through the untiring energy of the late Tom Woolwine he was apprehended, brought to trial and convicted. Judge Willis, who tried the case and who sentenced him, had he not been controlled by the law as to the sentence to be imposed upon him, would undoubtedly have given him twenty years in the State prison. After serving that term his usefulness as a bunko artist would have been at an end. In twenty years manners, customs and habits of the people change. The style of flimflamming changes with each decade, and the chances are that, in twenty years from the time he was sentenced, the arts of "Big Hutch" would have been entirely out of date and unworkable.

I do not charge that any undue influence was used upon the State Prison Board to secure his release, but "Big Hutch" and the band of criminals associated with him could well have paid $50,000 to accomplish what has been done. He was given an indeterminate sentence of from one to twenty years. Upon his incarceration in the State prison the State Board fixed his term of imprisonment at seven years. They have now discharged him when not more than one-half of the term has been served.

I do not know what the tenure of office of these men is, but I do know that public opinion of the people of the State of California would support Gov. Richardson, and undoubtedly the courts would also support him, if he would discharge the entire board for flagrant disregard of their duties. But, instead of removing these officials, the Governor has, in print, expressed confidence in them. If he has confidence in the board he is the only man in California, except the thieves whom it paroled, who has.

We hear, in common conversation, about the greatness of our present criminal lawyers. That is all bunk. They are not great. They are not talented. They don't have to be. The cards are stacked against the people of the State in favor of every criminal who comes to trial.

Another case. An erotic old criminal, old enough to be a great-grandfather, robbed a safe-deposit vault in a bank in this city of $90,000. The crime was only committed a few years ago. Convicted, he secured an indeterminate sentence to the penitentiary. He has long since been discharged. He should have been allowed to spend the rest of his misguided days where he could not perpetrate a further crime. With such examples of leniency before them, what is to deter weak-willed individuals, of criminal tendencies, from perpetrating nearly every crime known to our criminal calendars?

It is to be hoped that the discharge of "Big Hutch" will so arouse the people of Southern California that when the Legislature again meets they will insist upon the people getting a square deal against the criminals. And while the Legislature is at it there is another fool provision that should be obliterated. If a first-degree murderer is, through the idiocy of a sob sister male-and-female jury, convicted of manslaughter and the Supreme Court reverses the verdict for some technicality, the criminal cannot again be put on trial for any greater crime than that for which he was convicted at the first trial.

There is but little incentive for prosecuting officers to exert themselves to secure conviction, if the criminal, when convicted, can be pardoned at the will of the State Prison Board. It is an astonishing thing that those Christian uplifters, who are staunch believers in the Bible, want to reject one of its admonitions of "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" and impose trivial punishment for heinous offenses.

I am not in favor of multiplying either our State or national holidays, in fact, all business men would like to see a curtailment of them. If that is not advisable, then strike Labor Day off the list and submit in its place Farmers' Day. Agriculture is the most important of all of our industries. It is the life of the nation. Curtail its activities and we would all suffer. Suppress it and we would all starve. The farmers are always on the job. They never strike. They leave that criminal infamy to organized labor, to the McNamaras, Stones, Lewises and other parasites who live off the toil of deluded workingmen. Farmers never conspire to blow up buildings, to destroy railroads or murder men whose only offense is desiring to earn a living without carrying a union card. They have never sought to bribe and, failing in that, to intimidate their fellow-men into committing most hideous crimes.

We now have the anthracite coal miners out on strike. Railroad men and workers in other industries may declare sympathetic strikes. It might be a good idea for the farmer to say to all of these strikers: "All right. You will not give us coal or transportation or much-needed articles of husbandry or clothing. Now we will not feed you. We will burn such food supplies as we have on hand, besides enough for our own use, and we will not plant more than enough ground to raise supplies for ourselves. Go to it, and let us see how long you will last." That would be the logical way of fighting the devil with fire. But the farmers are above that. They are human, law-abiding citizens. The man who will sit up, when the temperature is below zero, with a sick cow or an ailing horse, through the long vigils of the night, hasn't it in him to work hardships upon his fellow-men. He has not been commercialized or materialized.

No matter how much they are imposed upon by thieving politicians; no matter how much they are robbed by unscrupulous middlemen; no matter how much they are bled by criminal organized labor, they go on feeding the public with the same resignation that a loyal mother will rob herself of all comforts of life to add to the pleasance of her children. Farmers never conspire to blow up buildings, to destroy railroads or murder men whose only offense is desiring to earn a living without carrying a union card. They have never sought to bribe and, failing in that, to intimidate their fellow-men into committing most hideous crimes.

ure of some scalawag son or daughter, always ready to impose upon her and who, by past conduct, has sacrificed every obligation that the mother owes to them.

We have come to that season of the year when the harvesting is finished, when the crops are gathered and the farmer can look upon his efforts for the year with satisfaction. Nature has been generous. Nature, like the farmer, never strikes. She scatters her favors with equal generosity upon the just and the unjust. Year in and year out the earth yields her treasures to honest industry. The farmer is the medium between productive soils and generous yields and all those things which make life worth living. All honor to him. It behooves the rest of mankind who give no thought to the debt they owe the farmer, to deal more generously with him than has been the custom in the past.

By all means strike out Labor Day—uselessly given over to celebration over victories won by sabotage, fraud and intimidation—and submit in its place Farmers' Day as a national holiday.

Taking everything into consideration, the people of the United States should be doubly thankful for the prosperity they are enjoying. True, merchants have not made as much this season as they expected to or as their investment and energy expended justified; but they are on the firing line, solvent, ready to take advantage of increased demand when it comes.

Manufacturers in some lines have done well; in other lines they have suffered from largely increased overhead charges, lessened demand and aggravating strikes by their employees.

Labor should especially rejoice. Thanks to the artificially created shortage of labor resulting from our very strict modern immigration laws administered by an enthusiastic member of organized labor who occupies the position of Secretary of Labor, labor has enjoyed the highest wages for any service that have ever been paid for similar services on any portion of the earth. Public officials everywhere have had their pay advanced to levels never before attained in America. Judges have not shared in this advance, but most of them are probably getting as much as they are capable of earning. The best legal talent on the bench.

The purchasing power of the farmers is larger than it has been for years. The savings of the people have increased. This is evident by the increase in savings deposits, the extended distribution of stocks in public utility and other corporations among wage-earners and the purchase of corporation bonds by people who never before invested in them.

The sane administration of President Coolidge is giving satisfaction to the masses of the people who believe in economy and efficiency on behalf of our public servants. Of course, political hoodlums of both parties, who follow politics for what there is in it, dislike him. The masses, however, who do the voting at election time, are for him. He is striving for a reduction in Federal taxes, for economy in governmental as well as private affairs. He deplores the wild extravagance of the age. He is for a saner, less exciting life for all of our people than they are now living.

Gov. Richardson has been seriously handicapped in his efforts at economy by the hold-overs in office from the last administration. They have done everything in their power to thwart his efforts, to belittle his intentions and to discredit his administration. No lie concerning him is too venomous, no slander too startling, no innuendo too malicious to prevent their using it to injure him. There is now a well organized movement on the part of organized labor to defeat him at the next gubernatorial election. They would put in his place some shifty follower of the thoroughly discredited betrayer of the Republican party, Hiram Johnson. Before they can accomplish this the taxpayers of the State will have to be consulted. I am sure they will be with the present Governor. If they are not, they deserve all the misery they will reap, just as the voters of Los Angeles city deserve what they are now getting, after having elected the present city administration. When they have settled this year's tax bills they may see things in a different light.

NORDICS LOSING GROUND

W. J. Perry, a British authority on anthropology, thinks that the "Nordic" people in Great Britain are losing ground. "Nordic," as used by ethnologists, has about the same meaning as "Teutonic." In the great urban centers, such as London, the tall blond people are gradually being replaced by the dark-haired and brown-eyed people. The Nordic blood gets along all right in the rural districts. According to this authority, but the dark-complexioned people thrive better and multiply faster in the cities. They seem better adapted to cope with city conditions. If the tendency continues, and in England becomes more and more marked with the growth of her factories, she will in time have a population in which the Alpine and Mediterranean people predominate.—[Pathfinder.

MORE AMATEURS CAPTURE CASH

Nine Awards Made in Photo Prize Contest

E. Allan Sheet Wins First Place in Judging

Second Camera Honors Go to Charles Van Laun

Again proving that it is anybody's camera race, virtually every cash award for the week of October 18 to 24, inclusive, in The Times' amateur photographers' prize contest was captured by a person who either had not been a contestant before or had failed hitherto to "get in the money."

The first prize of $10 went to E. Allen Sheet, 1603 West Santa Barbara avenue, Los Angeles, and the second prize, $5, to Charles Van Laun, 2417 South Hope street, Los Angeles. Neither of these men had been a prize winner before.

The other prizes of $2 each went to Albert Dygert, 311 Mountain View avenue, Watts; Mrs. C. A. Holtman, 3731 East Seventh street, Los Angeles; Miss Mary Henderson, Banning; Sydney W. Green, 2523 Mariposa street, Fresno; Shreve Ballard, care of the Title Insurance and Trust Company, Fifth and Spring streets, Los Angeles; Mrs. F. J. Howitt, 1255 Iona street, Los Angeles, and Virginia Burmister, 2225 Fifth avenue, Los Angeles.

The prize-winning prints will be reproduced in the rotogravure section, November 15.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS' WEEKLY PRIZE CONTEST

To encourage the making of more and better photographs for rotogravure reproduction The Times offers the following cash prizes weekly for photos by nonprofessionals:

$2 each for all other photographs accepted for publication.

Each contest begins Sunday and ends the following Saturday night. The winners of each will be announced in the Sunday Times one week after the close of that particular contest. All photographs received during one week will be considered as entries in the contest of that week.

All prize-winning photographs will be reproduced in the rotogravure section. The first set appears today in the rotogravure section, comprising the prize-winning photographs of August 9.

Everybody is eligible except professional photographers and employees of The Times or their relatives. There are no geographical limitations on contestants except that, other things being equal, a Southern California photograph will be given the preference.

Mail all pictures to Photo Contest Editor, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal. No entries will be accepted except by mail.

The Times cannot undertake to return any pictures submitted.

Photographs submitted in this contest should be approximately 5x7 inches or larger, printed in black and white. Write name and address and title of picture—if it has one—with a soft lead pencil on reverse of print. Don't lean on your pencil or the impression will show through. Tell where the picture was taken.

The Times reserves the right to call for and use the negative of any photograph accepted for publication. The negative will be returned to the owner after use.

As photographs are to be judged primarily for rotogravure reproduction, keep in mind that the best results in this medium are secured through the use of sharp photographs, with a good range of tone. Soft focus photographs are not generally desirable. An exception is where the picture is diffused to center attention on the part to be emphasized.

Every photograph submitted should tell a story which is so obvious or so provocative of thought that a caption or identifying line is not really necessary. Photography is an art; use it as an art.

PLANS MADE FOR CANNED FOODS WEEK

Speakers to Explain Merits of Packed Edibles in Drive Beginning the 9th Inst.

An elaborate series of luncheons, banquets, club affairs and other social events, at which speakers well-versed in subjects pertaining to the canning industry will appear, was in process of being arranged yesterday by W. M. Henry, member of the general committee, which is preparing for the local observance of Canned Foods Week, beginning the 9th inst.

While most of the speakers will consist of local men and women, acquainted with all phases of producing and serving canned goods, Henry said, several prominent dietitians, chemists, physicians and scientists are expected to visit Los Angeles from the East to deliver addresses of special importance.

"Canned Foods Week," he explained, "is designed to be a constructive and enlightening campaign. To put canned goods on a deserving plane, it will be necessary to make the period an era of real service for housewives, restaurateurs and all consumers of food."

With the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association solidly behind Canned Foods Week, according to statement of the organization's secretary, E. G. De Staute, it was shown that virtually every retail establishment for dispensation of foodstuffs in the Southland will join in carrying on the canned foods educational campaign to housewives.

Dr. Carpenter's Book on Flying Situation Ready

A booklet entitled "The Meteorology of Flight Conditions in Southern California," by Dr. Ford A. Carpenter, manager of the department of meteorology and aeronautics of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is ready for distribution to the public, it was announced yesterday. The booklet is from an address delivered by Dr. Carpenter at a scientists' convention here.

In the booklet, Dr. Carpenter asks and answers four questions which have long been of standing debate: "Is there a basis of fact in the statement that flying weather in Southern California is the best in the United States?" Second, "Why is local weather dependable for air routes in and out of Southern California?" Third, "What is the present status of military aeronautics in California?" and, fourth, "What are some of the local problems confronting the advance of commercial aviation?"

The book is comprehensive in its discussion of these phases of air interest, as well as in many others discussed.

It is expected that many of Dr. Carpenter's declarations will be demonstrated anew by the Armistice Day sky carnival at Clover Field, the 11th inst., when aviators and scientists from all other the country will gather here for the event.

TO STUDY BOTANY PUZZLE

Scientist Seeks Solution to Strange Appearance of Some Flora in Chile and Southland

CLAREMONT, Oct. 31.—With the possible solution of one of nature's age-old mysteries before him, Ivan Murray Johnston, well-known Southern California bontanist and former resident of Ontario, Claremont and Berkeley, sailed from the Atlantic Coast this month for Chile, where he will remain a year studying Chilean plant life. His chief research problem will be devoted to solving the similarity between the flora of Chile and the flora of California, which are so closely related, many species being identical.

Since the botany of Southern California has been studied local botanists have wanted to study plant life in Chile, but Johnston is the first one given the opportunity. His mission is regarded by botanists as being exceedingly important.

Botanists visited Chile many years before they visited California and reports on Chilean plants were published as early as 1790. Much confusion has been caused by the lack of specimen material in local herbariums for study in comparison of the species and Johnston will bring to this country his own material.

PUZZLE TO BOTANISTS

It is the general hope of scientists that a study of Chilean flora by one who knows the local plant life so well, will explain the close similarity of these floras which are so widely separated by an intervening tropical flora. How plants could have crossed the hot equatorial area is a puzzle to botanists.

An interesting feature in connection with Johnston's study is that a few common species not only occur in South America and in Southwestern United States, but also in the Rocky Mountains and in a few isolated stations in Newfoundland.

AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Johnston is a graduate of Chaffey Union High School, Ontario. Later he attended Pomona College and the University of California, graduating from Berkeley. Last year he received his Ph.D. from Harvard University and was awarded the Sheldon Travel Fellowship for his study in Chile this year. He is being sent to South America by the Gray herbarium of Harvard University.

FOREWORD

To endeavor to adequately describe this magnificent estate by a pen picture alone, would be totally unfair to its grandeur.

Rarely has the coveted art of landscape gardening as exemplified by this veritable Fairyland portrayed a more luminous work, so suggestive of nature's beauty, so truly transfigured and remote from man's average ability to cope with her. Only the master mind of the celebrated English Landscape artist, Arthur K. Landsdowne, inspired by the love of his art, together with an ability (the fruit of his life study of trees, shrubbery and flowers) could blend into one gloriously harmonious whole, so large an expanse of ground as has made this wonder spot a possibility. Situated high, in beautiful and fashionable SMILEY HEIGHTS, in the heart of Redlands' unmatchable hills, "MONTE VISTA" is one of California's show places. Visitors have acclaimed it "one of the most beautiful spots in America" because of its velvety lawns, terraced and formal gardens, fern rockeries, glass enclosed aquatic pool, rustic rock work, imposing Eucalyptus, Bay, Pine, Cedar and Cypress trees, stately Date Palms, Flowers, Plants and Shrubbery of rare species together with approximately 20 acres of full-bearing Citrus fruits.

Over 10,000 yards of landscape rock forming retaining walls (completely surrounding property) and walkways dot the estate, adding a charm enhanced by nature's handiwork. The quiet and seclusion of this wonder estate, broken at times by the call of the quail with the further delight of the presence of song Birds and the squirrels among the trees, make more impelling the fact, that hardly can there be found elsewhere a similar estate in so happy a combination with every city convenience. 10 minutes from the heart of Redlands and 2½ hours by motor over a magnificently paved highway from Los Angeles—in the cool, refreshing mountain air, amidst a picturesque setting of Fairyland Hills, permitting of added indulgence in landscape whims and fancies and surrounded by other magnificent estates, some of which represent a cost of over a half million dollars and owned and occupied by foremost California and Eastern families.

TO SEE "MONTE VISTA" IS TO DESIRE IT!!

Drive out today or any day prior to the sale and inspect this Garden Spot—for only th will you be able to fully appreciate its sublimity as is emphasized by its name—symbolic nature's touch and charm.

She suddenly feels that she has a really tremendous issue of life to decide. So up in the dormitory, away from the adoring gaze of her Adonis, she fights it out alone. Upon the strength or weakness of her femininity depends the issue.

CAREERS FOR WOMEN

When careers for women began to be seriously considered, many years ago, it created some excitement and much concern was felt as the women of the land began to desert the home nest and try out their formerly latent wings in the world of commerce and trade. Some of the artistic professions had always been open to them, but now the professions held to belong wholly to the masculine portion of the community were suddenly invaded by the feminine sisterhood. The conservative ones held it to be a challenge to the "divinity that shapes our ends"—a sort of gauntlet thrown down to the "powers that be."

There are several angles to the question of marriage versus a career. Almost as many as to its presentation. Given a splendid setting, like that of the Egyptian play recently staged at the Philharmonic, it ought to be no problem at all. In such guise it merely represents a selfish type of ambitious woman whose inordinate grasp after power blinds her to the greater things of life. A type, to be sure, of only a certain class of women who are willing to forego their real womanhood to grasp at some scepter of worldly power and position. Such types are repulsive to average humanity and fortunately are in the minority. They make no very great or lasting impression on the world at large.

The great masses of womankind are the ones most subject to the changing conditions of the changing world. They often are forced out of the home nest to do battle for not a "cause," but plain bread and butter. When a career is not essential to a livelihood and the right opportunity comes, the normal woman would naturally choose love to a career. Unless there is a constraining urge in her nature, like that which drove the knights of old to an "adventure," love and home life would undoubtedly make the strongest appeal. The case is altered when she is confronted with the bread and butter problem and the right man fails to appear. The right one usually fails to appear in this mixed-up civilization of ours. Until he does, a career, any career, is infinitely better than marriage.

It is what we might call fine propaganda to generalize on the present condition of things and urge women to forego vocations in the interests of the race. The analyst can see no real interests to be served by these hit-and-miss marriages entered into in the callow-youth period. They are seldom happy or successful, as our divorce courts bear witness. The ideal of womanhood and motherhood in the home is very beautiful. We feel that we have lost something out of our modern life in the vanishing of the old traditions. Better so, however, than the cheap imitation of true love and romance.

Life has hurried us on and we now find ourselves in the midst of conditions both exacting and distressful. We cannot return to the old days nor the old ways. As the vocational fields are filled with women we must deal with the situation as we find it.

MARRIAGE VS. CAREER

Whether the conditions of life today are the effect of a cause, or the cause of an effect to follow later, is not quite clear. Doubtless things in general are more complicated since the World War, although long before that deplorable event women began to be dissatisfied with household cares and sought relief from them in the business world. The war merely opened up many more lines of activity into which women could fit. As almost any condition in life is better than an unhappy marriage, it is far better to wait and be sure before one makes a contract like that. In the meantime a vocation may be a necessity. It is of no use to cry out against it from pulpit or stage, in fiction or drama.

Some marriages may be managed quite successfully in conjunction with a career. Some careers may go hand-in-hand with marriage—a triangle that works out more happily than another kind of which we hear much. As a rule, however, marriage and a career do not belong together and a failure of one or the other often results from an attempted union. Still the same thing happens now and then when pursued separately. Indeed, the whole question of careers for women seems to have been overstressed.

Really, do you not think that we have taken ourselves and our fancied importance to the world of affairs far too seriously? Now and then one of the sisterhood rises to some height of usefulness outside of the home. When through some superior qualifications she has something to give out in answer to a need, or some niche to fill, as it were, in the larger world, she loses nothing of her beautiful womanhood in making the sacrifice.

In making due allowance for all these exceptional cases there is no doubt whatever concerning the true vocation of womanhood. It was assigned to her from the beginning. Its unalterable laws are written in her very being. She cannot escape them. They are her heritage. The way is not always open, however, for the fulfilment. Circumstances arise which compel her to forego love and marriage and force her into the maelstrom of outer-world action. Her future career then rests in her own hands. She may forge her way ahead with indomitable courage through many obstacles and handicaps and rise to supreme heights, or she may quarrel with the fate which deposited her in an uncongenial situation and slip along inefficiently and discontentedly, taking no interest in her work, and end in failure. She would have ended in failure in the marriage relation and in the home, so one man in the world has escaped a galling bondage through her forced entrance into the world of business. To succeed in any relation of life one must have within herself the qualities that make for success.

CHOOSING A VOCATION

Thus it is not always a matter of "choosing" a career. It sounds important to the average young woman to talk about "choosing" a career. It is flattering to her budding intelligence. It is a sort of mirage floating airily before the imagination of the college girl or the high-school graduate. She has been brought up in the modern school of thought and is thoroughly convinced that this is "woman's age." In reversal of all knightly precedent, men now are regarded by her as mere subordinates intended to fulfill her high behests, or behests other than high.

If she unbends from her high and lofty pose and condescends to take a mere man for a husband while the vision of a career still lingers somewhere in the background of her imagination, there is likely to be unrest and dissatisfaction later on. Love, indeed, must be quite overpowering in its strength to surmount the tantalizing vision of a career in the mind of the progressive modern girl.

STARVED TO KEEP TRUE TO IDEALS

William Howard's Rise to Fame Rapid as Producers Recognize His Sincerity

There always has been a great deal of room for a young man with new ideas in motion pictures.

There still is plenty of room, although some of it became occupied with the advent into screen work of William K. Howard, now one of Paramount's "ace" directors.

Howard has never directed a picture in which he did not sincerely believe. He'd starve first, he says, and in the early days of his career—he is just 30 years of age—he almost did.

The story of his first days in the motion-picture capital is the same heart-breaking one as that of thousands of others— no work, money and spirits lowering daily, skimping on meals and moving to cheaper lodgings each week. Finally his capital was reduced to 5 cents and he was ousted from his room. But he stood by his ideals and the dividends have been large.

Often, during the early days, this young Ohio State University product parted company with the producer for whom he was directing on the most unfriendly of terms. At last he found producers who agreed with his ideas of making motion pictures. From that time his rise to fame was rapid.

A year and a half ago Howard attracted the attention of Jesse L. Lasky and was placed under a long-term contract to direct Paramount pictures. Since then he has made "The Border Legion," "The Code of the West," "The Thundering Herd" and "The Light of Western Stars," all Zane Grey stories. Those pictures earned him the title of the maker of "Rembrandt westerns," for he believes beauty of setting need never detract from the dramatic interest of a story.

A few months ago Howard convinced Mr. Lasky that he possessed the ability to make other than western pictures and he was rewarded with the assignment of "Volcano," a dramatic story of the French West Indies. Those who have seen the completed picture, in which Bebe Daniels, Ricardo Cortez, Wallace Beery, Arthur Edmund Carew, Dale Fuller and others appear, declare it to be an outstanding achievement.

Quiet, with a slow, soft, drawling manner of speech, he never raises his voice when talking to his players. He never makes himself conspicuous in any way. He will listen to any suggestion and act upon it if he believes it good.

SUGAR AND SPICE

Mrs. W. F. Thurston has just returned from Honolulu. Dr. and Mrs. David Starr Jordan are there, and with a mournful gaze at the thermometer he implored Mrs. Thurston to back him up that a nice clean shirt was the most appropriate evening dress attire for a president emeritus.

Mrs. Thurston tackled her job with enthusiasm, appealing to Mrs. Jordan's higher nature. "Don't you think our husbands are more amiable when they are comfortable?" she inquired instructively.

"Mine is amiable even when he is uncomfortable," replied Mrs. Jordan sweetly. "Put on your coat, David."

David did—and proved that Mrs. Jordan was right.

Just to avoid dashed hopes, let it be known that the glamourful Mr. Michael Arlen has positively declared that he is not available as a platform or luncheon speaker under any circumstances whatever. And since I did not approve of his style in ties, I have absolutely no influence with him to the contrary.

Any club program chairmen anxious to change his notions on this point will do well to angle with other bait. I am not the right worm.

The Episcopalians turned out 2000 strong to see Ruth Helen Davis in her own play, "Egypt Speaks to Women," for the benefit of Trinity Church, Santa Barbara, last week.

Quite impressive, all the rectors and prelates in their tuxedos, with the high-necked black waistcoats and Episcopalian collars. The audience was interesting, too—evidently the Episcopal church attracts distinguished, scholarly looking men, and chiefly, mainly, unbobbed women. Bobbed heads were remarkably scarce in that audience.

Surprising, too—that Denishawn ballet injected into the play. The dancers wear more clothes in Main-street girl shows. And the only god appealed to by the anguished heroine was an Egyptian sphinx-idol!

The play itself resembled the women in the audience, in that it savored of antisuffrage and woman's place is in the home. I suspect Helen wrote it prior to the Nineteenth Amendment. But she herself made a corking good suffragetty Cleopatra sort of a heroine.

These daily history strips make a unique pictorial history of America. Hundreds are clipping them daily and pasting them in scrapbooks.

PLANNING AIR CARNIVAL STUNTS

"Bombing a European village" is to be one of the stunts at the Armistice Day aerial carnival. The upper picture shows Lieut. English instructing Katherine Wilson how to drop a high-powered bomb. Below are Lieut. Horace S. Kenyon (left,) chairman; Lieut. Walter Parkin (center) and Lieut. Cliff Henderson, members of the executive committee, planning the sky exhibition. Parkin is operations officer at Clover Field.

PICKED FLYERS TO APPEAR

Nation's Experts Will Participate in Aviation Circus Here on Armistice Day

Declaring that the forthcoming Armistice Day Sky Carnival at Clover Field on the 11th inst. has attained such proportions that it will surpass any other air circus staged on the Pacific Coast and will be on a par with the biggest events of aerial character in the East, the executive committee planning the affair yesterday devoted its entire time to assigning various members of the local air service to special duties as the magnitude of preparatory work increased.

Lieut. Horace S. Kenyon, chairman of the committee and commanding officer of the field; Lieut. Walter F. Parkin and Lieut. Cliff Henderson, the other two members of the committee, yesterday received information that War Department plans for furnishing additional planes from adjacent flying fields have been increased to include the finest craft and flyers in the national air service.

Another outstanding development of the last few hours was announcement that a midnight frolic, in which theatrical people from virtually all the downtown showhouses will participate, is to be given on the early morning following the carnival in Loew's State Theater. Proceeds from both the air carnival and the midnight show will go toward expanding the United States Army relief fund, Lieut. Kenyon announced.

REHEARSALS IN PROGRESS

In the meantime, activities at Clover Field, where much rehearsing is in progress, is at a high pitch. When not engaged in downtown offices, which have been opened at 511 Spring Arcade Building, Lieut. Kenyon spent much time yesterday in going over blueprints of the carnival at the field. In this, he was assisted by Mrs. Kenyon and Dorothy Jaye, with the trio working in one of the hangars for storage of government flying craft. For a table on which to spread the prints they resorted to an airplane fuslage.

Rehearsals of bomb-dropping were in daily progress all of last week. Knowing they are going into competition with the country's most expert bombers in the destruction of a "European village," the Clover Field staff of aviators released missiles, which were not charged with explosives and which merely nosed their way into the earth of the field.

Lieut. C. W. English added a thrill to yesterday's proceedings when he took aloft Katherine Wilson, who proved that bomb-dropping is not outside a woman's province.

Aerial science is expected to advance considerably from the experiments and demonstrations made before the crowd of 100,000, anticipated at the sky carnival, Lieut. Parkin pointed out. Eyes of the aviation world will center on the carnival, not merely for the amusement side of it, he said, but for the actual beneficial results expected to accrue from the experiments.

To appease the appetite of the crowds for entertainment and destruction, it is planned not only to carry on thrilling sky stunts of entirely new character and to hold races which it is thought will make aviation history, but at the same time to offer a series of ground events of less thrilling but equally entertaining character.

MUSEUM INCLUDED

In carrying out this plan, it has been decided to include a museum of aviation progress, a motion-picture show of films made from the inception of aviation by the United States government and a continuous dance. A feature of all the ground entertainments is that while they are inclosed with canvas side wall, they will be without roofs to permit visitors at all times to witness the circus in the sky.

Emphasizing the educational angle of the exhibition, Lieut. Kenyon ruled yesterday that competent speakers at all times maintain a position in the various exhibits and on the field to explain to the audience the aviation science involved in each stunt or individual feature.

Realization that a crowd larger than that which attended the start of the world flight probably will attend the air carnival prompted the executive committee yesterday to appoint a staff of officers to exercise supervision over parking. Plenty of parking space will be provided for a crowd of more than 100,000, it was promised.

With the destructive feature of the exposition now being planned on an extensive scale, assurance was given by Lieut. Henderson that the field will be adequately policed to prevent spectators from wandering into the explosive zones.

Harry Sharrock, Vaudeville Star, Goes into Films

From mystifier of the stage to writer of stories and technical assistant, is the step taken by Harry Sharrock, one of the most famous exponents of mind-reading before the footlights, and male half of the team, "The Sharrocks," famous the world over for their mentalist demonstration "Behind the grand stand."

Sharrock is working with Tod Browning on "The Mocking Bird," with Lon Chaney, Law Cody, and a big supporting cast headed by Renee Adoree, now being filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Sharrock, incidentally, aided Browning with "The Mystic," recently produced, and which was, fundamentally, the story of his own mind-reading activities, twisted about into a spiritualistic episode.

For years Sharrock and his sister, Emma, have been vaudeville headliners in an act in which they start by burlesquing mind readers in a county fair setting—then suddenly dropping into a lightning-like demonstration of the genuine article. Sharrock is also the author of a large number of vaudeville sketches and stories.

In the new picture he will aid Browning, himself an old vaudeville performer, in the music-hall scene technique, besides acting as consultant on the story.

Carter's knit Underwear for Women and Children

It is easy to understand why thousands of women prefer Carter's to any other knit underwear. Made of fabrics that are unusually elastic, the garments follow the line of the figure and neither bind nor sag. Because these fabrics are thoroughly shrunk before garments are cut, this underwear keeps its exquisite fit and shapeliness after tubbing. And the details are so carefully attended to! Shoulder straps are correctly placed; garments are generously cut and stay snugly in place; the special gusset is designed to keep the back closed and modishly flat so that the whole adjusts smoothly under corset or girdle!

Women's Carter undergarments start at $1.25.

Children's Carter undergarments start at 85c.

CHEST DRIVE BUT ONE WEEK AWAY

Officials Work to Complete Huge Organization

Fourteen Thousand Workers Will Make Canvass

Increased Subscriptions Over Last Year Required

One week from tomorrow the 1926 Community Chest campaign—the one appeal Los Angeles is asked to answer for the support of charitable and welfare agencies—will get under way. Under the direction of a corps of skilful workers, more than 14,000 volunteers will canvass the city and outlying districts for funds to maintain the 137 institutions to be associated with the Chest next year. After the ten-day period there will be no more drives, no more appeals—the campaign concluding Los Angeles's duty for the year.

As a result of the spirited activity in lining up workers, four colonels are battling for the honor of being first to complete their team organizations. Those who have been showing the way to their rivals are Mrs. H. J. Braly, leader of division fifty-four of the residential district; Mrs. R. Avery McCarthy, colonel for division seventeen of the same district; Paul N. Boggs, colonel of division three of the business district, and Dr. William Jules Poll, who leads division eight of the residential district. Late reports from headquarters indicate that Boggs completed his team organization first.

VAST AREA TO COVER

These colonels and fifty-six others are to lead the army of more than 14,000 workers. The task which confronts these volunteers is a gigantic one. The area to be covered during the ten-day period is larger than the combined territory of Boston, Cleveland, Newark, Pittsburgh, Oakland and San Francisco. An idea of the extent of the Chest campaign is gained from the statement that the distance from the farthest north to the extreme south division headquarters will be approximately fifty-four miles.

Los Angeles proper will include Vernon, Eagle Rock, etc. In the Hollywood district will be Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Culver City, Sawtelle, Westwood, Palms, Van Nuys, Lankershim, Reseda, Universal City, San Fernando and Chatsworth. The Huntington Park district includes Bell, Cudahy, Maywood and Watts, while in the Harbor locality San Pedro, Wilmington, Gardena and Harbor City are to be canvassed.

With the 1926 Chest budget calling for an increase of $308,390.30 over last year's quota, Chest officials are emphasizing the need of increased subscriptions in the forth-coming campaign.

In speaking of the need for additional funds yesterday, R. W. Pridham, Chest president, said:

INCREASES REQUIRED

"Figures for last year show that the Chest secured an average of more than one contribution per family in Los Angeles. This is a splendid record and it is hard to see how the number can be bettered in the forth-coming appeal. It is apparent that our goal of $3,830,798.94 can be reached only by receiving increased subscriptions from all who gave last year. In this way only can we succeed in adequately caring for the needy in Los Angeles."

The increase over last year's budget is due largely to the addition of twenty-one new charitable and welfare organizations to the Chest for 1926, bringing the total membership to 137. Los Angeles now has the most inclusive Chest in the country, Philadelphia being second with 130 institutional members.

The budget shows that twenty-one new agencies in the Chest will receive $160,888.16. Some of the old institutions find that they need more money for the coming year and an increase of $147,802.16 was accordingly made. These two sums comprise the total increase over last year's budget.

ORGANIZATIONS PROFFER AID

Clubs, societies, fraternal organizations and churches have rallied to the support of the Chest in a splendid manner and the public schools are also to take an active part in the campaign. More than sixty ministers recently signed up to deliver Chest messages from their respective pulpits next Sunday and on the Sunday following. More than 100 high school students have been assigned as speakers to the elementary and junior high school grades.

Public, county and Federal employees have their own organizations working in the campaign. John S. Myers, City Auditor, heads the public employees; Eugene W. Biscailuz, Undersheriff, the county workers; and Rex B. Goodcell, Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, is chairman of the Federal employees' divisions.

With but one week remaining before the start of the appeal, Chest officials are working strenuously to complete the organization. Additional volunteers are needed and those who can serve are asked to report at Chest headquarters, 911 South Grand avenue.

New Orchestra Organized for Cafe Lafayette

Musicians from all parts of America arrived here last week to join the stellar jazz band which Harry Owens, composer and leader, is organizing for a festive premier at Miller's Cafe Lafayette on the night of November 12.

Owens, who has composed such numbers as "Linger Awhile," "Helen Gone," "String Beans," "When We Are Together," and many others, was specially commissioned by Harry M. Miller, proprietor of the Lafayette to get together an all-artist organization to furnish dance music and specialty numbers at the Wilshire-district restaurant.

Among others who have signed under the Owens colors are Reggie Montgomery, formerly pianist with Max Fisher; Jay Van Cott, former drummer with Vince Rose; Bob Stowell, formerly banjoist with the Cabiria orchestra, San Francisco; Eddie Wathen, saxophone with Max Fisher; and Ted Maguiness, Victor recording saxophonist.

CHEST HELPS ORPHANAGES

Orphanages of Los Angeles are among the staunchest boosters of the Community Chest. Seventeen cents out of every dollar contributed goes to institutions of this class.

TANTALIZING SIGHT FOR EASTERNERS

While East Shovels Snow, Summer Reigns in Los Angeles

PICKING flowers in Los Angeles while they're shoveling snow in eastern cities.

That's the charming pictorial argument which Los Angeles county is using this month throughout the East to attract tourists to sunny Southern California.

Marilyn Warner of 1850 Whitley avenue, was the girl picked out by the Chamber of Commerce to illustrate the argument. She is the girl on this month's county poster which is being displayed in rail stations, ticket offices and other public places in eastern cities as a remarkable "selling talk" for Los Angeles.

Marilyn was shown picking flowers at about the time easterners were rubbing their blue noses in severe snowstorms there.

The county puts out a new poster advertising this section to the East every month. A check-up of the results has shown that many thousands of people have been brought here by the cheerful suggestions of these posters. This winter, the county is making a bigger drive than ever for eastern tourists.

Just Drop a Line to Times Bureau if You Would Learn Many Things From History Dates to Sealing Wax, From Cabbages to Kings

This department is one place where all the questions from those of the child to those of his elders are answered with care and dispatch. The mother who wants to know about the latest styles in sweaters, the boy who wants to know how to make a birdhouse or the man who wants specific instructions about using concrete around the home are all given the same degree of expert instruction and information. We can share only a small part of these interesting questions with our readers, but we conduct an intimate, personal service by mail. Send your question, with 2 cents in stamps for return postage, to The Los Angeles Times, Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C. Here are some representative questions, with answers, by Mr. Haskin:

Question: What classes of foreigners coming to this country are considered nonimmigrant?
J. G. C.

Answer: Officials, visitors, in-transits, residents in-transits, seamen and traders under treaties are nonimmigrant aliens. They are at all times admissible to the United States without regard to the quota limitations.

Q.: What is the size of Betelgeuse and of Rigel? R. J. R.

A.: The Naval Observatory says the magnitude of Betelgeuse varies from .5 to 1.1; that is, from one-seventh to one-twelfth as bright as Sirius. The magnitude of Rigel is 0.34, about one-sixth as bright as Sirius. The diameters of very few stars have been measured; that of Betelgeuse is estimated to be about 200,000,000 miles and of Sirius perhaps 2,000,000 miles. The distance of Sirius is approximately fifty trillion miles; of Betelgeuse 1000 trillion miles. Of Rigel it can only be stated that it is probably much more distant than Betelgeuse.

Q.: What are some of the characteristics and uses of palm oil? W. N. N.

A.: Palm oil is obtained from the pulp of the fruit of several species of palm. When fresh, it is of an orange tint, sweetish taste and violet-like odor. It has the consistency of butter, for which it is sometimes used, and like butter easily becomes rancid. It is used in candle and soap making and because of its pleasant odor it is also used as a scent in toilet preparations.

Q.: What was the original sale value of Millet's "The Angelus?" M. D. N.

A.: This famous painting, representing two peasants saying [illegible] Angelus in the evening [illegible] was painted in 1859. Millet [illegible] it in 1860 for $160. After [illegible] ing through various hands [illegible] purchased in 1890 for $150,000.

Q.: Has Dr. Holt, author of "Care and Feeding of Children," written any books recently? G. L.

A.: Dr. Luther Emmett Holt died January 14, 1924.

Q.: What causes the blue [illegible] that seems to be about [illegible] mountains? H. G.

A.: It is the same thing that causes the sky to look blue, namely, the scattering of light by the air itself and by the minute motes and other foreign substances in it. This scattering is very little for red and yellow light, relatively large for blue and violet. Now there is not much white light in the lower air to be scattered, but there is a great deal of blue. Much blue light, therefore, comes to us from the air in every direction. Hence, distant mountains seem blue, being seen through air that sends us more blue light than any other color.

Q.: Kindly tell me how a cow's stomachs a cow has. J. R.

A.: The digestive apparatus of a cow is divided into four [illegible] which are commonly called stomachs.

Q.: Which holds better, a blunt-point nail or long, tapered [illegible] J. R.

A.: The Forest Products Laboratory says that tests indicate in a general way that the blunt-point drives easier and splits less than the long, tapered point.

Q.: What is the percentage of oil in copra? R. [illegible]

A.: If it is sun or kiln-dried it yields 56 to 65 per cent of oil; if hot-air dried it may give as much as 74 per cent oil.

Q.: What was Greek fire? L. T.

A.: It was an incendiary composition used by the Byzantine Greeks. It is supposed to have been made of asphalt, saltpeter and sulphur. It would burn on and under water.

Q.: Has President Ussher ever been in California? M. [illegible]

A.: As Vice-President he visited that State in August, 1922.

Q.: How many horses and mules has the Army? H. M. S.

A.: As of June 30, 1925, there were 24,970 army horses and 12,739 army mules.

BY BURTON L. SMITH

In the extreme southwest corner of Los Angeles, in fact, just across the street from Inglewood, is a produce market, the annual business of which is in excess of $250,000.

An inviting display of fruits and vegetables is arranged in a little, low road-side shack, starting at Sixty-seventh street and extending sixty-four feet down West Boulevard. Take the stock from the building and there would remain an investment of less than $500, yet an average of more than $800 a day goes into the cash registers of this busy mart of trade.

L. S. Nogi, a smiling, affable and cultured little Japanese, is the merchant prince who so successfully conducts this thriving business, not for a moment dismayed because within two blocks of his establishment there are six other stands engaged in exactly the same business, and across the street one of a number of chain stores known to be dangerous competition in many parts of the city.

An investigation at Terminal Market, where all produce dealers procure their daily stock, revealed the fact that L. S. Nogi was one of the four or five individual buyers, whose annual purchases total more than $150,000. Several chain stores buy more produce, but very few equal the buying power of this Japanese merchant, who conducts but one establishment. The store has been in existence since 1920 and each year has increased the amount of business transacted.

DISCUSSES SUCCESS

It was an easy matter to locate the proprietor from among his seven helpers—it developed later that eleven clerks worked on Saturdays and Sundays—for the reason that he seemed to be in all parts of the stand all the time. He moved with a swift deftness that was hardly noticed and while seeming to center his attention on no particular transaction observed all that was transpiring. He was present at exactly the right place at the right moment to add a word to a clerk's argument, or make a suggestion to a prospective customer. Not a single detail missed his observation and not an opportunity went by where he could increase the efficiency of his salesforce. This surely was the secret of his success.

Not so, said Mr. Nogi, who seemed delighted to engage in conversation with anyone interested in his business. When the opportunity came to talk to him it was found that he had had the advantage of a liberal English education and spoke the language without the slightest trace of a foreign accent. Success in retail business has no mystery about it, according to this dapper little oriental, it is simply a case of right buying and proper selling with most of the attention applied to the buying end. "I have followed but one hard and fast rule," he said, "and that is to never buy anything but the highest-grade produce obtainable and then to sell it for the highest market price. Nothing but failure awaits the price-cutter and the offerer of fake bargains."

Continuing in his chatty, friendly manner, Mr. Nogi shed some very interesting light on trade psychology. "Not long ago we thought that the very life of a wayside stand depended upon the offering of startling bargains. Every one of my competitors attempted to give something for nothing with a fancy wicker basket thrown in. It couldn't and did not last. Then came fake salesmanship. The favorite scheme of this kind was to represent that the goods offered for sale were gathered that very morning on a farm lying just back of the stand. The public is wise and soon discovered this was not so. Everybody knows now that practically all of us buy at the same market and take the produce back to the country for sale.

WORKED ON FARM

"I spent ten years on American farms and gardens before going into the produce business so that now when I go to market every morning, I know what I am buying. This is the great secret of trade success—know your line and buy it yourself. I insist on as near perfection as the market affords, that is what commands the price and the right price carries the profit to which a dealer is entitled."

It was suggested during the conversation that it would perhaps be easier to sell the highest grade of merchandise in a neighborhood where the residents were of the wealthy class. Again Mr. Nogi said not so. "Buying for the very rich," he said, "is done by servants, many of whom know little and care less for the highest quality. They are anxious to make a showing for buying cheap and driving good bargains. The upper middle class is too particular and too hard to please. It is just the average, hard-working, good-natured American who is the best customer.

West Boulevard in this neighborhood is the dividing line between Los Angeles and Inglewood. On the Inglewood side of the street there is paving, sidewalks and substantial buildings, on the Los Angeles side, mud and a foot path. Some day Los Angeles will improve her side of the street and the little wooden shacks will be replaced by better buildings, then what will become of this wayside merchant prince. "My company owns an acre of ground here," he said, "and when Los Angeles improves the street we will build a brick building, get a bank or other good tenant in the corner and I will open a grand central market on a similar scale here on the outskirts of Inglewood. These people have been too good to me in the past, I do not fear the future."

Not Built as Law Prescribed

A tall, cadaverous individual tried to squeeze himself into a seat in the car between two burly farmers. Finding this beyond him, he stood up and said, "Excuse me, gentlemen, but you really must sit up a bit. Don't you know that according to act of Parliament each passenger is restricted to eighteen inches of sitting space?"

"Aweil, my mannie," replied one of the men, "that's very fine for the like o' you, but ye canna blame us if we were no' constructed according to act of Parliament."—[Boston Transcript.

Ferndell products

There are no better food products made than are carried under the famous Ferndell label. All Ferndell fruits and vegetables are grown and packed in the various parts of the country where climate and soil combine to produce the finest obtainable!

Each article carries an interesting, individual story that makes it unique of its kind. For instance: All Ferndell fruits are packed solid and in heavier syrup, containing more fruit or vegetables than the average pack. To bear out the excellency of Ferndell fruits—out of every 5 tons of apricots only 1 ton is put up under the Ferndell label, as only the sun-kissed ripe sides are used. In spinach, only the tender top half is mowed down (not forked up by plant,) thus eliminating all grit. Ferndell pumpkin is grown only from registered seed in tested soil. And so it goes . . . let us tell you more fully the story of each article's superiority during the demonstration.

Ferndell products will be open for your inspection and sampling. Special prices on case and dozen lots.

That mental attitude

In judging people—is a man a failure—why? This man self-confident, progressive, successful—why?

It seems to me that it summed up very trite- by H. L. Manning in his bit of philosophy:

People break down, not much from hard work, from their mental attitude toward their occupation; or from some other unwholesome state."

Material things are a very small part of life—yet so often we give our whole life to acquiring them.

It is the joy in little things that really makes the happiest moments—the greatest happiness.

But, oh, the fortune of the happy-hearted! They rise above difficulties. They rise above the greatest catastrophes.

Our mental attitude, much as anything else, determines whether or not we have a happy life.

KHJ RADIO LAND

"UNCLE JOHN"

UNCLE JOHN GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME BY KHJ STUDIO

Gala Party Greets Manager and "Music Box" Artists on Return to City

BY PAUL SHEEDY

The tower studio of KHJ last night was the scene of a real celebration, with the rooms thronged with a host of the well-known figures of the programs who gathered to welcome home Uncle John and the members of his Music Box, the party being jointly observed with Halloween.

Twenty of the most prominent artists of the studio participated in addition to an equal number of the child stars of the children's hour programs who gathered to greet Uncle John, their favorite announcer on these twilight hours. The occasion was so filled with events that the evening concert was extended an hour, running until 11 o'clock, followed by a brief broadcast of dance music from the Biltmore Hotel and then the weekly frolic of the Lost Angels.

The studio was profusely decorated for the party under the direction of Gladys Myers, the popular program arranger of the station, and all was in readiness when Uncle John and his group of artists arrived from the pier at San Pedro.

The fore part of the evening was given over to the children, but because of their number, all couldn't appear before the microphone, but played games, with Mrs. B. B. Bonheim acting as their hostess. Among the children were David Durand, known as "Little Boy Blue," Helene Pirie, the widely known "Queen Titania," Dickie Brandon, screen juvenile, "Sunny" Jane Hughes, Vyola Von, the "Wild Rose of KHJ," Dick Winslow, the screen juvenile reporter, "Sir Richard" Headrick, Henrietta Poland, the "Little Forget-Me-Not," Baby Muriel MacCormac, the "California Poppy," Billy Lord, screen juvenile, Micky McBan, the "Scotch Laddie of KHJ," Vondella Dar, screen juvenile, Mary Pat Modjeska, Catherine Cotter, the "Sweetheart of Radioland," Charles Leslie Hill, who is Uncle John's "Honey Boy," Joyce Coe, the "Little Red Riding Hood," Mona Clap, Dolly Wright, Bettiemae Pfefferkorn, Glenn Fitz and Billy Hill.

One of the features of this portion of the evening was the presentation to Uncle John by "Mother" Trever and the "Sandman" of an elaborate "memory" book, made up of specially posed photographs of each of the children, with original letters and verses to him, and a poem on each child by "Mother" Trevor, as well as introductory poems by herself and the "Sandman."

The musical portion of the evening, which was sponsored by "Busy Buttons," the trade slogan of the Southern California Edison Company, was one of the most complete and brilliant programs given over the tower aerials in a long time, being presented by one of the largest groups of ensemble and solo artists that has ever appeared in the station.

The three hours virtually become a review of KHJ artists, all of them coming to extend their welcome to Uncle John and his Music Box, which is composed of Mary Newkirk Bower, soprano; Bernice Neal, 'cellist; Mona Content, concert pianist; Carolyn La Fevre, violinist, and Helen Mead Little, flutist. These five favorites accompanied the station manager on the three-week tour of the Hawaiian Isles, giving salon concerts en route as well as appearing in concerts at Honolulu and at the broadcast station of the Honolulu Advertiser, KGU. They gave a group of beautiful solo and ensemble selections during the evening, many of them being the favorites of the trip.

Radio patrons of the Southwest were also given an opportunity of hearing one of the big electrical men of the Southwest in a brief address. R. H. Ballard, executive vice-president of the Edison company, making a short talk before the microphone.

Vera Barstow, recognized as one of the leading women violinists of the world, appeared on the program, which was replete with numbers by stellar artists of the city's musical colony.

The roster of the participating artists was: The Music Box, Vera Barstow, violinist; Gladys Blackwell Pickering, soprano soloist; the Colombian Trio, composed of the Hernandez brothers; the Optimist Male Quartet, composed of J. Howard Johnson, Dan Gridley, Frank Geiger and Edward Novis; Hatch Graham, banjo and singer; Lenore Killian, contralto soloist; Lilyan Ariel, concert pianist; Dorothy Cornell, piano accordion; Marcia Obuchon, pianist, and Uncle Remus.

Amateurs Given Recognition by Other Countries

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

GENEVA (Switzerland,) Oct. 31.—Amateur radio has received definite recognition as an international undertaking of value to the entire world, with the official acceptance of the International Amateur Radio Union by the League of Nations headquarters in this city. This organized group of amateur radio telegraphers has branches in most of the civilized countries of the globe and sections are in process of forming in those countries not yet represented.

In the United States and Canada, the union has thriving sections, with the 20,000 members of the American Radio Relay League as a nucleus.

Officers of the union are international, President Hiram Percy Maxim of Hartford, Ct., International Vice-President Gerald Marcuse of Caterham, Surrey, Eng.; International Secretary Treasurer K. B. Warner of Hartford, Ct.; International Counsellors-at-large Jean G. Mezger, Nueilly-Sur-Seine, France, and Frank D. Bell, Palmerston, South, N. Z.

The organization aims to promote co-operative regulation for international amateur radio communication, to provide international amateur tests and to develop a system of handling international private messages based upon the message plan now in use with the American Radio Relay League.

WTIC-WEEI KEEP WAVES

HARTFORD (Ct.)—With the consent of the government, WTIC, the Travelers station here, will permanently accept 475.9 meters as its wave length. Some weeks ago WTIC and WEEI of Boston made an experimental exchange of wave lengths. The two stations were so well satisfied that the exchange has been made permanent.

HINT ON 199 TUBES

If you want to use 199 tubes with a six-volt 120-ampere-hour A battery try putting a fifty-nine ohm rheostat in the negative lead to cut down the voltage. Then include the usual rheostats on the side of the lead opposite the battery connection.

GERMANS ADOPT OUR STYLE

BERLIN.—The Berliner Funk Stunde announces that it is going to model after some of the American broadcasting stations in sending out the words of command for morning physical exercises.

Importance of Tubes Stressed by Distributor

"A radio set is no better than the tubes it contains" said Ray Thomas, president of Ray Thomas, Inc., Southern California distributors of Atwater Kent receiving sets, in discussing the secret of satisfactory reception.

"Some people gauge the value of what they buy by the price they pay" said Thomas, "while others investigate quality first, and then spend their money according to proven value.

"There is no better place to test this policy than in selecting tubes for your radio set. You might have the finest looking cabinet-finished set on the market; but if the tubes were not good your fun would be spoiled, for your tuning in would be broken up with all kinds of annoying troubles.

"We have standardized on Cunningham tubes for Atwater Kent sets because we know they are made right and each one is carefully tested before it is released. We have proved to our own satisfaction that they give best results by actual test in our sets.

"On top of that, after we get a shipment of Cunningham tubes we actually voice-test each one here, on our own local stations, then if it is satisfactory we affix an orange and blue label to it, which says 'Voice-Tested.'"

BANTA COMPANY TO DISTRIBUTE ERLAS

The Electrical Research Laboratories of Chicago announce that they have appointed the Banta Company, 1801 South Hill street, Los Angeles, as Southern California distributors of their line of sets and parts known as the "Erla." The Erla company is among the biggest manufacturers of radio parts in the United States. They hold the original patents on the balloon circloid coil oftentimes spoken of as the "doughnut." In the past they have confined their activities to the manufacture of parts alone and have only this year put a line of sets on the market. Their sets incorporate the latest principles of radio and are built of the finest materials throughout. They operate on the tuned radio-frequency principle. The Banta company is one of the largest jobbers of automobile supplies on the Pacific Coast. Mr. H. J. Banta, president of the organization, formerly was general manager of the Iver Johnson Company, manufacturers of firearms, and bicycles, and sales manager of the Franklin Automobile Company.

SOLDERING IRONS

The half-pound soldering iron used for general soldering work is too large for the fine operations of a radio set, and for this purpose a quarter-pound copper should be used, with a long point drawn out on it, preferably with one side of the point one-quarter inch wide and the other slightly narrower. An iron of this size will hold the heat needed to complete several connections, and the fine point admits the heat to the right part.

WILL DISTRIBUTE PEARSON

C. W. Smith has been appointed distributor for the Pearson division of the Electrical Research Laboratories of Chicago. The Pearson set is a five-tube tuned radio frequency hook-up licensed under navy patents. Extraordinary distance is claimed for it. Its clarity and positive control are up to Electrical Research standards. The line consists of several models all in the medium-priced field.

Underground Antenna Will be Sold by Banta

The Subantenna Corporation of Chicago announces the appointment of the Banta Company as distributors of their product, the underground antenna.

The underground antenna is one of the most recent advances in radio, having been developed and perfected only the past summer. It consists primarily of a stranded antenna wire insulated and coated with lead. The antenna proper is insulated from contact with the ground. The complete antenna is designed to be buried a foot or two underground in a trench, preferably in a straight line.

The underground antenna was originally developed as a static eliminator and the makers claim that it reduces static and all other interference approximately 80 per cent. The underground antenna, however, has proved to be an innovation in more ways than one. It increases volume considerably, variously estimated at from 50 per cent to 100 per cent. Weather conditions have no effect on it. It is not critically directional. It does not pick up noises such as noisy transformers, leaking power lines, motor-driven machinery, etc. As a consequence its tone is claimed to be exceptionally good with perfect clarity.

DISPUTE LOOMS AT CONFERENCE

Insistence on Air Space to Cause Debate

New Stations to Demand Share in Time

Import Groups Will Have Representatives

The fourth annual session of the National Radio Conference will open in Washington November 9. Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will preside. It is generally expected that the fireworks display will commence shortly after the opening address of the presiding officer.

Everybody in radio seems to want something and "something must be done about it" or words to that effect. There are many applications for broadcast station licenses and wave lengths must be found. The 578 broadcast stations now operating may be compelled to share time with new stations. It is even hinted that the amateur band may be invaded for a fifty-meter slice.

Embryo broadcasters are demanding time. They claim the air is free and they want to use this new freedom. Broadcast applicants declare that the same Constitution which prohibits the manufacture and sale of intoxicants gives to every man who has money enough to buy and operate a station an equal rights with the lucky 578 who are now using the air.

The following radio groups will be represented at the Hoover conference: Broadcasting Stations, Organizations of Broadcast Listeners, Amateur Radio Organizations, Commercial Land Radio Stations, Radio Trade Associations, Press Associations, Radio Magazines, newspapers having radio departments, manufacturers of complete radio-receiving sets, United States government departments, the Institute of Radio Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Steam Owners' Association, United States Shipping Board, National Electric Light Association and various farm organizations. All the meetings of the conference will be open to the public.

GETS "B.A." VIA RADIO

Being unable to attend regular courses at a college or university in person, because of his feeble health, which has kept him confined to his home for many years, Clifford Lideen, an invalid of Burlington, Iowa, has nevertheless obtained a degree of B.A., with the aid of the radio. All of the instruction required in the course leading to the degree for bachelor of arts was given to Lideen by the University of Iowa over the air and received by him on his radio set. He submitted the work done by him in this correspondence course to the university authorities, and, upon completion of the work thus prescribed and accomplished, he was awarded the coveted degree.

When laying out wires for the aerial, take care that all kinks and twists are avoided, but if formed, these should be straightened out carefully in order not to weaken the wires.

Loneliness of Desert Offset by Star's Radio

The great Mojave Desert is noted for many things, including gold, silver and other valuable ore mines, beautiful sunrises and sunsets, motion-picture locations and as an ideal place in which to use a radio set for long distance reception.

Radio is particularly good on the desert during the fall and winter months, when the night air is clear and cold and the evenings are long. Fred Christian of the Electric Lighting Supply Company, who during the past few years has made many tests in various parts of California, states he has found the Mojave to be exceptionally good for reception. There are no high-power lines or local broadcast stations to cause interference and with a good set it is easily possible to hear such stations as WGY at Schennectady; WSB, Atlanta; WMC, Memphis, and KDKA, Pittsburgh.

Leatrice Joy, De Mille star, who was on location on the Mojave Desert during the filming of her new picture, "Made for Love," realized what an advantage it would be to have a radio set with her. After consultation with Christian, she determined to take along a portable Radiola. Miss Joy was told by Christian that the set would be capable of receiving points hundreds of miles distant and upon her return from location verified his statements, saying that she had never, even in her Hollywood home, been able to receive stations as clearly from the East as when on the desert.

Radio Preview of Stromberg Held at Hotel

Woodhill Hulse Co., 111-113 East Third street, have been holding a radio preview in the Biltmore, displaying their new Stromberg Carlson receiver. The Stromberg Carlson Company is an old established electrical manufacturing firm, and has built up an enviable reputation for quality products. Naturally its radio set was received with a great deal of interest.

Mr. Woodhill states:

"We consider it by far the best receiver on the market; in actual performance we can equal or better in tone and distance any radio receiver I have ever heard. It is unbelievably selective and absolutely selective. It operates in general on the neutrodyne principle, yet incorporates a number of exclusive Stromberg Carlson devices.

"Our sets operating in the Biltmore are performing remarkably. The Biltmore is a steel fabricated building and though the set is designed to operate with an aerial and ground, we used only a four-foot wire hanging out the window down the side of the building and grounded the set to a steam radiator. Even under these conditions we had no difficulty in bringing in Denver, Salt Lake and Portland with good tone and volume through local intereference. This we consider a remarkable performance. The outfit is a complete unit. Every part is synchronized with every other part.

Remember, in aerial construction, that four lengths of wire, each twenty-five feet long, are by no means equal to one wire 100 feet in length.

Over 500,000 loud speakers will have been laid aside in favor of this radio wonder within the next few months.

Headphone units at the base of a horn have at best been but a makeshift. Attached to a paper cone they are but poor imitations of the Musicone.

Crosley engineers have developed a new idea in reproduction mechanism, and Crosley production experts have devised methods of manufacture that give it to the world at a fraction of its comparative value.

CROSLEY RECEIVERS $9.75 TO $60

$14.75 was $17.50

This marvelous speaker is uncanny in its accurate reproduction of all tones. Highest notes are sweet and clear. Lowest bass is resonant and true.

It amazes. Compare it with any other speaker at any price. Thousands have which gives the reason for the passing of as many old type horns.

No adjustments or batteries needed. Its capacity for volume is greater than any demand you will ever put upon it.

It is a thing of beauty in appearance. Superior in its service to the ear. It pleases the eye no less.

Good radio does not just happen, nor is it the result of a happy swivel-chair thought. Good radio is the result of the scientific engineer's work, of months or years. Good radio is controlled by the principles of electricity involved and by the laws of sound waves. Is there not some consideration due the fact that even such a common everyday necessity as a mazda lamp is the result of endless hours of scientific research, and the beautiful tone of orchestra music is made possible in part by the quality of the instruments used and through the years of research by the manufacturers of the instruments.

"Radio, although extremely scientific, must be so manufactured as to give years of satisfactory and trouble-free perfect performance, because in the main it is handled and operated by thousands who know nothing of the principles involved.

"Any adult of today can easily remember the time when the rich man's automobile always had as one of its passengers the 'mechanic chauffeur' and still, today, we see literally thousands of women driving cars who have not the slightest conception of what makes the wheels go round.

"Tone quality and perfect reproduction are necessary in radio. It is not a good radio if it lacks these essentials, selectivity and sensitivity must also be required. Distance ability in the set is advisable because with the essentials it is one of the proofs of good radio.

"No standard make of automobile is produced today and sold only upon the basis of speed. Reasonable speed, yes, but coupled with reliability, comfort, economy and power; so it is with radio as to distance. No radio receiving set can be sold with a definite blanket guarantee as to distance, and for the reason that conditions vary in each location. Any quality radio properly engineered and shielded should get reasonable distance from any locality.

"Radio has been brought to a higher point of perfection in its few years of use in the home than has almost any other scientifically manufactured instrument or apparatus, and this is due entirely to the electro engineer with sound reproduction experience and the facilities and experience of a few manufacturerers."

AIR PATROL HAS NOVEL CONSOLE

Design Assures Sharp Selectivity

Cabinet Fits Furnishings

PROMINENT among the distinctive innovations in the host of new radio receiving sets shown in Los Angeles is the console model of the Western Air Patrol, now on display in the radio department of the Western Auto Supply Company's store on Grand avenue.

When the Western Auto selected the console cabinet, they decided upon one of exquisite beauty, yet one that would conform with practically any style or type of furniture. They also discovered, according to their belief, what women want in radio—a satisfactory receiving set made beautiful, and designed the console accordingly.

These cabinets are fitted with the Western Air Patrol, the new "Western Auto" set, a five-tube tuned radio frequency outfit, manufactured to their specifications. This set has been designed for best performance under western conditions and performs splendidly in tested spots that have given much trouble. In building the Western Air Patrol, much attention was given to the design, so that sharp selectivity would be assured and the tone and volume of the set was given the same consideration.

The panel and its accessories are concealed in this new cabinet, yet are immediately accessible. Ample space has been provided for the batteries and the loud speaker. The built-in sound chamber is constructed entirely of selected spruce and is fitted with the Baldwin lyric unit to assure mellow clarity in tone.

When the cabinet is closed, the console has the appearance of a beautiful writing desk, and the self-supporting hinges of the front make it suitable for a writing desk to lay the broadcasting stations.

These console sets are furnished in either the black American walnut or Adam brown mahogany.

HYPNOTISM BY RADIO IS LATEST INNOVATION

One of the most amazing scientific experiments ever attempted in radio will be an early event from station WHT when Chiong Ke Leong, noted oriental hypnotist, will endeavor to exert his hypnotic influence through the microphone on a subject listening in at Cleveland, O. Preliminary tests arranged by Director Charles Burke from the Wrigley Building studio with a subject located at the transmission plant at Deerfield, Ill., have convinced the distinguished Chinese that he can radiate his hypnotic waves and influence a subject at a greater distance. His radio experiments will be watched with interest by scientists.

CHEST NEEDS ARE LARGER

The budget for the Community Chest campaign is $2,830,798.94. This represents an increase of $808,390.30 over last year's quota. The budget is larger principally because of the addition of twenty-one new agencies for next year.

Deaf 'Feel' Music of Radio, Famous Woman Explains

That the deaf and blind can and do enjoy music broadcast by radio has long been known, but is only recently that it has been explained how those afflicted with total deafness are able to "hear" the music.

Helen Keller, who, despite her handicaps of blindness and stone deafness, has graduated from Radcliffe College and taken several post-graduate courses at Harvard University, has offered the most lucid explanation of this phenomenon ever advanced. Her explanation, set forth in a letter telling of her appreciation of a broadcast symphony orchestra concert, follows:

"Dear Friends: I have the joy of being able to tell you that, though deaf and blind, I spent a glorious hour last night listening over the radio to the New York Symphony concert. I do not mean to say that I heard the music in the sense that other people heard it, and I do not know whether I can make you understand how it was possible for me to derive pleasure from it. It was a great surprise to myself. Last night, when my family was listening to the immortal symphony, I put my hand on the receiver. What was my amazement when I touched the sensitive diaphragm to discover that I could feel, not only the vibrations but also the impassioned rhythm, the throb and urge of the music. I could actually distinguish the cornets, the roll of the drums, deep-toned violas and violins singing in exquisite unison. How lovely the speech of the violins flowed over the deepest tones of the other instruments. Then, all the instruments burst forth—an ocean of heavenly vibration — and died away like an atom spent, ending in a delicate shower of sweet tones. Of course, this was not 'hearing,' but I do know that the tones and harmonies conveyed to me moods of great beauty and majesty."

TWIN CITY RIVALRY REFLECTED IN SUIT

The spirit of ancient rivalry between St. Paul and Minneapolis cropped out yesterday in a divorce action filed by Hulda R. D. Fredericks, former actress, against Ove C. Fredericks, retired theatrical producer. It was a certain "Emily" of Minneapolis who dragged the intercity argument into the case, according to Mrs. Fredericks. "Emily," she said, wrote Fredericks a letter subscribed "love and kisses until the sun shines in St. Paul." This, Mrs. Frederick recited, caused her extreme mental anguish.

HOLD WAVELENGTH TESTS

Superpower Will Be Used For Determining Values of Horizontal Radiation

Tests to establish the value of horizontal radiation on broadcast wavelengths will be made from the radio developmental laboratory of the General Electric Company, near Schenectady, Monday and Tuesday nights, according to an announcement by C. J. Young of the radio engineering department of that company.

Both tests will be conducted on superpower, 50 kilowatts, through WGY, using the normal wavelength of that station, which is 379.5 meters. The listener will have an opportunity to compare reception on both horizontal and vertical radiation on the same night. The schedule provides for a half-hour period of broadcast entertainment on the horizontal antenna from 12 to 12:30 midnight, Monday and Tuesday, and from 12:45 to 1:15 on the vertical antenna, regularly used for superpower transmission. A period of fifteen minutes is required to change connections from one antenna system to the other.

Much has been written during the past few months on horizontal radiation and there has been considerable speculation as to the advantages which this form of transmission holds. Practically all, if not all, experimental work with horizontal waves has been carried on with the very high frequencies of the shorter wavelengths, and much valuable data has been collected. Reports on short wavelength demonstrations were necessarily few because of the comparatively small number of short wave sets in use. It is also pointed out that results on higher wavelengths may be directly opposed to the observations made on wavelengths from 50 to 150 meters.

Instituting these tests, Mr. Young is requesting that all radio listeners report on the quality, volume, comparative signal strength and the fading characteristics of both forms of transmission. Work in transmission development necessarily depends upon the co-operation of all those who are interested in improved broadcast transmission. Receiver development can be carried on in the laboratory, but transmitter work makes the entire country a laboratory and every listener an experimenter. The reports received will be digested and expertly analyzed, and it is hoped by this procedure to collect a vast fund of information which must ultimately advance the art of broadcasting.

Sending out radio power which vibrates parallel to the earth's surface is a comparatively new development. In earlier days it was assumed that an antenna which lay parallel to the earth's surface would neither transmit nor receive signals, and that is largely true of the long wavelengths which were used before broadcasting.

However, recent experiments made by E. F. W. Alexanderson, consulting engineer of the General Electric Company, and by others, have shown that short waves horizontal radiation may be more effective than the vertical radiation obtained from the usual upright type of antenna.

Wave-Trap Good but is Not Cure for All Trouble

When is it necessary to add a wave-trap to your receiving set? What is the function of a wave-trap?

These are important questions. If you are thinking of buying a wave-trap in the hope that it will cure radio troubles that are due to some fault in the set itself, you might as well save your time and money.

If you cannot determine whether or not your set is in need of a wave-trap, get some expert radio technician to look the set over and take his advice. If you cannot do this, stop and consider just what makes you think your set needs a wave-trap.

A wave-trap is not intended to make a radio receiving set more selective. It is intended to enable the operator to tune out a station which comes in so powerfully it cannot be eliminated by ordinary means of tuning provided by the set itself.

For instance, suppose your set is operated in a building close to a powerful transmitting station. It will be difficult for the average receiver to tune out this station and bring in others when the near-by station is operating. The wave-trap is needed. When attached to the set and properly tuned, the wave-trap will "absorb" the waves from the near-by station and permit others to be tuned in without interference from the undesired station.

It sometimes happens that a fairly distant station will also come in with such force that it cannot be eliminated except with a wave-trap.

But it may be that a few changes in the receiving set itself will remedy all trouble and enable you to tune out the offending stations. If you cannot determine this for yourself, see if you cannot get some friend to lend you a wave-trap, or, if you intend purchasing one, see if the dealer won't let you take the trap home on trial. If it works, you will be that much better off for the knowledge. If it doesn't—then you will be still better off, and you can then seek for the trouble in the set itself.

Exchanging of Parachutes in Air to be Tried

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Oct. 31.—A stunt in the air that promises to furnish a new thrill never before witnessed anywhere, will be attempted at the municipal aviation field in Long Beach tomorrow at 3 p.m., when two parachute jumpers will endeavor to change parachutes in midair. The airmen are Stanley Fullner and Leo Root, both of Long Beach.

Their stunt will require them to jump together from an airplane at an altitude of 3000 feet. The jump, to make the stunt successful, must be simultaneous, as the difference of a split second may mean failure, and possible death, it is said. Once in the air in their parachutes, they will come together by means of a rope, disengage themselves from their respective parachute harness, change parachutes and buckle on the harness of the other parachute, before they reach the ground.

A change of call to be noted this week is that of WGAZ, the South Bend Tribune station of South Bend, Ind., which has become WSBT.

RADIO AIDS MATRIMONY

Add radio to the important essentials of a home wedding. Thousands of brides are arranging home ceremonies because radio stations are ever willing to have played the famous wedding marches which can be tuned in with the turn of a dial. No expense is attached to the granting of these requests and any prospective bride can now arrange her wedding music in advance. Al Carney, who plays the wonder studio organ at WHT, has received more than one hundred requests asking for a definite schedule of wedding marches.

ONE "FADING" CAUSE

Fading experienced by radio fans has been traced frequently to sagging aerials that were being swung back and forth by the wind. When the slack was taken up the fading was eliminated.

To New York, already well supplied with radio stations, is to be added WBNY, owned by the Warner Theater. This station will broadcast from the theater on 209.7 meters.

CALIFORNIA BLUE BOYS RETURN

Make 12,000-Mile Tour of Country

Pioneer Radio Entertainers

TWELVE thousand miles of entertainment. This is the proud boast of the California Blue Boys, Charles Hamp and Earl Reynolds, who have returned to Los Angeles after a year's automobile tour of the entire country, broadcasting from all of the important stations.

These two stellar radio artists left here last November and have since appeared in hundreds of towns and cities of all sizes in special entertainments in addition to their radio work, being greeted with an ovation at KHJ when they reappeared here on the Pacific Coast. Their homes are in Los Angeles, and they've sung and played the praises of the State all over the Union.

Although he denies that he sang, "Yessir, That's My Baby" at the time, Hamp is one of the real pioneer broadcasters, having sung over the earliest station of the Westinghouse company at Newark, N. J., even before KDKA was built. During the war, his jazz band won renown overseas, and after the armistice this outfit from the ambulance corps played all over Europe, appearing before President Wilson at Versailles, and also before the King of Italy and scores of other notables. He and Reynolds play the saxophone, banjo, piano and other instruments in addition to singing their distinctly individual songs. Hamp is also well known here in Los Angeles and over the Coast as a vaudeville star, having played for six years on the Keith and Orpheum circuits.

KHJ BROADCASTS KHJ

GOOD ANTENNA VITAL TO RADIO

Clear Reception Hinges on Aerial Construction

Connections Must be Clean and Well Soldered

Tinned Wire Retards Corrosive Action of Elements

Considerable disappointment in clearness of broadcast reception can be avoided if careful consideration of the antenna installation is made when the set is first put in operation, for the fall and winter season.

Regardless of what type of set, if it uses an outside antenna, great care should be used to see that every joint is absolutely clean and is then carefully soldered. Be sure to check your ground connection, bearing in mind that everything considered a water pipe is most satisfactory. Connection should be made as close as possible to where this pipe enters the ground. Other pipes should only be used in emergency, and then preference should be given to following in order listed, water, steam and hot water. Lacking a satisfactory ground, an iron pipe driven into the ground four to six feet will give satisfactory results in most sections.

The lead-in wire should be fastened to ground by means of a good husky ground clamp applied at a point that has been carefully cleaned. The ground wire should be soldered to the clamp and run directly as possible to the ground connection on the set. No. 14 B&S gauge is the commonly recognized standard. Larger sizes rather than smaller should be favored if No. 14 is not available.

Several different types of antenna wire are available, any one of which will give satisfactory service when first installed. However, in many localities, the dirt, fumes and soot in the air attack the bare strand and considerably reduce its efficiency. The corrosive effects of sea air soon destroy the original quality of bare antenna wire in localities situated near the sea board.

A tinned aerial is superior to the bare, because it is easier to solder, and because it does retard the corrosive effects of the atmosphere. At best, however, it is far from satisfactory.

There is on the market today an enameled wire that will resist the corrosive effects of the air indefinitely, and while its initial cost is slightly greater than the bare and tinned, it is by far the cheaper in the long run. Enameled wire that is properly made will not only retain the original efficiency of your antenna system indefinitely, assuring satisfactory reception indefinitely, but also eliminates the necessity of pulling down your aerial for cleaning at regular periods to maintain satisfactory reception.

When first installing your enameled antenna, be sure that the enameled coating is removed from each individual strand before soldering, as this enamel coating has high insulating qualities. In case a single strand is not properly soldered the efficiency of your aerial will be reduced by just that amount.

Another advantage of enameled wire is the ease with which the set can be connected with the aerial. As the wire itself is insulated, the aerial conductor can be run directly to the set. Care should, of course, be taken, to see that the enameled lead-in is protected from mechanical injury, from swinging against supports or by direct mechanical abrasion.

Various kinds of aerial wire have not been free from "gyp" competition any more than other radio products, so a few words regarding different means used to fool the public will not be amiss at this point.

Probably the most common form of "quality cutting" is in the case of bare stranded wire, when one or more strands of under-gauge wire are introduced. Common practice accepts seven strands of twenty-two gauge wire as most satisfactory for general radio receiving requirements. Many irresponsible manufacturers are offering wire made from seven strands No. 23 or No. 24. In other cases two or three strands of No. 22 are combined with No. 24. In any case, the radio fan is the loser.

Other ways of cutting cost and quality is to strand the wire on a very long twist, thus reducing the amount of copper used, or to use rough or discolored wire unfitted for ordinary electrical purposes. Under-gauge wire can be easily detected by weighing. A 100-foot coil of seven strands of No. 22 aerial wire should weigh very close to 1.4 pounds. The surest method of getting first-class wire is to insist on getting wire from a responsible and well-known manufacturer.

All that applies on bare wire applies to enameled wire as well, and in addition the actual quality of the enameled insulation must be considered. In the purchase of enameled wire insist on cartoned goods as only in this way can the enamel coating be satisfactorily protected from mechanical injury during the many handlings it must go through before it reaches the ultimate user.

Insist on an advertised product on which the manufacturer is not ashamed to place his name. This in the end is always the best check for satisfactory quality.

WILLS'S NEW STUDIO OF DANCING TO OPEN

Walter S. Wills announces the opening of his new studio of stage dancing tomorrow at 7016 Hollywood Boulevard. He will be assisted by Miss Jane, a graduate of the Vestoff-Sorova School of New York City, and pupil of the New Wayburn School, who will give particular attention to the classes for children.

A feature of the new studio is to be the course of instruction available for those who do not wish to become dancers, but who desire to become conditioned physically, either in body-building or reducing.

Found! The first radio that gives you the station you want by simply turning to the newspaper number on a single dial!

Found at that number (or at the Day-Fan Air Telephone Directory number), on all Day-Fans, no matter where you are, from Maine—to Texas—to California. No writing down "where it comes in"—Day-Fan is so much more perfectly made that the station locations are all found for you before the Day-Fan makers allow it to leave the factory.

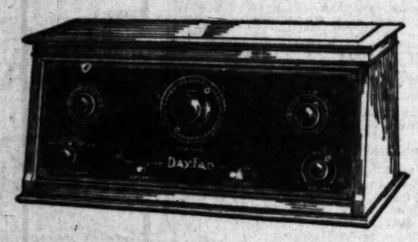
Accept from your radio nothing less than the human voice or true music. You can have it now. That is the only basis on which Day-Fans are sold—the high and difficult standard of selling as musical instruments alone, and to musicians.

Over two million dollars worth of Day-Fan receivers were sold in four months last year. The great demand has enabled us to make these receivers at remarkably low price, but this price is always maintained.

Hear a receiver which will make you say "I have never heard radio before."

Take no one's word for this. Believe your own ears. Go to the Day-Fan dealer with this statement. Sit down before the Day-Fan, and with your hand on the single dial control, let the score or more of stations on the air bring to you each its own broadcast.

Give yourself the pleasure of owning a Day-Fan—if you prove to your own satisfaction that it will bring you more of beauty, more of clearness, more of reality than any other radio receiver made.



The Day-Fan Radio Receiver shown at the top of the page is Dayroyal, the famous 5-tube single dial control Day-Fan enclosed in desk type cabinet. Room for batteries and completely wired for all equipment and charger. Price $300.00.

The model shown above is Day-Fan 5, price $115.00; below, Daycraft, price $145.00, with self-contained Day Fan Loud Speaker. Both these table models are 5-tube single dial control, long distance receivers, with both the Dan-Fan Air Telephone Directory numbers and the newspaper numbers on the control dial. They represent probably the greatest value which has ever been offered in radio.

Golf Tournament, Game and Dance on Program

At Least 2500 Graduates Expected to Return

The annual homecoming of old grads of the University of Southern California is scheduled for the 20th and 21st inst., when, it is estimated that at least 2500 S. C. graduates will return to their old haunts in Los Angeles for a mammoth two-day get-together scheduled to include a comprehensive program of receptions, golf tournaments, grid dinners for both men and women, rallies, and ending up with the Southern California-Iowa game, preceded by the big parade in the Coliseum and followed by an all-university-alumni-association dance at the Ambassador.

All of the fraternity and sorority houses will keep open house. Brilliant cardinal and gold pennants will be strung along University avenue. All of the student campus organizations, including the Trojan Club, the Dramatic Club, the National Collegiate Players and their alumni members will take active part in the university reunion.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

On the 20th inst., a golf tournament is scheduled between the graduates of the law school and the dental school of the Wilshire Country Club, with Asa Keyes as chairman of the law group and Dr. Fred Schildwachter as the dental chairman.

With mothers of the members of the football squad as honor guests, a tea, sponsored by the Trojan alumnae, is to be given in Alumnae Hall of the new Women's Residence Hall from 4 to 6 p.m., with Miss Olive Waring, chairman, assisted by Miss Frances Cattell, Mrs. Warren Seward, Dorothy Davis, Marjorie Rice, Kathleen Campbell and Elosne Fruitt.

Two of the biggest affairs of the Southern California homecoming this year will be the men's football dinner and the women's football dinner, scheduled for Friday, the night of the 20th inst., and followed by an all-university rally in Exposition Park.

DANCE WIND-UP

The 21st inst. will start with an official meeting of the board of directors of the General Alumni Association, including Edward A. Doheny, Linton H. Smith, Harold J. Stonier, O. E. Taft, Dr. J. G. Hoker, C. C. Scott, Allen T. Archer, Hugh Willet, Dr. Frank Otto, Lloyd Wright and Charles Sweet, at 10 a.m., followed by a meeting of the Trojan Club presidents at 11 a.m.

At 1:30 p.m. the big parade will enter the Coliseum, with all of the university organizations entering floats appropriate to the occasion, and to themselves. At 2:30 p.m. will be the kickoff of the Iowa game and the final event of this round of activities and functions of the Southern California homecoming is an all-university student-alumni dance at the Ambassador at 9 p.m.

Local Dancers Make Good in Eastern Shows

Graceila, brilliant Los Angeles dancer, is the latest graduate of the Ernest Belcher School of Dancing to rise to big time. She is enjoying great success as featured dancer in a headline act on the Keith Circuit through the East. According to word received here yesterday, Peggy Clark, another Belcher dancer, is on the same circuit.

When under the direction of the famed ballet master, these two exhibited unusual promise, according to Belcher, and they may yet eclipse the success of such other ballet stars graduated from the Los Angeles school as Beth Beri, Hazel Goodreau, Dorothy Dilley, Jessie Gavin, Dorothy Lambdin, Phyllis Faire and Lina Basquette, formerly premiere ballerina of Ziegfeld's Follies.

BELCHER SCHOOL ENTERS NINTH YEAR

The Ernest Belcher School of Dancing will start its ninth year of operation on Monday. Through the work of his pupils on the stage, Belcher has earned the reputation of the "West's premier ballet master" and as such has staged many of the dance numbers in motion pictures.

"Los Angeles will soon be this country's greatest dance center," said Belcher recently. "More and more the theatrical and artistic world is looking to this city, and it is safe to say that at the present time there is a greater percentage of dancing schools in Los Angeles according to population, than in any other community. Los Angeles is expanding artistically as well as commercially, and I look for this city to turn out some of the world's finest dancers within the next few years."

Some of the dancers, who have won recognition for Belcher are Lina Basquette, formerly prima ballerina of Ziegfeld's Follies, Dorothy Dilley, premiere danseuse of the "Music Box Revue," Beth Hazel and Hazel Goodreau in musical comedy, and Phyllis Faire, Jessie Gavin, Dorothy Lambdin, Graceila, Peggy Clark and Fay Adin vaudeville.

PAGEANT WILL MARK ARMISTICE DAY

Impressive Ceremonies Arranged for Mt. Rubidoux

Principals in Peace Allegory

THE towering heights of Mt. Rubidoux, overlooking the city of Riverside, at 4 o'clock the afternoon of Armistice Day, November 11, for the seventh time will be the scene of an impressive spectacle, the annual "Allegory of Peace," a ceremonial pageant dedicated to the tranquillity of nations by the people of the Orange Belt.

The stage, the rocky crags themselves, the proscenium, the giant illuminated Serra cross glittering above, flanked by the draped flags of the World War Allies and the Armistice Day devotional ceremonies are spreading the fame of the mountain as much as the distinctive Easter sunrise services annually presented there.

This year the ceremonies will have special significance, as for the first time the bridge and tower dedicated to peace on the mountain will be unveiled for the inspection of the public. These outstanding architectural monuments were made possible by subscriptions by friends of Frank A. Miller, the dean of Riverside.

The address of the day will be delivered by Lyman King, publisher of Redlands Facts, and former State Senator. A chorus under the direction of Arthur Bostick and a naval band will furnish auditory accompaniment to the ceremonies, in which members of the Boy and Girl Scouts will take part.

The allegory is written and directed by Garnet Holme, pageant director of the National Parks and director of the Ramona Pageant, the San Juan Capistrano pageant and other outdoor spectacles. Arthur Bostick supervises the music of the production.

Dr. Benjamin S. Maywood will make a brief address introductory to the allegorical ceremony, after which Kipling's "Recessional" will be sung. The allegorical pageant is very short but is said to be tremendously impressive. No word is spoken in the ceremonies except by an expositor.

It opens with the appearance of the expositor in mediaeval robes, who bespeaks the terrors of war. Accompanied by her fatherless children, the Bereaved Mother appears, and to her, down a rocky defile, comes the Prince of Peace to offer consolation.

He turns from her to greet the Children of Nations, who pass through the audience to his feet, chanting the Litany of Peace. He invokes a blessing, shows them the way to the Cross, where they find Peace, and disappears, while the audience sings "Abide With Me." Earl Schenck will be seen as the Prince of Peace and Pearl Sands and Martha Seidl will have leading roles.

The road up Mt. Rubidoux is reported to be in superb condition and arrangements are being made so automobiles may be parked all the way from the base to the summit.

In the absence of Frank A. Miller, chairman of the committee, M. J. Westerfield, as vice-chairman, is directing the committee in charge of the ceremonies. He is being assisted by R. Wayne Burns, secretary and committee members, including J. R. Gabbert, publisher of the Riverside Enterprise and State real estate commissioner, A. M. Lewis, Mrs. De Witt B. Hutchings, W. B. Clancy, Rev. J. Lewis Gillies, Mrs. W. W. Roble and J. A. Taylor.

The Sunday School Lesson

FOR NOVEMBER 8, 1925

WHAT A HERO'S FRIENDSHIP MEANS

(The International Sunday-school Lesson for November 8 is "Paul's Farewell at Miletus"—Acts xx:1, 38.)

BY WILLIAM J. ELLIS

Greatest of all the many heroes of the gospel, whose faith survived every test; and who to the end sought only the glory of God, I know is Paul, the adventurer, apostle, philosopher, missionary. At the moment, I am traveling on his trail, and shall be doing so for months to come. Only through the New Testament have I come to know him; but every year of closer study reveals his size and splendor. By all the tests which historians have learned to apply, this Paul was a mighty man—and never greater than in his warm human relationships. A whole progeny of heroes have been begotten of him; and the study of this present lesson by millions should put iron into the blood of uncounted youths. If we were "governed by our admirations," then Paul must be a real helper of today; and a sort of antidote for the effect of the vitiated and emasculated figures of the screen.

WHERE ROMANCE REIGNED

If ever the growing hosts of American tourists who now overrun Europe learn the real charm and worth-whileness of travel in the Near East we shall find thousands yearly sailing amidst the lovely isles of the Aegean, and identifying the very ports and cities at which Paul stopped. Many of the place-names of his day still persist.

It is perfectly possible, and wholly delightful, to follow the route of the apostle as outlined at the beginning of this lesson. His great figure takes on new definiteness and color and humanness, as we travel with him from Corinth and Athens to Miletus, touching at the same ports he touched.

A FAREWELL REUNION

This old hero was on his way to suffering and death; and he knew it. The knowledge did not deter him; it only made his zeal for his work keener and his affection for his friends warmer. Paul loved as only the great can love with comprehensiveness and intelligence and with passion. This would be a good occasion to compile the long roll of Paul's personal friends.

In the presence of the farewell reunion of the elders of the Ephesian church with Paul at Miletus, a neighboring port, we need a pause to consider friendship as a by-product of Christian work. One's craft or calling produces friends; and college mates have a heart-niche all their own; and the playfellows of childhood sometimes become manhood's comrades; and neighbors often grow into a close relationship; but, after all, there is no place for developing real friends like the active service of Christ.

Christians have the deepest sentiments and interests in common. They are united by the same bond of supreme allegiance. There is no need for any spirit to be lonely, even in a great city, if it will join sincerely in the activities of a church. Ties thus formed survive the years. One of the richest experiences of travel is frequently reunion with former associates in the work of the Master. Those who have tested it most, best know the truth that "Blest be the tie that binds."

In sharing service and suffering, Paul's heart had been knit to these Christians of Ephesus, his own children in the Lord. He loved them with all the intensity of his hungry heart. And now he was bidding them farewell forever. None but those who have been separated by seas and by long periods of time from the ones whom they love best can understand the anguish of this parting scene at Miletus; and to them it is too sacred to dwell upon. A human man, and not a mere figure in a book, was this old itinerant hero when his power has departed. Never can he hold a Miletus farewell reunion. One sure glory of the clergy is that with sacrifice they have pursued their calling.

We draw the veil upon the parting of Paul and the presbyters of Ephesus: It was heart-rending,—and yet it was a reward such as no emperor ever enjoyed.

Old Landmarks at Culver City Are Remodeled

The last of the old landmarks of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios is being changed and remodeled to make way for the newest and best methods of photography.

There are three stages on the big lot that were constructed by the late Thomas H. Ince, about eight years ago. They were glass covered, as much of the photography was done with natural lighting.

With the perfection of artificial lights, and the newest type of lights, however, it has been found that much better and much more natural effects can be obtained with the Cooper Hewitts, sun arcs, and Creco broad lights.

The last of the stages was boarded over yesterday.

Jones of the Bradstreet Company, Tuesday night before the class in credits and collections at metropolitan college of the University of Southern California in the Transportation Building. Meeting every Tuesday night from 7 to 9:20 this twelve-week lecture course is in charge of Emery E. Olson, formerly director of metropolitan college and now of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa. The session on Tuesday night will constitute the sixth meeting of the series and visitors are invited to attend.

BROKER TELLS OF MARKET

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Merger ideas overshadow almost every other consideration in the present phase of the stock market, but these hopes are hardly a sound basis for speculation, observed M. E. Pinckard, Pacific Coast partner of A. A. Housman & Co., who arrived in Los Angeles yesterday after spending several weeks in New York. And, as a word of caution to overenthusiastic traders, he added that hopes usually run ahead of results, and true values are frequently ignored in the rush to ride a stock to glory on merger expectations.

"No one in the East," Mr. Pinckard explained, "pretends that the character of buying in the market is the same as it was last spring, when there was a large amount of semiinvestment, long-pull purchasing. The buying of industrial stocks, without being hysterical, is of the helter-skelter variety. Holders of active speculative stocks are fearful lest they become 'involuntary' investors,' and, consequently, at the first signs of hesitation or irregularity, slip away to other issues which show more immediate possibilities.

"Naturally, this kind of speculation produces all sorts of cross-currents and confusion in a market which has definitely passed the point where it can be interpreted or viewed as a unit. Stocks are now bought for quick results, not for permanent ownership. For the most part, standard dividend yields are not much, if any, in excess of fixed income security returns, and rates on commercial paper. Market sponsorship, rather than earnings, dividends, etc., is sought as an essential for a speculative purchase."

While market advices in conservative quarters are tinged heavily with recommendations to observe caution, Mr. Pinckard said that eastern observers do not yet concede that the danger point has been reached. Money for stock market purposes is relatively easy, and the base of the market is so much broader than in the past that is is difficult to use the size of brokers' loans as an accurate yardstick of speculative operations.

Wall street is wary, but it also has definite ideas concerning the securities that should do better. The professions are rather partial to the steel and equipment industries, and are becoming impatient over the lack of public interest in the rails, which generally are highly regarded. Here are Mr. Pinckard's impressions on these points:

WALL STREET GOSSIP

"Wall street, I find in conversation with well-posted students of conditions, is closely watching the steel and equipment industries. The equipment companies have been through a period of near-starvation, but the great profits of former years have enabled the managements to maintain regular dividends and at the same time to preserve strong treasury positions.

"It has been predicted that by the end of the third quarter of this year, equipment buying would come into the market in sufficient volume to materially change the outlook for the manufacturers. The straw, which may show the direction of the wind is the $7,000,000 order received by the American Locomotive Company.

"Eastern financiers express wonderment at the indifference of the public to the great strides railroads have made since they were 'defederalized.' Traders undoubtedly have been spoiled by the wide uprush of industrials and still prefer to play with fire rather than put their funds into stocks of the carriers, where I think they would be safer.

"Political interference or fear of further political interference is probably the main reason for the unwillingness of the public to add rail shares to their holdings, but men in a position to predict are strongly of the opinion that the excellent earnings statements made by the leading railroads this year are bound to have an effect market-wise. It is admitted that they need some speculative impetus, and on this point the Interstate Commerce Commission decision on the Nickel Plate merger is eagerly awaited."

Merger stories usually are tossed around at the time when the large holders of stocks are anxious to liquidate their lines to the public. As Mr. Pinckard commented, it is an old story with the railroads and has spread to the motor industry, to retail merchandising and to the steels, but those who prophesy a merger era generally have an ulterior motive. The Housman partner believes that speculators will do better to ignore the gossip and dig into the facts behind some of the strong railroad securities.

PLAN MEMORIAL ARCHWAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 31.—A memorial archway, modeled after the world-famed Arc de Triomphe of Paris, and costing approximately $40,000, soon may span East Crockett street's intersection with Alamo Plaza as a memorial to this city's soldier dead. The men backing the project propose to raise the $40,000 by popular subscription, and will start a drive within the next two weeks, according to Mayor Tobin.

Net Earnings of General Motors Show Huge Gain

Net earnings of General Motors Corporation after depreciation and all charges, for the quarter ending September 30, last, amounted to $28,161,730, according to a report issued yesterday by the company. After deducting dividends on the preferred and debenture stocks amounting to $1,910,023 there remained $26,251,707, equivalent to $5.09 per share on the common stock.

Net earnings, after depreciation and all charges, for the first nine months of this year, were $74,243,966. The amount available for the common stock was $68,514,172, equivalent to $13.27 per share on the common stock, and $14.57 per share including the equity in all subsidiaries. Cash in banks, government securities, and temporary loans and marketable securities total $143,308,120, which is $3,933,058 in excess of that reported as of June 30, 1925.

This establishes a new record for the third quarter and for the nine months' period, according to Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the corporation.

"All divisions are operating at dealers are accumulating very little stock. As a matter of fact, unsold stock in the territory is very materially below the corresponding period of last year and is actually subnormal."

Success in Use of Gas in Various Phases of Steel Manufacture Leads Union Gas & Electric to Direct Special Attention to That End of Its Business.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1925, New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Success, which has attended the use of gas in certain phases of steel making, marks another step forward in the progress of the industry, and is further concrete testimony of the adaptability of gas as fuel where intense and controllable heat is essential.

The Union Gas and Electric Company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas and Electric system, mindful of the unlimited future for gas in the manufacturing field, has been giving special attention to that end of its business.

Its object has been to satisfy the consumer, that is, to enable him to conduct his business along progressive lines, that the quality of his product may be improved and production increased. With that end in view it has sought the most efficient and economical means of applying gas as a source of heat in certain plants in its territory.

USED IN HARDENING

The Queen City Steel Treating Company, whose plants are supplied by the Union Gas and Electric, is now using gas with the utmost degree of satisfaction in its case-hardening furnaces. A six-inch service pipe carries the gas to the steel plant, whence it is distributed in paper sized pipes to the burners in the various heat-treating furnaces.

These burners have been especially designed for the purpose, and permit the mixture of air and gas to a point where temperature can be adjusted as needed from 250 to 2400 deg. Fahrenheit.

The process of heat-treating steel calls for enormous furnace temperatures. In the carbonizing process for instance the steel originally is relatively soft. In the next step, case hardening, the part to be treated is placed in a special container packed with carbonizing compound, and then is run into a furnace heated to a temperature ranging between 1600 and 1700 deg. Fahrenheit.

All manner of steel may be treated in this company's furnaces from small watch gears to immense sizes used in massive machinery. The plant is one of the largest of its type in the country, and both steel makers and gas company officials are satisfied that the results have demonstrated that gas used under proper conditions will give the most economical results obtainable.

VARIED ATTRACTIONS

The element of control will no doubt prove a formidable factor in making for its adoption as a means of heat by various industries. But its qualifications do not end there by any means. Reliability and continuity of service are other things to be considered, and these two factors have been brought rather forcefully to the front as an outcome of the recent coal strike.

Furthermore, the necessity of storing coal, with its many inconveniences and dirt, would be eliminated. Space now used for such purposes could be turned into new production area. Oil has in recent years, of course, displaced coal in many directions, but here again the question of storage facilities must be considered and likewise the dependability of supply. Another point in favor of gas is the fact that the manufacturing companies are subject to State regulation in many ways.

BUSINESS PHILOSOPHY

BY WILLIAM FEATHER

If YOU suddenly found yourself out of a job, how would you go about getting another one?

I suppose we have all thought about this, whether we happen to be salesmen, sales managers, accountants, production managers or chief executives.

The temptation is to make a quick connection, to take the first position that is offered. This is a serious mistake.

It is not a job that the average man wants, but an opportunity. A job with small pay at the start and an opportunity to grow with the company and share in the ground-floor profits may mean a lot more in the long run that a position that includes a private office, a polished mahogany desk and a stationary salary.

Are You Interested in a Beautiful Country Club Site All Ready for Development?

I have 270 acres of beautiful rolling land, a natural golf course, meadows and 50 year old trees, a stream running through the center, a lake, lots of springs, loads of water, 3 pumping plants, over one and a quarter miles of water pipe, land clean and ready to seed.

Four houses, electric lights, 30 car garage, one house 8-room tile, all furnished in lodge style, sleeping porches, fire place, picnic grounds, palms, shrubs, all fenced, private drive off of boulevard, with a long lease on 3 miles of duck grounds down the creek. This is something real, never been on the market before. Must be sold to close an estate. Priced at less than $500 per acre cheaper than adjoining unimproved lands. Small cash payment, easy terms. Call Mr. Alexander, WAshington 0013, for appointment, or write for booklet, including photos. 670 So. Hobart Blvd., L. A. Cal.

WORSTED WOOLS FIRMER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Features of the wool trade included a continued call for medium stock, especially quarter-blood combing wool. A rather limited supply of stock in certain lines of fine and quarter bloods is also mentioned, together with a better tone in the worsted branch of the goods market. An upward tendency in the foreign market is likewise apparent.

STOCKS MOUNT AS WEEK ENDS

Heavy Buying in Motor List Again Leads

Total Sales in Group Reach 325,000 Shares

Average for Industrials at New High Level

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Heavy buying of the motor shares, several of which attained new high prices for the year, was the feature of today's brief but active session of the stock market. Total sales were 1,346,600 shares.

Studebaker, which fluctuated feverishly between 64 and 66 prior to the dividend announcement leaped forward to a new 1925 high at 68, when it became known that the regular annual rate had been raised from $4 to $5 and an extra cash dividend of $1 declared.

Hudson, which sold two weeks ago below $93 a share, was run up to a new high record at 117, a net gain for the day of 3 points. Willys-Overland climbed more than 2 points to a new top at 33 7-8 and Dodge Brothers A attained a new high price at 48, but slipped back later to 46½ for a net loss of 1 point. Combined sales of Studebaker, Hudson, Willys-Overland and Dodge totaled approximately 325,000 shares, or nearly one-fourth of the day's entire business, with buying being influenced by reports of unusually high current earnings. Jordan moved up 3 points to a new high at 63, and Mack Truck soared over 11 points to 238, duplicating the record high.

NEW AVERAGE

Standard industrials displayed a firm undertone, the average of twenty leading issues of that group touching a new record high level. United States Steel, common declined slightly to 128 on a very small turnover. American Can showed a gain of half at 254 on the sale of a few hundred shares. Baldwin climbed over a point to 123 3-4 on reports of increasing railroad inquiries for rolling stock.

There were several interesting movements in the railroad group. Stocks of southern carriers were again in brisk demand, Atlantic Coast Line jumping 5 points to a new high record at 220, and then losing half of its gain on profit taking; Louisville and Nashville moving up 3 points to a new top at 133, and Seaboard Air Line common climbing over 2 points to a new maximum at 52 3-4. Pennsylvania sold up to 50 7-8, the highest price since 1917.

Spirited bidding for the St. Paul issues in apparent response to the announcement that over 50 per cent of the bondholders had deposited their securities under the Kuhn, Loeb-National City reorganization plan, carried the preferred stock up over 2 points to 18 3-8.

SPECIALTIES GAIN

Extreme buoyancy again developed in some of the high-priced specialties. Loose Wiles Biscuit soared 12 points to 126; Coca Cola jumped 7 points to 170, and Du Pont, Foundation Company and United Drug each advanced more than 4 points, all to new high record prices. Revival of activity in Brooklyn Union Gas, which touched a new high at 98 3-4, was based on reports of an enormous increase in business as a result of the coal strike, the company being in an advantageous position because of its use of fuel oil. Further accumulation of International Nickel sent that stock to a new high at 39 1-2.

Trading in foreign exchanges was rather quiet with fluctuations narrow and irregular. Demand sterling sold down close to $4.84 1-8, or around the so-called "gold point." French francs were a little firmer, again selling above 4.20 cents. Japanese yen developed further strength, cables being quoted at 41.50 cents, a gain of nearly half a cent in the last week.

News of Spring Street

Honor Victorville Man

G. A. Marsh of Victorville, will serve the San Bernardino County Bankers' Association during the ensuing year, as president, according to an announcement made recently following the annual dinner and election of officers at Ontario. Other officers elected were: Edwin Rhodes of Chino, vice-president; C. W. Curtis of Colton, treasurer, and A. R. Hamilton of San Bernardino, secretary.

Rex B. Goodcell, Collector of Internal Revenue, was the principal speaker at the dinner. Other speakers included Henry D. Vandeveer, vice-president of the Maryland Fidelity and Deposit Company, Ontario, and Arch W. Anderson and W. H. Thompson of Los Angeles. More than 100 bankers were in attendance.

"Roofs" and "Paint"

Maintaining that a house is no better than its roof, Art Carlson, purchasing agent for the Pioneer Roofing Company of Los Angeles, will point out the importance of the intelligent selection of roofing material on the part of the purchasing agent, before a class in "purchasing and stores" at Metropolitan college of the University of Southern California tomorrow night.

Following Mr. Carlson's lecture on "Roofing," Don Gillies, chief chemist of the Brininstool Company, will give a brief talk on "Paint," before the same group. He will demonstrate why it is essential for the purchaser to recognize the difference between paint that sells for $1.25 per gallon and that of apparently the same kind offered for $3.50.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows excess reserve of $32,267,200. This is an increase of $37,103,400, compared with last week, when a deficit in reserve of $4,836,200 was reported.

Trans-Atlantic Liners to Make Call at Boston

Beginning with the sailing of the S. S. Thuringia from New York February 25, and the S.S. Westphalia from Hamburg, March 3, these steamers will call regularly at Boston, both eastbound and westbound, between New York and Cobh (Queenstown) and Hamburg, according to a statement by Emil Lederer, vice-president in charge of passenger traffic of the United American Line.

Arrangements have been made for a special Christmas call at Boston of the S.S. Thuringia, on December 4, en route from New York to Cobh and Hamburg.

The Thuringia and Westphalia are sister ships of 12,000 tons each. They are turbine drive oil-burners and have accommodations for 150 cabin passengers and 700 third class.

This new service marks the reentry of Hamburg-American Line steamers into the port of Boston, and marks a step in the further development of the maritime importance of that city in international commerce.

SAFETY PIN REMOVED FROM BABY'S THROAT

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 31.—After a difficult operation at a local hospital to remove an open safety pin from her throat, Irene Madeline Awalt, 7 months of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Houston Awalt of this city has recovered. The doctors found that the safety pin had lodged about an inch below the baby's chest bone. They took X-rays for five days, then operated. The pin was found in a difficult position under the liver. It was necessary to take thirty-two stitches during the operation.

Wheat Off as Millers Take Selling Side

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Unexpected strength in Liverpool, which advanced 1¼@2¼d. due in part to spreading operations between Chicago and that market, caused a bulge of around 1c at the start, but the opening prices were the highest of the day, with a break of 2¾@3c from the top on general commission-house selling and local pressure, and the finish was at net losses of ⅝@1c. Liquidation developed in corn, and with rumors that private reports to be given to the trade on Monday would show over 3,000,000,000 bushels, the close was at losses of ⅝@1⅛c, with December 73¼@73⅜c. Oats declined ⅛@¼c, with December at a new low on the crop, while rye was off 1¼c.

The wheat market fluctuated rapidly the past week, and while the finish on Saturday was at intermediate figures, net gains were 1⅝@4c on the old crop months, with December leading, while July was 1⅝c higher. All deliveries of corn sold at a new low on the crop during the week and finished within a fraction of the bottom, with prices unchanged to ⅝c lower. Oats were ⅛@⅜c lower and rye ½c lower for the week. Provisions were decidedly irregular, with lard 40c higher to 15c lower, with October showing the most strength. Ribs gained 1.00 per 100 pounds, showing congestion, while bellies were 20@22½c lower.

The wheat market was under pressure from the start, and with stop-loss orders uncovered on the way down, the decline was easily attained. Buying was largely by shorts and by local operators, and the strength in Winnipeg was ignored. The latter market finished unchanged to ⅝c higher, the latter on October. In addition to the buying in Liverpool for American account against sales here, there was also short covering on heavy takings by the continent.

A weakening in cash wheat premiums here, with No. 2 hard in store offered at 8c over December, and reports that mills were trying to resell hard winters and springs, had some effect on the December, which went to a smaller premium over May at one time, but regained its loss later. Export demand continues slow, with sales of 300,000 bushels at the seaboard. There was also business with the continent, done on direct cables from Winnipeg. The trade looks for bearish world's statistics on Monday.

Corn started ⅛@1c higher in sympathy with wheat, only to break 1¾@2⅛c later on selling by local operators. The rumors regarding high crop estimates were not confirmed, but sentiment as a whole became distinctly bearish and disgusted longs sold freely on the way down. Basis on cash corn in the sample market showed little change. Oats and rye eased in sympathy with other grains.

Provisions were unsettled. October lard was bought by shorts and gained 2¾c, while the deferred deliveries were easier with corn and cotton, and closed unchanged to 17½c lower. A big trade was on in ribs, with a loss of 17½c. Bellies were unchanged. Deliveries on October contracts were 200,000 pounds of lard.

Moving Pictures Make Foreigners Fear Americans

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—American motion pictures shown abroad give an utterly false impression of Americans. This decision was reached at the Waldorf Astoria today by a party of distinguished visitors from Uruguay, who had hesitated to bring their women folks to New York, fearing that violent Americans would mow them down for some slighting remarks or would shoot them up for an unforgivable faux pas.

In the party are Nicolas Bolari, one of the principal importers in Montevideo; Senora Bolari, their daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Devotto, and two unmarried daughters, the Senoritas Lillia and Margaret. Thus far no member of the group has suffered from incivility or from other hostility to foreign visitors, although, they said, they had been prepared to encounter this after seeing American films at home.

Trading in Oil Group Led by United

New Peak for Pacific Gas Recorded

Americommercial Feature in Bank List

BY FRANK L. GARDNER
(Banks, Huntley & Co.)

Last week's stock market on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange was an active one and the turnover was relatively large. United Oil played a prominent part in the trading, with a substantial buying movement influencing a rise from 57 1-4 to 62 1-2, although a certain amount of profit-taking accounted for a reaction to 60 1-2, with final sellings at 60 5-8.

Other oil stocks were inclined toward lower levels, with Standard of California registering a 2 1-2 point setback at 54 3-4. Shell Union lost nearly a point on low sales at 23 1-4, but finished at 24, while Union of California sagged a point to 35 1-4, closing at improved prices around 35 3-4. Union Associates eased off from 35 to 34 1-4 and finished at 34 5-8. Marine Oil was heavily sold from 1.60 down to 1.45, but recovered to around 1.50, and Holly Development lost part of its recent gain, selling off 5 points to 27.

From an opening at 14 3-4, Julian Petroleum preferred sold down to 13, then rallied to 16 and closed at 15 5-8. The common improved from 4 1-2 to 6. Gilmore advanced a half point to 13 and finished around 12 3-4. At 18 cents, United States Royalties showed a half point loss and Mascot was heavy around 1.35.

Transport moved up from 52 1-2 to 57 1-2 and Republic Petroleum sold consistently at 5.

EDISON GAINS

It is noteworthy that the 8-point advance last week in Edison common, from 133 to 141, succeeded in bringing out only a relatively small volume of stock and would indicate a prevailing strong technical position, with most weakly held stock liquidated.

Pacific Gas common forged ahead into new high ground at 51 1-2, a 7 1-2 point gain, and San Joaquin Light and Power common also exceeded its previous peak with several sales at 60, representing a 10-point rise last week.

The preferred utility issues recorded only slight price changes, with fluctuations in most instances within a quarter-point range. The one exception was Edison original preferred, which touched a brand new high at 142, a 7 points increase over its previous record.

Declaration of another 6-cent special dividend payable in December from oil income apparently failed to stimulate a fresh demand and Los Angeles Investment, in the miscellaneous group, displayed a heavy tone, falling off 10 points to 5.65 and closing at 5.66. Globe Grain common continued its slump, losing 2 points more to 41, while Foster & Kleiser common duplicated its recent high record at 14. A sale in Home Service common at 63, represented a 13-point gain over the last previous sale, but there was nothing to indicate a broad demand for the stock at the improved level. Western Chemicals lost a half point on sales at 6 and finished around there.

BANK STOCKS

Americommercial Corporation furnished the bulk of activity in the bank group, selling between 210 and 217. Yesterday's close was around 210. Bank of Italy rose from 425 to 447 and finished around 440, while Bancitaly Corporation moved up 19 points to 235 and closed in the neighborhood of 235.

Farmers and Merchants changed hands at its recent record high of 440, and First National sold again at 383. National City was unchanged at 156, but bids for Security Trust moved up to 380, a 15-point gain and a brand new record.

A further slump in Yellow Pine, from 60 to 30 cents, attracted considerable attention, but nothing in the way of official reports were available to account for the heavy selling. A substantial recovery toward the week-end carried prices to 50. San Francisco Gold fell off 1 cent to 24, while Gold Dust gained 2½ points to 6½. Prince Consolidated touched a new low at 1 and United Eastern sold in unusually large volume around 50. North Star fluctuated between 8 and 8½, and Big Jim between 12 and 12½.

MERGER OF BAKING COMPANIES DENIED

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ADVISED TO WATCH DEVELOPMENTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Federal Trade Commission was advised today by its chief examiner, Edward F. Hudson, that no action at this time was required of it in the plans for merger of the General Baking Company, Ward Baking Corporation, and the Continental Baking Corporation.

The examiner recommended that the matter be held open for any further developments.

William B. Ward of the Ward Baking Company, was quoted as having told the chief examiner he had made an offer for the common stock of the General Baking Company and, if acquired, this stock would be held by a holding company to be known as the General Baking Corporation, but no attempt would be made to acquire the capital stock of any other company or other acquisition, he said, except by the purchase of assets. While declaring there was no truth in the press reports" of a baking merger, Mr. Ward said, "At this time it was not possible to say what might take place in the future."

OIL NEWS

BY ROBERT J. PRITCHARD

The Shell Company yesterday brought in its Edison No. 3 in the Ventura-avenue field at Ventura, with an initial production of 2900 barrels a day. The well is down 5000 feet, and was drilled on the east bank of the Ventura River. The gas production is estimated at about 3,500,000 cubic feet a day.

The Shell's completion brings the total of new production in the Ventura-avenue field in recent weeks to approximately 15,000 barrels a day. The General Petroleum Corporation, Associated Oil Company, and the Shell, which practically monopolize the field, all have brought in one or more wells running as high as 3500 barrels a day initial output.

Finds New Oil Sand

The United Oil Company yesterday found an oil sand at 3565 feet in its Transport well in the Maricopa Flats field, north of the Obispo Oil Company's property. Although this well was started as a result of the Obispo success, the sand found yesterday is not the Obispo sand, but is identified by geologists as the same zone found by the Callvada Oil Company a year ago about one-half mile to the north. It is 100 feet shallower than the Obispo zone should be in this well, and is an important development, inasmuch as it marks the southern extension of the Callvada zone, and affects about 100 acres of new producing territory.

Another interesting feature of the United find is the fact that the sand was cored solidly from 3565 feet to 3590 feet, a total of twenty-five feet of sand, said to be thickest single oil sand yet found in this district, where the producing zones usually consist of a few feet of sand, mixed with streaks of brown shale.

The United will set casing in the well and make a production test it is said. The Transport Oil Company holds the adjoining property, and probably will drill an offset well, it was said yesterday by Transport officials.

Drill Jeffries Wildcat

Jim Jeffries, former champion heavyweight boxer of the world, may make as much money in oil as he did in the ring, although many experts regard the possibility as a long shot. The F. & L. Packing Company has leased Jeffries's ranch at Burbank in the San Fernando Valley, and is preparing to drill an oil well on it. A light drilling outfit is being used, and will not drill to any great depth.

It's Good Well

The Combs No. 3 well was completed yesterday in the Signal Hill field with an initial production of about 700 barrels a day, according to field reports. The well was drilled to 4525 feet, and is located on Wardlow Road and Pasadena avenue.

HOOD'S BATTLE FLAG PRESENTED MUSEUM

TEXAS EX-CONFEDERATES GIVE SHOT-TORN TROPHY TO AUSTIN COLLECTION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Oct. 31.—Survivors of the famous "Bloody Fifth" regiment of Hood's Brigade have presented their battle-scarred flag to the Confederate Museum in the old land office at Austin where it will be officially received by the daughters of the Confederacy. Until then it is in the possession of Railroad Commissioner Lon A. Smith, State commander of Sons of Confederate Veterans, in whose office in the capitol it now is on display.

The flag was made by Mrs. M. J. Young of Houston, Tex., in May, 1862, and sent to the Fifth Texas by Bob Campbell, one of the first volunteers, according to Smith. It was first carried at Gaines Mill by George Onderdonk, who was wounded, and then by Robert A. Brantley, Sr., to whom its present inclosing cedar chest is dedicated. At Gettysburg the flag was designated by Hood as the official emblem of his brigade.

At the close of the war the flag was returned to its maker by officers of Companies A and D of the regiment. Mrs. Young's speech on accepting it will be inclosed with the flag when it finds its resting place in the Confederate Museum.

CATTLE—Approximately 1500 less cattle arrived this week than last, but this supply was more than adequate for trade requirements, coming on top of rather liberal receipts the past weeks. Trade generally was slow and draggy, with numerous holdovers being the rule from day to day. Shipments of cattle originated in ten States, with the bulk of the supply coming from California, Arizona, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming, with a sprinkling from New Mexico, Nevada, Colorado, Montana and Oregon. The she stock supply was very liberal, while steers were comparatively scarce, especially the better grades. Steer prices declined generally 15@25c from a week ago, while she stock losses were called 25@50c. A short load of 1217-pound steers topped for the week at 8.35, with odd head making 8.25, while the bulk of the more desirable steers went over from 7.75@8.00. Common and low medium kinds were most numerous, and these turned largely from 6.50@7.50, with very common kinds down to 5.00, with a few on the canner order as low as 3.25. Several loads of northern steers for feeding purposes sold from 6.30@7.00, while a few southwesterns cashed from 5.00@6.25.

Fat cows topped for the week at 5.75, while the best heifers reached 6.00, a load of 823-pound northerns making that price. Several loads of cows went over from 5.50@5.75, while the bulk of northerns on the closing days turned from 4.75@5.25, with southwesterns largely 4.00@4.50, mostly 4.00@4.25. Canners and cutters were in rather broad demand throughout the week and values on these are just about steady. The price spread of 2.25@3.75 took in the bulk, with load lots of southwestern canners being numerous from 2.50@2.75. The bull supply was rather liberal and values declined generally 15@25c from last week's high time. The general run of bolognas at the close turned from 4.25@4.75, with most range bulls from 3.75@4.25, while beef bulls were most numerous around 5.00.

CALVES—Just about half as many calves arrived this week as last, but the congested condition of the dressed trade narrowed the demand considerably and prices remained practically unchanged from a week ago. Several lots of local milk calves cleared from 9.00@9.50, with some better, while the bulk of southwesterns, mostly medium kinds, cleared from 6.75@7.50. Load lots of handy weight kinds sold up to 8.00, with a few selected lots up to 8.50. Common kinds and heavies turned largely from 5.00@6.50, with a few throwouts down to 4.00 and below.

HOGS—Demand continued rather broad for the week's small supply and values at the close are around steady with a week ago. Several lots of 185 to 200-pound trucked-in butchers on the closing sessions cleared from 14.00@14.50, while the week's practical top in load lots was 14.00, with the bulk of 150 to 200-pound weights turning from 13.75@14.00. Trucked-in butchers turned largely from 13.00@13.50, this spread taking in several lots of light lights, as well as weighty butchers weighing up to 275 pounds. Packing sows turned largely from 11.75@12.25, with a few rough kinds down to 11.25.

SHEEP—No lambs or ewes have been offered to test the market, the week's supply consisting of three decks of medium to good 107-pound wethers at 10.45, sorted 90 out at 9.00, a deck of 143 to 149-pound bucks from 2.50@5.00, and a small lot of 93-pound lambs at 13.00. Considerable inquiry exists for good and choice lambs and these kinds are quotable from 13.50@14.50, while choice light weight ewes are quotable around 5.00.

ORANGES

The market on best grades of California Valencia oranges was strong and higher the past week, particularly on sizes 176s and smaller. Poor stock was generally easier and lower.

Averages on best grades ranged from $10.50 to $12.50 a box. Lower grades averaged down as low as $3.65 a box for fruit that was unattractive and showed decay.

There are not over 300 cars of Valencias out that are unsold, which means that the markets will be well cleaned up for the arrival of new crop navels that are now being shipped from Central and Northern California districts.

The movement of navels from north of the Tehachapi is getting well under way. Picking was started early last week in a number of the earlier districts. Railroad figures are not available as to the total number of cars of navels moved this week, but reports from various shipping organizations indicate that in the neighborhood of forty cars will go forward. During the past week, the warm days have been followed by warm nights, which are not conducive to the maturing and coloring of navels. As a result, shipping has been held back somewhat.

Both Thompson Improved and Washington Navels are being shipped. The texture of the fruit is reported as being the best in years and shippers are looking forward to a banner season.

F.o.b. California quotations on Central California navels are on a basis of $7 to $7.25 a box for cars running heavy 200s and 250s size. A good business is reported.

Prices being paid growers for navels in Central California districts are reported all the way from 3½ cents to 4½ cents per pound.

In Southern California districts the packing-houses are being put in shape for the opening of the 1925-26 navel season. One shipper is reported to have commenced picking in the Highland district this week. Shippers in general, however, expect to get out only a few cars for the Thanksgiving trade, preferring to wait until the navels have attained full maturity and good color.

Under the State act, which was approved by the Governor last May, the provisions under which oranges may be shipped in regard to maturity, are as follows:

"Oranges shall not be deemed mature for packing, shipment, delivery for shipment or sale under the provisions of this act unless the juice contains soluble solids equal to, or in excess of eight parts to every part of acid contained in the juice, the acidity of the juice to be calculated as citric acid without water of crystallization; provided, that the oranges have attained at least 25 per cent yellow or orange color before picking, provided, however, that oranges which are substantially or at least 75 per cent colored at the time of picking shall be deemed properly matured for shipment or sale, irrespective of analysis of the juice."

These provisions do not apply to shipments of oranges to foreign countries, other than Canada, during any season, provided such shipments are not made before November 1.

LEMONS

The market on California lemons is easier and lower, particularly on small sizes.

F.o.b. California quotations are on a basis of $6.50 to $7 a box for extra-choice 300s size. Choice fruit 50 cents a box less.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days in all United States ports approximately 167 cars of foreign lemons. For the corresponding period last season there were twenty-eight cars and in 1923, seventy cars.

ROAD LONG ABANDONED TO BE BUILT

Railway Linking Tampico and Mexico City Will be Completed Soon

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MONTEREY (Mex.) Oct. 31.—After a lapse of thirteen years, construction will be resumed next month on the railroad which is to give the National Railways of Mexico a direct line between Mexico City and Tampico, according to official announcement received here from the capital. Orders for materials for the proposed line are being placed. The steel will be furnished by the Monterey Iron and Steel Company, it is stated.

This railroad was under construction at the time the revolution was started in 1910 and two years later all work upon it was abandoned on account of internal disorders. About 100 miles of grade was finished and fifty miles of track laid from Tamos, near Tampico, toward Honey, where the proposed line is to connect with the Pachuca division of the National Railways system that runs to Mexico City. The bridge across the Panuco River was partly finished when construction was stopped. The completed part is still standing in good condition.

The new short line will reduce the rail distance between Tampico and Mexico City to 325 miles, as compared with 600 miles via the present route by way of San Luis Potosi. Less than 200 miles of new road will have to be constructed to complete the project, according to statements of engineers.

The British interests, which own the Mexican (Vera Cruz) Railroad hold a concession from the Mexican government for the construction of a branch from a point on its Mexico City-Vera Cruz trunk line to Tampico, but it is explained that the short road which the National Railways of Mexico plans to build will not interfere with the former project. The route of the proposed branch line of the Mexican (Vera Cruz) Railroad is via Tuxpam, thence up the Gulf Coast to Tampico.

GROWS HAIR ON SHEEP

New Tonic Will Permit Shearing Three Times a Year

The great discovery has been discovered! Someone—said to be "a Japanese doctor"—has found an elixir that makes the hair grow. The tonic is described by Textile World as "a fluid which, when injected into the veins of a sheep, say, every two days, promotes a rapid growth of hair." So rapid, in fact, that two months' injection produces twelve months' growth. "Thus two or three shearings each year are possible."

One can't help seeing vast possibilities ahead for the shrewd Wall-street operator among lambs. No doubt a financial "doctor," after mixing the dope in his research laboratory, will issue forth with his doctored retorts and raise such a crop for shearing as never was on lamb or sheep.

Of course, the real trick will be to inject the stuff into the veins of genus homo. If sheep, why not man—to say nothing of woman? These thousands years and more, aye, even in the B. C.'s, the bald have looked wrathfully upon the hirsute and the wigged have lamped vengefully the coiffed. One drop of tonic, now, and the whole world grins. Especially if (horrible thought!) the tonic should refute the fundamentalists, bear out the modernists and produce a reversion-to-type of missing-link effect luxuriously thatched from crown to sole.—[Nation's Business.

DOWAGER-QUEEN OF BRITAIN IN SECLUSION

Alexander, queen-empress dowager of Britain, has now withdrawn from the public ceremonial of a brilliant court. Having passed her eightieth year, the venerable queen finds it to be a burden even to attend church on Sundays, Phillip Whitwell writes in The New York Times. At Sandringham, in Norfolk, the country home she shared with King Edward, Alexandra lives serenely, a little deaf, but still blessed with excellent eyesight. Among her occupations is "patience" or solitaire, and she keeps up a limited correspondence.

Begging letters are handled by her secretaries, who note with affectionate amusement that when they find out a fraudulent application the queen dowager is more resentful against the discovery of the deception than against its perpetrator. Every week Alexandra finds time to write to her sister, ex-Czarina Marie of Russia, and to her daughter, Queen Maud of Norway. Her letters, like her talk, consist of gossip, and she displays an eager interest in the daily round, the common task of mundane existence.

And so it has to be admitted at last that Queen Alexandra is old. And yet it seems incredible. In the battle for eternal youth no woman of the nineteenth century, not even this ex-Empress Eugenie, ever defied with such prolonged success the pitiless assaults of time.

JUDGE HANDS MASHER HEAVY JAIL SENTENCE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MODESTO, Oct. 31.—"It is too bad that whipping-posts cannot be revived for men like you," declared W. H. Rice, police judge, when he sentenced Getty Smith, 30 years of age, to a term of 120 days in the County Jail. Smith had accosted a married woman on a Modesto street. She had broken away from him and called the police.

CHINA SEETHING WITH CIVIL WAR

Former Angeleno Tells of Devastated Land

Murderous Leader Once Employed as Coolie

New Outbreaks Expected at Any Moment

New outbreaks among the factions contending for supremacy in China, recently reported in the American newspapers, occasioned no surprise to persons familiar with the hectic conditions in the Chinese republic, according to Roland Haskell, former Los Angeles resident, who recently returned from Shanghai after eight years spent in the practice of law in that city.

During his residence in the Far East, Mr. Haskell had an opportunity to familiarize himself with the Chinese situation. He was an eyewitness to many of the events that have marked the period of intermittant fighting and rioting, in and about Shanghai during the last year, and has personally come into contact with some of the leaders in those disturbances.

"By reason of its geographical position and importance as a commercial center Shanghai will always be a great prize as long as there are contending factions in Central China, and as long as there are Chinese of the mind and temperament of the Chinese of today, there will be contending factions," said Mr. Haskell.

CAUSE OF OUTBREAK

"The Shanghai defense commission has for many years been controlled by the military governor of the province of Chekiang which lies south of the Province of Kiangsu, in which Shanghai is situated. In the fall of 1924, Chi Hsieh Yuan, Governor of Kiang-su Province, decided to bring an end to Chekiang's control of the Shanghai area, his intention being to restore that area to its proper place in the affairs of Kiang-su.

"This was the cause of the outbreak last fall. Gen. Lin, defending Shanghai, lost in the struggle with Chi and fled to Japan. Chi then occupied Shanghai, but while he was busying himself with the affairs of that city, his ally, Wu Pei Foo, lost in a great battle in the north with Chang Tso Ling, the northern war lord, and Peking saw a complete change in the national administration.

"An attempt was made to place the Shanghai area under a civil commission, which did not function, and Chang Tso Ling, continued to occupy the area with 15,000 troops under command of Gen. Chang Chong Chung, who probably has more murders to his credit committed in the name of the military, than any other living man.

COOLIE BY BIRTH

"I met Gen. Chang Chong Chung at a dinner in Shanghai. He is a Chinese coolie by birth, a huge individual, more than six feet tall, who first attracted the attention of Chang Tso Ling by his exceptional marksmanship. In the course of the conversation at this dinner an American guest asked the general if he intended to establish some form of civil government in the Chinese district about Shanghai. 'Yes, I do,' he replied, 'there are many prisoners awaiting execution and no authority here to carry out the sentences. I shall immediately establish a proper execution office.'"

The trail of every advance of an army in China is one of destroyed villages and crops and starving people, Mr. Haskell said. He gave a vivid picture of such a situation, impressed upon his mind when he visited Lin Ho, a town of about 10,000 population near Shanghai, which was devastated by troops during the outbreaks about a year ago.

"Here had been a thriving town whose inhabitants had given little thought to the war game being carried on by the generals until too late," he said. "Machine-gun fire, shells from field guns, looting by the retreating forces and a second looting by the advancing enemy provided a rude awakening. Hardly a house in the town stood intact and none escaped the hail of lead. Lin Ho could best be described as a pile of broken bricks, mud and mortar when I saw it. And Lin Ho is only one of many towns and villages left destitute and destroyed in the wake of the warring parties.

VICTIMS PASSIVE

"Through all this destruction, the students, the merchants, farmers and laborers remain inactive. They condemn the military but a wholesome fear of their vicious fighting brethern prevents their doing anything. But let a foreign police officer in the defense of his station and in the name of law and order fire into an angry, threatening mob and the whole nation is aroused. A propaganda of lies is spread and the trade of friendly nations suffers a boycott. The element of fear in this case is absent for the foreign nations are pledged to peace and the policy of self-determination. Fear is the only restraint the Chinaman knows."

Speaking of the scenes in and about Shanghai after the riot and shooting on Nanking Road last May, Mr. Haskel said conditions were entirely demoralized during this period.

"Chinese banks, shops and factories remained closed and business came virtually to a standstill," he said. "Nearly all the able-bodied men of the foreign population enlisted in the volunteer police reserve corps, offering their services to carry on any necessary public work. Society women responded to the telephone company's call for operators to fill the places of the striking Chinese and also served in canteens established to feed hungry men on guard duty.

"Many minor outbreaks occurred but order was very well preserved considering the fact that the foreigners had in their midst and surrounding them several hundred thousand idle strikers who were being continually urged to commit acts of violence by students, labor agitators and representatives of the Russian soviet government. Armored cars, the landing of marines and the presence of a well equipped civilian force were the only things that averted what might have been a very great catastrophe.

"On many nights during June crowds of thousands of Chinese would gather at some point on the foreign settlement boundary. A few police and an armored car or two would be dispatched to the scene with orders not to fire. Upon their arrival they fould become the target of well-aimed bricks and the subject of insults throughout the night. One shot at such a time would have turned the howling mob loose and Shanghai would have had the same experience as her little sister-town of Lin Ho.

"The strike after about two months quieted down and Shanghai seemed normal. But another outbreak is bound to occur. When, nobody kows. The situation in China appears to be hopeless, like an apple rotten at the core."

MADRID FETES CRACK TROOPS

Hailed as Defenders of Whites

[P. & A. Photo]

Spanish Comrades in Arms

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADRID, Oct. 30.—Hailed as the defenders of the white race in Africa, the Batallon Infante, crack troops of the Spanish army, returned to Madrid a short time ago from the Moroccan campaign, to receive an ovation such as the capital has not seen in years. Flower-strewn streets and a special guard of honor were features of the welcome.

Reunions between men and officers who had not seen each other for months, because of the vicissitudes of the campaign, occurred everywhere. A Spanish captain encountered a native Moroccan soldier to whom he owed his life, not once, but several times, as the troops were disbanded in their Madrid quarters. The pair had not seen each other since early summer. Needless to say, the native soldier was bundled off by the captain as his guest during a well-earned furlough.

It is probable that most of the men will return to Africa in the spring unless a peace is arranged with Abd-el-Krim, the rebel Riffian chieftain.

Affairs of the Week

By Juana Neal Levy

Elaborate preparations are being completed for the supper-dance and fashion show scheduled for Friday evening, the 6th inst., at the Ambassador by the Auxiliary of the Los Angeles Orphans' Home which will be the beneficiary.

Many of the members of the organization is trying to outdo her efforts in the matter of arousing interest, which, of course, means selling tickets, boxes and table reservations, all preliminary to establishing a fund which takes care of the many needs of this worthy institution.

The "piece de resistance" of the evening is to be the fashion show, which is to be under the personal supervision of Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks, Jr., debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Albert Bryant, who is making her debut at a tea given by her mother on the 16th inst.

Mrs. Bryant will be assisted by a number of young belles and matrons who will be the mannikins, including Miss John Cassell Byrne (Kathleen Adam,) Miss Katherine Ware, Miss Barbara Palmer, Miss Dorothy Coman Wellborn, Mrs. Philip Chapman (Helen Thompson Forrest Moody Best (Maud Allen), Miss Phyllis Kemp, Miss Ruth McClung, Miss Beatrice Miss Katherine Phillips, Miss Fulton, Mrs. Francis Emerson (Margaret Gray,) Mrs. Buckingham (Susan Valentine Douglas Bundy (Phyllis Miss Mary Stimson, Florence Grece, Mrs. Wilcox (Katherine Hendrick,) Mrs. Moore Schmoele (Elizabeth Miss Polly Holbert, Miss McLaughlin, Miss Alice Mrs. Nancy Billicke de Rou-

Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks (Martha Woolwine,) is the chairman of the floor committee and will be assisted by Alexander Macdonald. The ushers will take the votes for the Charleston contest, which will be under the ruling of Edward D. Lyman.

Robert Gephard Meyler is to be in charge of the door and the supper committee (for, of course, the supper is included in the price of admission) is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Preston Hotchkis (Katherine Bixby.)

Mrs. Robert Gephard Meyler (Helen Jones) is the chairman of the boxes and reservations for tables, while Mrs. Woods Woolwine can furnish tickets for all (those who have not (for any reason whatsoever) received invitations, and there will be room for everyone.

Many of the hostesses who have obtained boxes are also entertaining with dinner parties at their homes preceding the supper-dance. Among those who have taken boxes for the affair are Mrs. Ernest Albert Bryant, Mrs. William D. Woolwine, Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Sr. and Jr., Mrs. James Rathwell Page, Mrs. J. J. Meyler, Mrs. William G. Kerckhoff, Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks, Mrs. Secondo Guasti, Mrs. Allan C. Balch, Mrs. Eugene O. McLaughlin, Mrs. Henry W. O'Melveny, Mrs. Harold Brent Wrenn and Mrs. Henry Norman Jenson, while among the dinner hostesses will be Mrs. Roderick McAlpin, Mrs. William May Garland, Mrs. Robert Gephard Meyler, Mrs. Gerald Young and Mrs. James Rathwell Page.

So—the advance "low down" on the affair promises an exceptionally brilliant one, both financially and socially.

The invitations can be obtained from Miss Louise Hunt, while Mrs. Paul Hammond (Jarvis Wallis) has the direction of the publicity. Mrs. Alexander MacDonald (Aileen McCarthy) is chairman of the auxiliary, Mrs. Charles Moreland Nebeker (Virginia Walsh) chairman of the supper-dance, with Mrs. Roderick McAlpin (Grace Norcross) assisting and Mrs. Woods Woolwine (Vinneta Riddle) treasurer.

Hostesses of the evening will include Mrs. Allan C. Balch, Mrs. Ernest Albert Bryant, Mrs. Theodore A. Eisen, Mrs. Joseph Francis Sartori, Mrs. Woods Woolwine, Mrs. Alexander MacDonald, Mrs. William Kay Crawford, Mrs. Charles Moreland Nebeker, Mrs. Roderick McAlpin, Mrs. Wells Morris, Mrs. Van Buren Jarvis, Mrs. Otis Buckingham, Mrs. Preston Hotchkis and Miss Louise Hunt, while the patronesses include Mrs. Harold Bayly, Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks, Mrs. Grace W. Biggs, Mrs. Fred Hathaway Bixby, Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler, Mrs. Samuel Travers Clover, Mrs. Arden Day, Mrs. George J. Denis, Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Mrs. J. N. Dawson, Mrs. Charles H. For Recent Bride

One of the loveliest of the season's affairs was the reception and tea with which Mrs. Rufus Hills Herron entertained Friday afternoon at her home in South Wilton Place, honoring her new daughter-in-law, Mrs. Paul Anderson Herron, formerly Miss Catherine Lent Barlow, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow, a bride of the midsummer. The hours were from 4 to 6 o'clock and the house and tea tables were abloom with gorgeous autumn flowers—chrysanthemums in bronze, red, brown, pink, yellow, white and other shades, with dahlias and foliage. Mrs. Herron was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Walter Jarvis

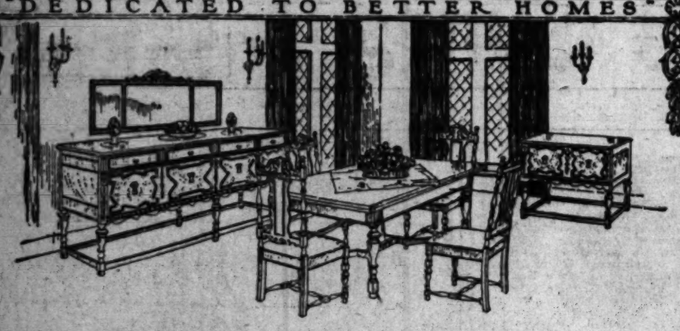
"DEDICATED TO BETTER HOMES"



The Dining Room Takes The Center of the Stage

THE season for more frequent entertaining in the home is here. The height of entertaining is marked by the holidays that come fast upon each others heels within a few short weeks.

Naturally the Dining Room becomes the scene for much of the hospitality dispensed within the home. Obviously this room is brought before the appraising glances of friendly, though critical, guests with greater frequency than at any other time of the year.

It is a good time to consider the introduction of new furnishings for the Dining Room. It is an especially advantageous time to seek the services of the "California" to aid you in making this very important room more attractive.

The "California" has never had a finer or a more extensive display of distinctive Dining Room furniture from which to make your selections. An especially desirable suite, from the standpoint of both attractiveness and value is shown in the illustration.

This is a 9-piece suite of fine selected walnut. It is of Jacobean type, beautifully designed and finished and is priced $850.00.

Other 9-piece Dining Room suites of such desirable quality and design as you would expect to find at the "California" are priced as low as $300.00 and on up to $1000.00, $2000.00 and as high as $5000.00.

Irrespective of what price you contemplate paying you will find it to your distinct advantage to come to the "California" and compare values.

Your visit as well as your critical comparison of values are both sincerely invited.

The Dining Room Suite illustrated is shown in one of our windows this week.

Buy Diamonds Now

THE "up swing" of the diamond market is of vital importance to you for you may be sure that the "down swing" will not come.

The writer of these lines has been continuously in the diamond business for more than forty years and in all of those years does not recall more than three years — possibly four — that diamond values have declined. Another three years — possibly four years — values have remained stationary, but for the remaining thirty or more years of our business experience definite price advances have confronted us and we have either bought at advanced prices or we have not bought at all.

The Diamond Syndicate of London is, financially, one of the strongest syndicates in the world and practically controls the world's output of rough diamonds. A single interesting instance of its inner workings is evidenced by the fact that just recently the report was current that two of the London members were "weakening" — not inclined to support the market — and immediately their interests were absorbed by J. Pierpont Morgan & Company of New York.

Call it monopoly, if you will — yet it must be comforting to Americans to know that their investments in diamonds are as safe as the Bank of England is safe. Therefore, if you can afford to do so, BUY GOOD DIAMONDS. Wear them and enjoy them; you need not concern yourself about their cost, for it is a forgone conclusion that they will afford you big dividends both in pleasure derived from their possession and in their increase in value.

Buy diamonds of us, if you will — but in any event BUY DIAMONDS.

SORORITY'S PLEDGES GUESTS

The wedding of Miss Barlow and Mr. Herron was one of the brilliant events of July 16, and since their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Herron are at home to their friends at 409 West Pioneer Drive, Glendale.

Luncheon Party

Among the charmingly planned events of the past week was the luncheon with which Mrs. James Calhoun Drake entertained at her home on South Hoover street Tuesday afternoon, a dozen guests being bidden. The decorations of the table were carried out in yellow roses and sprays of maidenhair ferns.

Honoring Vice-Consul

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rydell were the charming hosts at their spacious home in Beverly Hills several days ago when they entertained with a formal dinner honoring the Swedish Vice-Consul, W. A. Monten, forty guests having been bidden. The drawing-room was beautifully decorated with huge crimson dahlias, while a color scheme of blue and gold predominated in the dining-room, the centerpiece bearing the Swedish coat of arms embossed in gold.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Monten, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Hansen, Dr. and Mrs. Gustav Bjorkman, Dr. F. A. Eimquist, Dr. and Mrs. Albin Petersen, Dr. and Mrs. Enstam, Lieut. and Mrs. Sudergren, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Petersen, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Sebelius, Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Swan Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Valley, Mr. and Mrs. M. Nelson, T. Lawrits, M. Lawrits, Miss Ida Nystrom, Miss Lillian Nystrom, Miss Marion Mahoney, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Norquist and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Olafson.

Home Again

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Robinson, who, with their son, Jack, have been away from Los Angeles since last December, arrived home ten days ago, and will be domiciled for the winter at the Gaylord on Wilshire Boulevard. After landing in New York from the Olympic in August, the Robinsons motored through the country down to Florida, where after a delightful visit they shipped their car back and came home by train.

Sauntering in Navy Circles

The arrival of our naval ships always entails the appearance of navy wives in the neighborhood, and once the latter have unpacked their belongings and entered their children in school, social doings invariably begin to occur.

Down at Los Angeles Harbor at present there is assembled the mightiest battleship fleet of our Navy, already the clans are gathering and preparing for a brilliant winter, socially speaking.

At the Virginia Hotel one meets Mrs. Samuel S. Robison, the gracious wife of the new commander-in-chief of the whole United States Fleet, whose husband has just returned from Washington, where he went to testify before the President's Air Board.

Admiral Hughes, who has just relieved his brother-in-law as commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet, brought with him to this coast, Mrs. Hughes and her mother, Mrs. George R. Clark, widow of the late Capt. Clark, U.S.N., who commanded the Oregon during the Spanish War. Mrs. Robison a ndMrs. Hughes are sisters.

Rear-Admiral and Mrs. George Marvel and Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Richard Leigh are also comfortably ensconced at the Virginia, as are Capt. and Mrs. J. R. P. Pringle, Commander and Mrs. Halsey Powell and Lieut. and Mrs. Baggerly—quite an interesting as well as a distinguished gathering of navy folk.

Capt. and Mrs. Thomas T. Craven, who have been living at the Imperial Inn near by, have left for San Francisco for a ten days' sojourn, the Maryland, Capt. Craven's ship, having been ordered to that port.

The Maryland, like the State for which she is named, is noted for her hospitality, and has already started the social ball rolling by the delightful afternoon dance which was recently given by Capt. Craven to his officers and their families.

Admiral and Mrs. Ziegemeyer have taken a house in Long Beach at 2301 Ocean Boulevard, and are planning to give the first of a series of the dansants in the near future, which will contribute much to the gayety of navy life.

The various country clubs have been most gracious to the officers of the fleet, extending the courtesies for a month and the privilege of becoming members at a nominal fee. The links of Palos Verdes are usually filled with men from the ships at the week-ends and the Long Beach Country Club has already become the rendezvous for smart navy folk. Commander and Mrs. Norton and Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. Alan Kirk were among those lunching there last Sunday before an afternoon of golf.

Navy folk entertain constantly, but in a simple manner, with no spirit of competition, and among those giving small dinners these last weeks were Mrs. Dortch, wife of Commander Dortch of the Mississippi, who had a charming party Wednesday evening in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Leigh Noyes, new arrivals in the naval colony.

Thursday afternoon the wife of Commander Coffey entertained a company of friends at luncheon and bridge, and Mrs. Burhans, wife of Lieutenant-Commander Burhans of the New Mexico, gave a delightful tea for all the wives of the officers of her husband's ship.

In all of the eastern ports, where the ships consentrate, our Navy has always had a definite place in the social life of the community, and now that Los Angeles has become one of the greatest naval centers in the country, it is most suitable that her charming people should maintain social intercourse with their naval visitors. The officers of the fleet and their families are looking forward eagerly to a winter in Southern California and are planning many social activities at their homes and aboard the ships.

Afternoon Affair

Among the enjoyable affairs of yesterday was the luncheon with which Mrs. George H. Bishop entertained at her home on South Lucerne Boulevard, honoring Mrs. Alexander Buchanan Barret. The decorations of the house and table appointments all carried out a Dresden effect. Covers were arranged for Mrs. Barret, Mrs. R. D. Shepherd, Mrs. Grove Chester Fiske, Mrs. Robert London, Mrs. Alice Pike Barney, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, Mrs. Sloan-Orcutt, Mrs. Clark Stull Smith, Mrs. Frederick Kiamp, Mrs. Judson Claudius Rives, Mrs. William A. Honnold, Mrs. Frederick William Braun, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Perkins and the hostess.

Halloween Party

One of the pretty affairs of yesterday was the birthday anniversary luncheon given by Miss Doris Cook at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Mitchell Cook, on Country Club Drive. Included were Miss Katherine Wilson, Miss Lucile Gardner, Miss Nelda Jeffray, Miss Rosalie Vance, Miss Jean Stewart, Miss June Comstock and Miss Margaret Lavering, all classmates of the hostess at Marlborough School. The decorations of the house were in a Halloween motif, eerie and spooky, while the table carried out the same effect in its appointments. Following the luncheon Miss Cook took her guests to the matinee at the Mason, accompanied by her parents.

Bridge Tea

A number of pleasant affairs are being planned for the alumnae members of the Delta Gamma national sorority, the social committee being busy working out the details. Yesterday afternoon an elaborate bridge tea was given by the alumnae of the chapter at University of Southern California, the proceeds devoted to the needs of that chapter. November 13, the Los Angeles alumnae chapter is entertaining with a supper party at the beautiful new home of Mrs. J. Allen Davis on McCadden Place, while early in December a large evening bridge party is being given by the University of Southern California alumnae. During the month the entire alumnae membership of Southern California will entertain at the Women's Athletic Club with its annual fall bridge tea. Many of the members will entertain groups of friends at this afternoon function, which promises to be an immense success.

Benedt Tea

Among the affairs for which are being arranged by members of the younger set will be a bridge tea at the Elite, which being planned for Saturday, 7th inst., by the Lambda Thi Sorority for the Santa Barbara relief fund. Hawaiian music will feature the afternoon. Officers of the sorority include Barbara Palmer, daughter of and Mrs. Guy Palmer, pres while Miss Louise Janss, dau of Herman S. Janss, is vice-president. The first of the series of the fortnightly talks of travelogue and current events to be given at the Women's Athletic Club the second and fourth Monday afternoons of November and December, has been postponed to the 23rd inst. This change is on account of the Community Chest drive in which so many of the subscribers and patrons of the series will be working.

Lysle-Bacon

Great tall standards of white chrysanthemum against a background of ferns and foliage, with many lighted tapers, formed the decoration for the marriage ceremony of Miss Heloise Lysle, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sherman, to John Baptiste Ford Bacon, which took place at the home of the bride's parents the 24th inst., Rev. Robert Freeman officiating. Mr. Bacon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark R. Bacon of Detroit and Pasadena. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was most attractive in a gown of white velvet with court train, the long veil of tulle held in place by a coronet of duchesse lace and orange blossoms. She carried an arm shower of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Dudley Oliver Knight assisted her sister as matron of honor in a gown of cloth of gold and carried roses of a golden russet hue. Mrs. Sherman wore rose crepe and gold and carried orchids, while Mrs. Bacon was in gray lace and silver.

Milton E. Bacon served his brother as best man and the ushers were Dr. George A. Ford of Detroit, Dr. William G. Morris of Los Angeles, Oliver Dudley Knight of Pasadena and Gardner Harrison Bridge of Brookline, Mass. A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony, pink and white blossoms being combined with ferns and foliage on the bride's table. The bride, one of the most popular members of the younger set in Pasadena and Los Angeles, was graduated from Stanford, taking a post-graduate course at Columbia. Mr. Bacon, who is an alumnus of Yale, class of 1915, served during the recent World War as second lieutenant in the U. S. Aviation Service.

A Night in Dixie

One of the interesting events of the coming week will be the party planned for Friday evening, the 6th inst., at the Hollywood Women's clubhouse by the William Gibbs McAdoo Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy. The affair will be a veritable old Southern party with darky orchestra playing Southern airs. Mr. McAdoo will be the honor guest of the chapter and will give a brief talk, as will also Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, a new member of the chapter.

Every president of the many chapters of U.D.C. in Los Angeles will be guests of the evening and following the dinner there will be dancing and bridge games with prizes for each table.

The decorations will be effectively carried out in Southern motif and a strictly Southern baked ham dinner served with all the "fixin's."

No effort is being spared to make this "Night in Dixie" an immense success as this is the only affair given by the chapter during the year and in line with the national work is the way in which they emphasize their scholarship program, for with the proceeds of this dinner they will purchase a scholarship in some leading university which will enable some ambitious, worthy descendant of the Confederacy to complete his education, following a precedent which has been established by the many U.D.C. chapters of the community, each one choosing its pet university and plan of work.

Mrs. Erwin Peter Werner is president of the William Gibbs McAdoo Chapter, Mrs. J. Edward Haley first vice-president, Mrs. Vern Stires, recording secretary; Mrs. Helen Pewitt Ellis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fred Baker, registrar; Mrs. Frank Rouse, treasurer; Mrs. Patrick G. Henry, historian, and Mrs. Hobart J. Whitley, custodian.

Mrs. Frank Rouse is general chairman for the dinner evening with Mrs. Fred Baker as vice-chairman, assisted by Mrs. Frederick Stith, Mrs. Hobart J. Whitley, Mrs. George Blair, Miss Lorena M. La Grange and Mrs. Alexander H. Levy, while the bridge committee includes Mrs. Patrick G. Henry, Mrs. Joseph P. Bass, Mrs. Harry S. Finch and Mrs. Vern Stires.

The dance committee includes Miss Wallace Henry, Miss Margaret Browning Clark, Miss Carroll Mayfield, Miss Octavia Simmons, Miss Elizabeth Scattergood and Mrs. Howard Stocking.

After the formal part of the program is over there will be singing of the old songs and two cunning little pickininnies, "true daughters of the old South," will dance the Charleston.

All friends of the chapter are cordially invited. Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. Frank Rouse.

Returned Home

Dr. Frank Dyer, pastor of Wilshire Congregational Church, and Mrs. Dyer returned home Friday from the East where they have been passing the last six weeks. Mrs. Dyer visited relatives in Chicago while Dr. Dyer attended the National Council of Congregational Churches in Washington, D. C.

Engagement Announced

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Chase announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Shirley Chase, to Donald Kolts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greely Kolts of 2828 Corralitas Drive, Los Angeles, at a delightful party given last evening at their home in North Orange street, Glendale.

A group of thirty intimate friends gathered informally, ostensibly for a dancing party, but when a wee gray kitten poked its head out of a heart-shaped bag and hopped out, wearing a pink heart which disclosed the announcement of the engagement, the real reason of the party was plainly seen as Mrs. Chase "let the cat out of the bag."

At the appointed hour the dining-room doors opened on a bower-like table on which two kewpies, attired as bride and groom, stood on a carpet of orange blossoms. A large basket of yellow chrysanthemums, pink dahlias and lavender asters gave expression to the gay color scheme, which was carried out in detail in the refreshments of yellow ice cream, in the center of which were molded pink hearts, pink and yellow brouchettes and candies. A dainty card to which a spray of orange blossoms was tied with white tulle bore the names of the betrothed.

The evening was spent in dancing. Two impromptu vocal numbers were given by Mrs. Greely Kolts, "Sky Blue Waters," and "I Love You Truly."

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Greely Kolts, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Kolts, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Kolts, Misses Madelyne Suydam, Fern Lloyd, Ida Mae Robbins, Haidee Gamer and Eva Morgan of Los Angeles, Mrs. E. R. Richmond and Miss Ora Richmond of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fraley and John Fraley and Mrs. Mabel Tight of Glendale, Everett Robinson of Hollywood, Roscoe Ashley, Frank Fielding and Clayton Briggs of Los Angeles.

For Mothers

A dainty affair of the week was the tea given Thursday afternoon by Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority at the home of Mrs. Eugene Klein in Brentwood Park, the occasion following a custom of the sorority to honor each season the mothers of the members. Miss Lillian Byrne, Miss Lillian Louden and Miss Freeda L'Allemand were hostesses of the afternoon and were assisted by Mrs. Wesley Ferry Speer, Miss Katherine Johnson, Miss Margaret Berg and Miss Helen Campbell, recently initiated member of the sorority.

Plans Trip

Mrs. Eugene Zellerbach, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Mary E. Touraine, is leaving the 17th inst. on the Los Angeles for Honolulu. Mrs. Zellerbach has been the incentive for numerous bon-voyage affairs since her plans have been completed for the trip.

Dancing Party

One of the jolly affairs of last evening was the dancing party with which Mrs. O. L. Minge entertained for her daughter, Miss Virginia Minge, at her home in North New Hampshire street. The decorations were carried out in Halloween motif and the hostess was assisted by Miss Katherine Wolff. Others attending were Miss Dorothy Bailey, Miss Jeanette Treboal, Miss Isabel Treboal, Miss Bernice Felt, Miss Helen Vincent, Miss Leora Lathrop, Miss Charlotte Axford, Miss Esther Helis, Miss Betty Rose, Heirge Helis, Miss Veliah Riser, Miss Thelma Rose, Gordon Rose, Miss Therice Aller, Edward Oliver, Miss Jane Robinson, Miss Mary Janice Haselton, Miss Jean Smith, Miss Louise Smith, Edwin Camp, Bobbie Saahl, Edward John Whitestone, Alvin Meadows, Ernest Leech, Francis Miemier, Harlan Miemeir, Jack Spain and Masters Paul.

Many a Year Has Passed

Many a year has passed since his father on his twenty-first birthday presented him with a watch. Dozens of styles have come and gone, and perhaps a little gray decorates his temples; but through all these years of changes the very thing which has marked the passing time remains unchanged.

'Tis true a fine watch should last a lifetime, but men all enjoy wearing things of style. Two watches in a lifetime were once called an extravagance, but the day of carrying antiques and heirlooms has passed. Modern timepieces in the pocket and on the wrist might carry the feeling of intense luxury, but many times they do keep his spirit soaring.

Enjoy the comfort and ease attached to the wearing of fine watches, a visit to our watch department will be a step in this direction.

AFTER BREAKFAST

AFTER breakfast the mother sends her little daughter off to school. She does her housework. She takes care of her baby. And—she is happy!

¶ To a great extent, a woman's happiness depends upon her health. If she is troubled with ailments common to women, she should seek relief from her suffering immediately.

¶ In the following letter Mrs. Fuller tells how she improved her health and by so doing increased her happiness.

MRS. T. H. FULLER
WALPOLE, NEW HAMPSHIRE

¶ "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it has improved my health wonderfully. For months and months I was not regular and had terrible pains. They used to affect my side so I could not work. I kept a girl at that time. I read of others being helped by the Vegetable Compound so thought it might help me. I am very much better now, do my own housework, and have two dear children to care for besides. I speak highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends and recommend it to any woman for a nervous and run-down condition."

TO FAT WOMEN WHO WISH TO SAFELY REDUCE

Beautiful New York Model Tells HER SECRET

Miss Peg Evans, who is today recognized as one of New York's most beautiful artist's models, tells below of her experience in attaining a figure which everyone admires—ALL FAT WOMEN should read because it explains how to get slender and keep a beautiful, slim figure without the use of diets—exercise—dangerous drugs or patent reducing garments.

"When I noticed that I was putting on flesh around my hips this beautiful young lady, I realized that something had to be done which would take off the excess weight without giving me wrinkles. Diets I knew were no good, as having once wrinkled and old looking skin from reducing, exercises had no effect on me, and as I had been warned by my physician against dangerous drugs and reducing garments, a friend recommended SAN-GRI-NA with which she, herself had taken off 40 pounds of fat before trying it I decided to ask the advice of a physician-member of my family. He thoroughly investigated SAN-GRI-NA and advised me that it was safe to try it. I used it according only two small tablets a day (I simply refer to my normal weight. I find SAN-GRI-NA is perfectly wonderful, and the many fat women I choose to remain as I am now that such a reliable and safe reducer is on the market, I cannot see. I am glad to have my photograph and letter used in connection with this marvelous life saver for FAT PEOPLE."—Peg Evans, N. Y. C.

When this beautiful, young lady says that in one instance of hundreds of similar cases SAN-GRI-NA does really work wonders—takes off fat safely and quickly when everything else fails! It is recommended by leading physicians and druggists. Dr. Bastedo, Health Commissioner, advises it, and hundreds of patients who have reduced are ever recommending it to their fat friends.

If you are too fat, be it 10 or 100 pounds, use this simple test! Buy a package of SAN-GRI-NA (do not accept any substitutes called just as good, as you will be disappointed). Weigh yourself before starting the treatment, then see how different you feel and look after you have taken off the pounds of fat—SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only does it eliminate excess fat but it acts as a general tonic on the system of fat people. SAN-GRI-NA is ideal to relieve high blood pressure, pimples, and do away with that horrid "tired feeling" well known to FAT PEOPLE.

On sale at any OWL or any other good Drug or Dept. Store. If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock he can get it from his wholesaler, or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Laboratories, 1541 Broadway, N. Y. C.

Husband Says Wife Eats Too Much

At first she ate hardly anything because she had stomach trouble. After her husband, F. M. Noble, bought the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc. (known as Adlerika) her appetite became so good that Mr. Noble, in a joking way, says it keeps him humping to buy food.

Many people keep the OUTSIDE body clean but let their INSIDE body stay full of gas and poisons. Give the inside a REAL cleansing with the mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as sold under the name of Adlerika. This acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, eliminates metabolic poisons and removes old matter which you never thought was in your system, and which causes sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc.

Whenever you eat too much heavy food, let Adlerika REMOVE the undigested surplus and leave you feeling fine. ONE spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling. Even if your bowels never move, Adlerika brings out much matter which might cause you to waste time with pills or tablets. Adlerika give your stomach and QUICK relief.

What Doctors Say

Dr. G. Buzzrs reports Adlerika best medicine he has used in 17 yrs.

Dr. W. H. Barnhart writes: "Will not get along in his practice without Adlerika."

Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 30 yrs., says he knows no medicine like Adlerika.

Dr. L. Langlois prescribes Adlerika regularly with GOOD effect.

J. E. Puckett writes: "After taking Adlerika I feel better than for years. AWFUL impurities were eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to those who have used only ordinary stomach medicines because of its QUICK and quick action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere.—[Advertisement]

The garden was a mass of bloom of fall flowers, and the luncheon table was colorful with Halloween decorations. Covers were placed for Mrs. Robert Alexander of Pasadena, Mmes. W. H. McManus, Morton Price and Charles Alder of Hollywood; Mrs. Frank Connely of Los Angeles; and of Glendale, Mmes. A. E. Angier, C. M. Conklin, F. W. Fabrick, Ray Oslvin, Lyman Craig, Peter Mansen, Theodore Dugger, G. H. Schultz, J. J. Swenson, H. Frahm, William Farlander, William Jarchow and Thomas B. Millies.

Mrs. William H. Hooper of Western avenue, gave a bridge luncheon last Saturday at her home. Flowers of autumn colors adorned her home and centered the luncheon table where witches and black cats marked the places for sixteen.

Santa Monica

Mrs. Frank E. Lee and her daughter, Miss Jane Lee, left on Monday on the first of their journey around the world, going first to Los Gatos for a visit with Mrs. Lee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Anderson, for a few days. They will then spend the remainder of the time before sailing on November 7, visiting Berkeley and Stanford. They will go by way of the Orient, stopping first in Honolulu and then go on to Japan and China. They expected to be at Shanghai about the first of December. From here, they will take the trip by easy stages seeing the points of interest along the way. Their itinerary is so planned that they will be on their homeward way in time to be at the commencement exercises at Principia in St. Louis, where Harry Lee is attending school. They expected to be home some time next June.

Members of the American Legion Beach Club were hosts on Tuesday evening at a delightful dinner-dance. Their new building on the Ocean Front is now being used for these affairs and the members and their friends passed a pleasant evening dancing after the delicious supper. About fifty couples enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

Complimenting their daughter, Enid, on the occasion of her thirteenth birthday anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Pasek were hosts recently at a delightful Halloween party at their attractive home on California avenue. The true spirit of Halloween reigned with the presence of witches and goblins and was augmented in the orange, black and green colors employed most effectively in the decorations. Games appropriate to the season were played and the jolly party brought to a close with the serving of delicious refreshments that were in keeping with Halloween. The guests were Dorothy McGuire, Harriet Duffield, Peggy Payne, Jean Taft, Alma Goldie, Betty Holmes, Ruth O'Bannon, Louise and Elizabeth Moses, Virginia Wyman, Orabelle Andres, Gertrude Nelson and Dorothy Monroe. Two special visitors who were interesting ghosts were John Duba and Eugene Pasek. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ruth Cole and Miss Doris McCready.

Venice

Complimenting their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Chown and son Lyle, from Tacoma, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Fletcher entertained recently with a delightful affair. A musical program was presented by the guests themselves and proved most delightful. The attractive home of the Fletchers was made fragrant with huge masses of banked autumn flowers, cosmos, dahlias and chrysanthemums, adding to the prettiness of the setting. Those who took part on the program included Miss Loretta Caston, who gave a piano solo, a quartet composed of George Chown, Bert Anderson, Ray Whitson and William Mohr, who pleased with a number of vocal selections, and Mrs. Fletcher and her son, William, who also gave a number of delightful vocal selection. The program was followed by a delicious supper served at midnight. Guests for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Batterson, Mr. and Mrs. William Mohr and Darlyne Mohr, Miss Loretta Caston, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Grazier, Mrs. Harry Johnson, Ray Whitson and the guests of honor.

Honoring Mrs. Joseph Saylin of Superior avenue, a delightful dinner was given recently in the newly opened dining-room of the Edgewater Club by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Boettcher on the occasion of Mrs. Saylin's birthday anniversary. Lavender was used effectively in decorating the beautifully appointed dinner table, lavender sweet peas and maidenhair fern forming the centerpiece, while the favors and place cards carried out the color scheme. Covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Saylin, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hall and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Boettcher.

The home of Mrs. W. T. Thornbury on Victoria avenue was the setting recently for the meeting of a group of congenial friends who enjoy bridge together and call themselves the Tuesday Afternoon Club. The home was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and cosmos. Following a delicious luncheon served by the hostess, the afternoon was pleasantly passed in playing bridge. Those who enjoyed Mrs. Thornbury's hospitality were Mrs. Earl Mittinger, Mrs. J. Edgar Brown, Mrs. G. A. Rapp, Mrs. Fred Finch, Mrs. Harry Clark and Mrs. Frank J. Wagier.

Monrovia

Thirty members of the Duarte Reading Circle enjoyed a delightful session Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Perry Byerly, the readers being Mmes. E. D. Buttolph and E. W. Bushnell. Three special guests were Miss Lucy Irwin of Clarksville, Tenn., a winter guest at the home of Mrs. Ludie Cros; Mrs. H. C. Watson and Miss Grace Watson.

An unusual moonlight picnic affair at the Orange Inn was enjoyed Tuesday evening, a general frolic with music being the program for the evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Archer and children, Mr. and Mrs. James Carlson, Mrs. Benjamin Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Risden, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jensen, Misses Mary Adair and Lottie Roe and Mr. Joe Hume.

The spirit of Halloween was paramount Wednesday evening at a charming dinner party at the home of Mrs. Albert Seymour, which was followed by an evening at bridge. Those bidden were Messrs. and Mmes. Park Densmore, C. T. Renaker, S. O. Beckman, J. Allen Munro, Frederick Gibson and Mr. Ralph Densmore.

The entire spirit world broke loose last night at the Woman's clubhouse, where one of those jolly and mysterious affairs was held in keeping with Halloween. The entire club membership was invited to enjoy an evening, during which the majority attractions were dancing and cards.

Among the Halloween social events of the younger set was a party Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. S. C. Nicholson, the hostesses being Misses Charlotte Nicholson and Esther Woodward. Their guests were Misses Eleanor Little, Margaret Putnam, Lois Brownfield, Ruth Suter, Helen Bryant, Zoula Mae Sinclair, Catherine Collins, Amanda Marshall, Aileen Nimmo, Ruby Thompson, Dorothy Hitchcock, Geraldine Haviland and Herman Hulten.

Mrs. Leslie Soderberg was hostess Monday evening to the members of her card club, the affair being featured with the Halloween motif. Her guests were Miss Ann Philips of Glendale; Mmes. C. B. Eaton, Caroline Vetter, Frances Fish and Misses Willa Cramlet, Grace Russell, Lou Schubel, Nell Colgan and Beulah Page.

The popular brides' month of summer will be overshadowed this year in Monrovia by the fall months, five weddings having occurred this week or announced for the near future. Saturday evening at the home of Dr. Margaret Nickerson, Miss Ruth Hawkins of Litchfield, Ill., became the bride of Floman Ball, formerly of the Illinois city, but now at Sawtelle. Friday evening, Miss Merle Church, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Church, Duarte, became the bride of George Kirchenschlager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirchenslager of Monrovia at the home of the bride's parents. The second marriage of the week was a quiet ceremony Wednesday in Los Angeles, which united Miss May Robinson of Los Angeles, formerly of Monrovia, and Mr. Earl Comas of Redlands, where they will make their home. Another wedding was announced Thursday for the near future, which will unite two popular Monrovia high-school graduates, Miss Dorothy Morrison, and Mr. Marcus Deemer. Two lovely church weddings are expected in November, uniting Miss Mary McCune and Mr. Jack Richards and Miss Vera Wolfe and Charles Ainley, four well-known members of Monrovia's younger set.

Sierra Madre

Complimenting the public-school teachers of Sierra Madre, the Woman's Club gave a mask dancing and card party the 21st inst. Mrs. Lela McComb Roulette, dance chairman, had as assisting hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Stowell, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Burbank and Mr. Herman Klemme. Mrs. Milford Thompson and Mrs. Laura Cline presided at the punch table. Time-honored Halloween motives, originally expressed, decorated the dance room, where Pryor's Orchestra kept the floor constantly filled, and in the Osgood room, where bridge and mah jongg held many devotees. Grotesque and artistic costuming completed the witchery.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Green celebrated their nineteenth wedding anniversary with a beautiful dancing party in their home. Two guests, Mrs. E. H. Carpenter and Miss Edna Green, had been present at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Green in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Anderson entertained sixteen congenial friends at a dinner-bridge on Wednesday evening with Halloween motif in menu and decoration. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Jappee, Mr. and Mrs. Yorza from Pasadena and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wittenman from Altadena. Other guests were Messrs. and Mmes. Roland

CLUBWOMEN AID CHARITY APPEAL

Social Leaders Prepare for Chest Campaign

Workers to Total 14,000 in Yearly Drive

Activities of First Year Prove Gratifying

BY MYRA NYE

"The poor ye have with ye always."

Yet more and more are the poor in this city hidden from those who dwell therein. And today the great plan, the great discoverer and the beneficent one are embodied in the Community Chest and its operations.

The usefulness, the efficiency and the wisdom of this pooled charity have now virtually past the experimental stage. Its effectiveness has been proved by use. Lame children have walked because of the Community Chest last year, women tired to the verge of melancholia and insanity have been made cheerfully poised and happy, the blind have seen the sunrise, the deaf have heard the music of symphonies, hungry minds of youths have received education, the sick have been made well.

Such beneficions can be continued in growth and progress only by the co-operation of every individual in the city of Los Angeles. In so far as one holds back either by giving or working or praying is so far is the work hindered or retarded.

CLUB WOMEN ASSIST

For the most part club women have led in this work last year. Now, again they are giving their support to this great civic and social issue as the Community Chest's second annual appeal for funds.

The period from the 9th to the 14th inst., the official dates for the appeal, will bring to Los Angeles the greatest campaign for funds in its history, it is predicted by civic officials, and club women are to take a leading role in the forthcoming activities.

Women are whole-heartedly setting aside all club and social activities and clearing the decks of everything else during the ten days of the appeal. They will by far outnumber the men as volunteer workers.

Because of their training as club planners and social workers, women are perhaps better fitted than men, to take the reins in a charity campaign such as the Chest's.

PROMINENT LEADERS

Prominent among the leaders are Mrs. P. O. McCulloch, president of the Los Angeles Federation of P.-T.A.; Dr. Maud Wilde, president of the Mothers' Educational Center; Mrs. E. K. Foster, member of the personnel committee of the Community Chest; Mrs. H. Furman of the Chest's publicity luncheon committee; Mrs. Bert Napier Carmen of the Chest's speaker's bureau; Mrs. W. J. S. Burkelman, member of the Chest's advance gift committee and a Chest board director; Mrs. J. F. Sartori, of the campaign executive committee and member of the Chest's board of directors; Mrs. George E. Cryer of the Woman's City Club and Mrs. W. D. Parker, who is to lead a team of women workers.

Fourteen thousand workers are to go forth during the ten days of appeal, combing the city for funds, with a campaign goal set at $3,793,798.

During its first year of organization, the Chest has successfully federated 125 welfare agencies under its budgets, orphanages, homes for the aged, hospitals, clinics, day nurseries, corrective and protective homes, better-citizenship organizations and every type of institution necessary to care for the needy and unfortunate men, women and children of the community.

ADDED RESPONSIBILITIES

The coming year brings with it added responsibilities, for more agencies are to come under the Chest budget in 1926. So successful has been the agencies operating under the wing of the Chest during

CLUB PLANS FOR MONTH ANNOUNCED

Author to Address First Friday Session on Citizens and World Affairs

Lyman Lloyd Bryson, A.M., internationally known as author, lecturer and traveler, and who has a wide range of affairs and personalities, will be the first speaker in November for the Friday Morning Club, with the subject, "The Average Citizen and Our Foreign Affairs."

Rich possibilities are suggested in each of the programs of the month, the second one dealing with men rather than issues. Lord Thompson, who was a member of the Labor Cabinet of Great Britain and is a peer of the realm, will speak November 13 on "Present-Day leaders of Men." He has fought in five wars and believes in peace. In his address he will discuss Lenin, Mussolini, Benes, Briand, Venezelos, MacDonald and others among the great whom he knows personally.

Marie Lydia Standish, diseuse, will present her original version of French and English legends and Louisiana folk songs on November 20. From the opening number, "C'est le Mae," the oldest begging chant of France, to the minuet at the end, each selection is a complete little play in itself in the medieval legends, satires and court songs of France, which she presents in costumes of the perior. She will be assisted by Frances Mae Martin at the piano.

The last Friday of the month a musical recital will be given by the Russian String Quartet, which includes in its personnel Caimon Lubovisky, first violin and founder; Misha Spiegel, second violin; Georgi Mehennick, viola, and Misha Gegna, 'cello. Senorita Raquel Nieto, soprano, who sings F in alt. as easily and beautifully as she sings other tones, with a middle register full and round, will assist in the program. Senorita Nieto is a young Mexican prima donna from the Mexico City Opera Company, who has recently come to Los Angeles.

Extremely interesting side lights on California history were brought out by Rolland A. Vandegrift, speaking before the club Friday. His subject was "California Under Seven Flags," and he demonstrated by careful and discriminating comparisons that he had delved deeply into the archives of early California history for the interesting material he presented. Mr. Vandegrift is professor of history in the University of Southern California, and his specialty is California history. This program was the club's contribution to the Diamond Jubilee year.

Dr. Edward G. Devine, founder of the New York School of Social Work, and associate editor of The Survey, was the luncheon speaker.

Subjects of more than ordinary importance will be presented by capable experts in the several lines of work. "Viewpoint of Allied Architects' Association on the Union Terminal and Administration Center" will be discussed by Joseph L. Brady, with questions from the floor and impromptu debate for the several sites for a union station.

"The Community Chest" will be discussed by Hon. Benjamin F. Bledsoe and George M. Babcock, the latter executive secretary for the Chest organization. Mrs. J. T. Anderson will preside.

Book Week to be Observed by Women's Clubs

Women's clubs will place special emphasis during children's book week, the 8th to 14th insts., upon those books that tend to create international sympathy and understanding in children, according to Mrs. L. A. Miller, chairman of the literature division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Books that induce broad tolerance and human kindness should supplant those that emphasize race prejudice. When children find their own joys and sorrows are the same as those of the children of alien races, they are no longer alien. Books are the medium through which the races become articulate and a knowledge of the literature of the world will break down the barriers of space and speech and show us that in the things of the spirit we are one," declares Mrs. Miller, who is promoting plans for children's book week.

The federation is urging women's clubs to co-operate with other organizations to make the observance of this week a community concern. Book exhibits, radio talks, school essays, and special club and library programs will be given, but the idea which the general federation is particularly emphasizing is the "earn-a-book" campaign for the best report for which a prize of $50 is to be given. Probably more than 1,000,000 women will take part in this contest. Details of the contest may be obtained from national headquarters of the federation, 1734 N street, Washington, D. C.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT WILL HEAR READING

Vicarious reading is what Mrs. A. C. Barke, chairman of literature of the Santa Monica Bay Women's Club, offers members of this department. Monday November 2, "The Constant Nymph" will be reviewed by Mrs. Ethelbert Maule and once a month there will be an all-day meeting of the section with a three-fold purpose—friendliness, reading and sewing for the annual club bazaar. At luncheon, Monday, Mr. George MacLellan, publicity manager for the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, in anticipation of the first concert November 10 of the Philharmonic course which the club is presenting in the bay district, will speak on "By-products of Music." The program for the afternoon will be given by Morris Stoloff, violinist and Frank Geiger, basso.

EBELL CLUB WILL HEAR PLAY READ

"Bunty Pulls the Strings" Will be Given Tomorrow; Other Features Scheduled

Elizabeth E. Kepple, director of dramatics of the Pasadena High School, is to give a reading of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" before the Ebell Club tomorrow. This play, by Graham Moffatt, has been a great success because it is populated by real characters, a little group of Lowland Scots, who are permitted to be themselves. Miss Kepple reads the play as only a Scotchwoman can.

Tuesday morning the better American speech department will consider speech from the physical standpoint. Dean Ray K. Immel of the University of Southern California, who has been making experiments in measuring and recording the action of speech organs, will speak on "Laboratory Study of Our Speech for Corrective Purposes." Miss Alice C. Chappin, supervisor of the department of corrective speech defects in the public schools, will tell what the schools are doing for pupils handicapped in this way.

At the art and travel department, Wednesday morning, Mrs. Mary Mendenhall Perkins will review the exhibits in the Los Angeles museums. Mrs. William Millspaugh will talk on the "Evolution of Architecture" and Miss Leta Horlocker, art chairman of Los Angeles district of women's clubs, will give a practical talk on "Interior Decoration and Art in Everyday Life."

Other departments meeting during the week will be the Browning and parliamentary law on Monday morning, Spanish on Thursday and French on Friday.

The members of Ebell and their friends are asked to attend a tea at Rest Cottage, 135 North Park View avenue, Tuesday, November 3, from 3 to 5 p.m. Once a year the officers of Ebell Rest Cottage ask the club members to come to this beautiful and homelike cottage to see what is being done to help worn out or convalescent women come back to strength and courage. One hundred and sixteen women received assistance there last year, and at present there are twelve guests in the cottage.

CLUB SEEKS EXCELLENCE MUSICALLY

Glendale Organization One of Community's Most Valuable Civic Assets

The Glendale Music Club is one of Glendale's most valuable civic assets, and, being purely an altruistic organization, believing firmly in the club slogan, "Better Music, Better Glendale," is ever striving to represent the best in music.

The club maintains five departments, namely: The music teachers' round table, Mr. Wesley Kuhnle, chairman; the artists' section, Miss Gertrude Cleophas, chairman; the juvenile auxiliary, Mrs. Charles Marlenee, senior director; the junior auxiliary, Miss Zula Zeigler, chairman, and last, but not least, an oratorio department, Miss Myrtle Baldwin, chairman; John Smallman being director. There are 150 Glendale, Eagle Rock and Pasadena singers in this department and the chorus is working on Bach's Christmas oratorio, to be presented in Christmas week.

In addition to the work carried on by the various departments, a concert series is sponsored by the club, featuring such artists as Vincent Ballester, Hulda Lashanska, lyric soprano; Margaret Matzenauer, contralto and Olga Samaroff, leading woman pianist.

These events draw music lovers from all the surrounding cities, and Glendale is fast becoming known as a music center.

The club has great hopes for a temple of music with possibly an outdoor amphitheater for pageants and summer productions, and is working definitely toward this end.

Mrs. Mattison Boyd Jones is president and founder of this organization. Other officers are Mrs. Edwin Cleophas, first vice-president; Miss Myrtle Baldwin, second vice-president; Mrs. Roberta Young, recording secretary; Mrs. Colin Cable, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer; Miss Neva Veysey, financial secretary; Mrs. Opal Greenwalt, parliamentarian; Mrs. Charles Marlenee, auditor; Mrs. L. N. Hagood, historian. The directors are Mrs. John Huntley, Mr. Wesley Kuhnle, Mr. A. Jud Shepard, Mr. H. M. Butts, Miss Zula Zeigler.

WILL STAGE NEW DRAMAS

Opera and Fine Arts Club to Present Musical and Dramatic Melange Tomorrow

One of the most interesting events of the season, planned by the Los Angeles Opera and Fine Arts Club, will be the drama program to be presented tomorrow evening at the clubhouse, Menlo avenue and San Marino street, under the direction of Florence Dobinson.

Two clever one-act plays will be given production, interspersed with a musical program featuring Hortense Barnhart-Jones, celebrated mezzo-soprano of New York City, and Bernard Klassen, tenor.

The first of the drama offerings will be a sketch by George Middleton, "Mothers," the cast including Gertrude Kellar, Mary Isabelle Alpaugh and Kenneth Childs.

The second play, "An Affair of Art," by Aurania Rouveyrol, a local playwright, will have its initial presentation at this time. It is a clever satirical comedy of modern times. In the cast will be Mary Isabelle Alpaugh and Charles Fortier.

Hortense Barnhart Jones, who has won the plaudits of eastern musical audiences and who is visiting with her parents here for a few weeks, will be heard in a group of three numbers; "Love's Trilogy," by Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson; "Dualisme," by Brunel, and the aria from "L'Amico Frita," by Mascagni. Mrs. Clara Cheshire will accompany her at the piano.

Mr. Klassen's group will include "Lament Pagliacci," by Leoncavello; "Sunset on the Desert," by Gertrude Ross; and "Queen of the Opeh," by Frank La Forge. He will be accompanied on the piano by Mildred Sanger House.

What Hostesses Have Been About Lately

Adams, Victor Hill, Hall Perry and H. C. Lisbon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Collins, whose wedding was a social event of the 17th inst., are receiving friends at their Alegria-street home. McLaughlin on the occasion of their hostess's fortieth wedding anniversary, and also the occasion of her birthday anniversary. The double event was most happily celebrated by a noonday luncheon and the afternoon was spent in needle work. Present were: Mrs. Mable Bartsch, Mrs. Thomas Bates, Mrs. Elizabeth Lillie, Mrs. Lulu Young, Mrs. Margaret Langston, Mrs. Anna Hughes, Miss Violet Veano, Mrs. Ella Tillotson, Mr. and Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. Emma Martyn, Mrs. Margaret Everson, Mrs. Helen Young, Mrs. Julia Badgely, Mrs. C. The W. L. Fisher home furnished the background for a delightful dinner party on Friday evening at which the Sigma Kappa Club entertained. Colors were black and gold and covers were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Lechner of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lechner of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. George Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burgoin, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Foulkner, Mr. and Mrs Roy Heath, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Sturges, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Heath and the host and hostesses. Cards followed dinner with high scores for Mrs. Roy Heath and E. O. Faulkner.

Miss Maude Herrick was hostess recently at a charming little party at her home on Ruby street complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schauss of Hermosa Beach, who are leaving soon on a six months' trip. The Halloween holiday was featured in the decorations and place cards and carried out in the menu. Two tables were arranged for bridge and the high scores were made by Mrs. George Collins and Mr. Schauss. Present were Mr. and Mrs. George Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Heywood, Mr. and Mrs. Schauss and C. Schafranek.

Carnation Chapter, O.E.S., met in regular meeting on Thursday evening and after the business session held a reception for the past matrons and past patrons of the chapter, Mrs. Ida Heath of Carnation Chapter, who was recently appointed by the grand chapter to the office of District Deputy Grand Matron, was guest of honor, and a delightful musical program was rendered. Artists appearing were Mrs. Ralph Grieve, Mrs. Ralph Schaeffer, Miss Lolita Gano, Miss Ruth Faust, Miss Cully, Mrs. Talkington and Mrs. C. J. Schaeffer. The hall was decorated in chrysanthemums and the Hallowe'en motif was carried out in the

Ocean Park

A charming hostess of the week was Miss Jeanette Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Freeman of 163-C Grand avenue, who entertained the members of her social club and their escorts at the Rendezvous ballroom. The club, which is known as the "Ocho Club," is composed of eight popular members of the younger set and is entertained by a great variety of programs, each member being hostess to the club in her turn and providing something new and different for the pleasure of all. Eight couples enjoyed Miss Freeman's hospitality and passed a delightful evening in dancing.

The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Buford Smith on Third street was the setting recently for a charming evening of cards among a group of congenial friends. The guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burke, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Cavener, Mr. and Mrs. L. Conway, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Kenyon. Awards for the highest scores went to Mrs. Cavener and Mr. Kenyon. A delicious supper served at midnight brought the pleasant evening to a close.

A number of persons prominent in social and lodge circles in the bay district have been absent in the north attending the grand chapter annual session of the Order of Eastern Star. Following the close of the session visits with friends and relatives were made and a number of social affairs attended. Those who went north for the session were Miss Lena Heese of Pier avenue, deputy grand matron of the State of California, Miss Henriette Schreiber, worthy matron of the Santa Monica chapter, Mrs. Nell Matter, worthy matron of the Triangle chapter of Venice, Mrs. Emma D. Wheeler, worthy matron of the Ocean Park chapter, Mrs. Gertrude Earl, Miss Henriette Hoffman, Mrs. Veva Conklin and James Best. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are visiting with relatives and friends in Palo Alto before returning home some time this week. Mr. and Mrs. Swail will make a trip through Northern California renewing old friendships and will not be back until some time later this month.

Long Beach

"Start right, live right and the end will be right," has been the life-long philosophy of Mr. and Mrs. John Squires of 1711 Appleton street, who celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of their marriage Wednesday, in a quiet way because their two children and grandchildren could not be with them. They were showered with cards, flowers and gifts, a tribute to their long and happy wedded life. Married October 31, 1860, in Wabash county, Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. Squires spent forty years in Cloud county, Kansas, six years of that time having been spent on a farm and the remainder in Millersvale, where their daughter, Mrs. Cora Neill, still resides. A son, E. M. Squires and family, make their home in Salina, Kan. At the present time, Mrs. Squires and two daughters are in California. Mr. and Mrs. Squires came to Long Beach a year and a half ago. They are members of the First Christian Church, where Mrs. Squires has been an active worker since she was 13 years of age.

Past-presidents of Ebell Club having formed themselves into what is known as the Down-and-Out Club, held their annual autumn luncheon Friday in Ebell clubhouse. Golds, russets, purples and reds in the autumn colors were used in the decorations. A brief business session was held following the luncheon in the lounge where election of officers resulted in Mrs. Clar E. White becoming president, to take the place of Mrs. F. L. Rogers, who presided at the meeting. Mrs. John M. Edgar was elected secretary. Reminiscences of their presidential days occupied much of the afternoon. A clever feature of the entertainment was a cross-word puzzle revolving around a large letter E, which stood for Ebell. When completed it revealed the names of the Down-and-Out members. It was the work of Mrs. W. S. Stevens. The next social event will be the reception to be given for two of their members, Mrs. June MacNee Hanson and Mrs. J. J. Penny, upon their return from world travels. Attending were Mmes. Charles F. Van De Water, W. S. Stevens, D. M. Cate, E. C. Jones, Clay H. White, E. J. Wightman, J. D. Humiston, R. J. Booth, F. L. Rogers, J. M. Edgar and B. F. Dayman.

What Hostesses Have Been About Lately

Royer, daughter of M. Royer, and Clifford S. Wall, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Wall, was solemnized at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the First Brethren Church, the pastor, Dr. Louis S. Bauman, performing the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by Miss Hazel Planck, Clarence Ebers supporting the groom. The ushers included Eddie Schuff, Paul Bauman, Cameron Sparks, Ralph McConahy, B. F. Dargatz and Lloyd Phelps. Piano and violin numbers were given by Mrs. Alan Pearce and Mrs. Clarence Shively, Miss Iva Bauman giving two vocal numbers. The bride wore a white crystal beaded georgette gown over white satin and a bandeau of pearls and orange blossoms in her hair. Mary Sorensen, in a frock of gold taffeta, carried the ring. Baskets of yellow dahlias decorated the church, the ceremony having occurred beneath a bower of white chrysanthemums. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wall have been graduated from Polytechnic High School, Mr. Wall attending Occidental College, where he became a member of the Chi Rho Fraternity. He will take his bride to 2132 Florida street, after a two weeks' wedding trip in the nothern part of the State. Assisting at the reception held in the church parlors, were Mmes. Dwight E. Waller, Cora Phelps, Lenore Howard, Harry W. Shaffer and John J. Judd. The guests numbered 500.

Whittier

Like a glimpse of Old Spain itself, or a bit of the early California days before the American occupation, was the three-act little play given at the South Whittier school when the Parent-Teacher Association entertained with a genuine Spanish dinner and program typically Spanish. The play was written by Miss Margaret Mayberry, scion of one of the old aristocratic Spanish families, who also took the title role as Ynes Yorba. Others in the cast were Nell Morris, Agnes Meyer, Leslie Thomas and Mrs. F. Sanchez. Miss Alberta Jacquish impersonated "Carmen" and gave a number of fascinating Spanish dances. Mrs. Zenobia Sanchez-Herman sang a number of popular Spanish songs. Other music was furnished by Miss Florence Laurens, Mrs. Marion Binkley, Dale Karns and Melvin Parks. The settings for the little play were most elaborate and many valuable heirlooms, such as priceless Spanish laces, shawls and rare silks were worn. One of the pieces of furniture was a chest which came from Spain more than 100 years ago and is an heirloom of the Yorba family. Miss Mayberry's fanciful little play was called "A Day and a Night in Alta California." She shows remarkable talent as a playwright for so youthful a writer. Mrs. A. J. Mayberry was chairman in charge of the interesting evening and Mrs. Blanche S. Moore was stage director.

Mrs. O. C. Albertson, former president of the Whittier Woman's Club, was in charge of the first meeting of the music section of the club held Monday morning. She gave a highly interesting and instructive talk on musical appreciation with folk songs as the basis of study. Miss Wood, the girls' director of physical education at the local high school, presented a group of girls in folk dancing. They danced the German hopping dance, the Swedish clap dance and the Irish lilt dance. The students were the Misses Alice Laux, Helen Maris, Stella Meyer, Kathleen Woodward, Dorothy Aldridge, Maxine Henderson, Crystal Kampert, Vera Whinery, Alice Young, Mildred Barr, Betty Benson, Dorothy Dorland and Marjorie Johnson.

Whittier College girls were hostesses to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Whittier College at the second meeting of the new school year, at the girls' cottage on the campus Tuesday afternoon. Miss Mendenhall, dean of girls, was in charge of the entertainment and presented a number of the girls as entertainers. Miss Mary Virginia Platt sang two solos, accompanied on the piano by Miss Nina Caldwell, and Miss Marion Lloyd played two violin numbers with piano accompaniment by Miss Frances Hunnicutt. Miss Besse Long gave a musical monologue.

East Whittier

Of surpassing loveliness and interest was the bridge-breakfast with which a trio of hostesses entertained at the East Whittier Woman's clubhouse Tuesday morning. The hostesses were the Mmes. Paul Todd, Louis Wicker and Leon Abbott. Baskets of fruit centered the breakfast tables and the rooms were adorned with autumn flowers. The prize-winners were Mrs. Bewley Allen, Mrs. Horace Wright and Mrs. T. E. A. Hall. Seventy-five invitations were issued.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mendenhall was again the scene of interesting, informal entertaining when Mrs. Mendenhall was hostess to a dinner party, to celebrate the birthday anniversary of Mr. Mendenhall. The guests were a coterie of congenial friends whose acquaintance has extended over a number of years. Turkey was the piece par excellence of the dinner and those at table were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beam, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lester, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Frantz, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McNees, Mr. and Mrs. Carson Albright and the celebrant and Mrs. Mendenhall.

Mr. and Mrs. Macy Smith have been entertaining a house party of friends during the last week. The guests were former associates of Mrs. Smith at the State university at Lincoln, Neb., and were Mrs. R. W. McKenzie of Crete, Neb., and Miss Alma Macy of Los Angeles. Mrs. McKenzie, for the last eight years State president of the Methodist Missionary Society of Nebraska, came to the Coast to attend the national convention recently held at Pasadena.

The Hacienda Country Club was thronged Tuesday, the occasion being the regular ladies' day at golf. An attractive luncheon was served at 1 o'clock, the hostesses for the occasion being Mrs. L. T. Davies and Mrs. J. B. McGee.

Covina

Artistic floor baskets of autumn foliage and yellow dahlias decorated the rostrum and yellow Halloween lanterns shaded the side lights at the Covina Women's clubhouse on Monday when Mr. and Mrs. Ubo Riebel, assisted by Carl Nordblom, cello, and Mrs. Henry Dameral at the piano, gave a delightful afternoon of music. Mr. Riebel, who is leader of the Covina band and Mrs. Riebel were both formerly of the faculty of the University of Iowa. The violin used by Mr. Riebel is a Tasini manufactured in 1755. Mr. Riebel, who was at one time a court singer in Austria, sang several numbers from French opera and French folk songs. Among the beautiful trio numbers given by Mr. Riebel, Mrs. Dameral and Mr. Nordblom was "Barcolle au bord d'un ruisseau" (Rene de Boisdesera.) Mr. Nordblom is a member of the Monrovia Symphony Orchestra. A message from Miss Helen Broadwell, former president who is touring Europe, was read. Mrs. Edgar Summerhays read very cleverly "The Soul of the Violin." At the close of the program Mrs. C. S. Beardsley, Mrs. S. A. Stowell, Mrs. H. A. Miller and Miss Flora Raymore served tea and cakes.

Mrs. E. E. Whitehead and Mrs. Stanley Whitehead were hostesses to sixteen friends at a Kensington Wednesday afternoon at the Mamie Cook Tea Room, which was daintily decorated for the occasion with baby pink and yellow chrysanthemums. On Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Whitehead were hosts to forty friends at a costume Halloween dance at the Stone Lantern. Mmes. Whitehead are planning other social gatherings for the autumn months.

Imperial Valley

One of the most enjoyable programs ever given by the Woman's Ten Thousand Club was held Thursday under the direction of Mrs. R. Y. Watson. Three interesting features were included, each bringing enthusiastic response from the large audience. A group of songs presented by Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Howard P. Meyer and Mrs. Hugh T. Osbourne formed the opening number. "A Banjo Song," (Victor Harris.) "A Storm," (Anna Priscilla Risher,) and "Aunt Marjorie," were among those sung by the trio. Mrs. J. Drummong Huston, club president, gave her report on the State convention, outlining the outstanding features and giving the members of her club an exceedingly complete resume of the work accomplished during the assembly. The concluding number of the program was a one-act play, "For Distinguished Service," the members of the cast including Mrs. Frank P. Anderson, Mrs. Hugh T. Osbourne and Mrs. Watson. Each part was cleverly portrayed and much laughter was caused by the splendid acting of the delightful farce.

Forty-five members of Holtville's younger social set assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Stewart on Sixth street Friday evening for a lawn party, given by their daughter, Miss Louise Stewart, and Miss Ernestine Edwards. Numerous Japanese lanterns cast a soft glow over the attractive setting, where games were played until midnight. Supper was served indoors, the rooms being decorated with pink and blue blossoms, the same color combination being carried out in the menu and favors.

Nearly 100 members attended the opening meeting of the Imperial Valley College Women's Club which was held Saturday afternoon in El Centro. The auditorium of the Woman's Ten Thousand clubhouse was beautifully decorated for the occasion with huge rustic baskets filled with roses and greenery. After a short business session, called by the president, Miss Irene Brooks, a charming musicale was given, the following members participating: Mrs. C. N. Vance, Miss Martha Heninger, Mrs. Carmen Fairbanks, Mrs. Walter Reynolds, Mrs. C. L. Jenkins and Mrs. Loren Jones. At the close of the program an informal reception was held during which refreshments were served.

The home of Mrs. L. A. Andrews formed the attractive setting for the first meeting of the Informal Study Club, an elaborate luncheon marking the opening event. Autumn flowers and foliage were combined in colorful effect in decorating the tables. The new president, Mrs. Andrews, gave a cordial welcome to the members and urged each one to enthusiastic co-operation. Mrs. Carl Vance sang two beautiful solos and Mrs. B. F. Anderson was heard in brilliant piano selections.

Glendora

A delightful and unusual gathering was held last Friday at Blue Bird Cottage, the home of Mrs. Walter Campbell, when she and her sister, Mrs. S. J. McCarty of Los Angeles entertained at 1 o'clock luncheon and an afternoon of cards the following friends who were formerly members with them of a card club at Oskaloosa, Iowa: Mrs. Elizabeth Birdsall, Mrs. Grace Lane of Davenport, Iowa, and Santa Monica; Mrs. Linda Dorland, Mrs. Trixy Ross, Miss Lelia Ninde of Pasadena, Mrs. Faye Hamilton of San Francisco, Mrs. Margie Rominger of Long Beach, Mrs. Mabel Ferrall, Mrs. Ella Spencer, Mrs. Stella Spencer, Mrs. Lafler, Mrs. Mary Colby, Mrs. Etta Levi, Mrs. Grace Carr, Mrs. Nellie Pike, Mrs. Sue Durfee, Mrs. Flo Gleason, Mrs. Emma Bowen, Mrs. Abbie Brown, Mrs. Nell Woodin, Mrs. Wightman, Miss Stella Wightman, Mrs. Bess Esgen, Mrs. Virginia Huber and Miss Beckie Heinsfurter of Los Angeles. Prizes of the afternoon were won by Mrs. Birdsall and Mrs. Levi.

The Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club was entertained this week by Mrs. L. D. Miller of North Vista Bonita avenue.

Mrs. H. C. Litton's home on East Meda avenue was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums in shades of yellow and with Halloween symbols Saturday night when she entertained fifty friends at a jolly evening of bridge in celebration of Mr. Litton's birthday. The prizes were won by Mrs. J. A. Adair, Mrs. H. H. Beckwith, Basil Gordon and H. H. Beckwith.

Mrs. Sheahan, the president of the Association of P.E.O., of which the Glendora chapter is a member, and the presidents of ten neighboring chapters were the especial guests of Mrs. W. B. Glidden and the Glendora chapter at a very delightful three-course luncheon at the Glidden home on Tuesday. The honorees were: Mrs. Sheahan, Mrs. Evelyn Herman, Mrs. Lora Pippitt, Mrs. Eunice Walker, Miss Kate Hamilton, Mrs. Dora Cooney of Pasadena, Mrs. Cora Marsh, Mrs. Minnie Binder of South Pasadena, Mrs. Helen Wheeler, Mrs. Amy Jones of Monrovia and Mrs. Mary Tyndal of Arcadia. During the business session each of the visiting presidents gave a brief message of greeting. The latter part of the afternoon was devoted to a most excellent program of songs and readings by Mrs. Rachael Graves Smith.

San Pedro

Diversely costumed, Halloween celebrants at a cleverly planned affair given by the San Pedro Rotary Anns Saturday night at the Robal Inn presented a colorful scene. Gay harlequins, a pirate or so, haughty colonial dames, gypsies and numerous nondescripts danced to the syncopation of a five-piece orchestra and an ornamentative motif in keeping with the occasion formed an attractive background for their many-hued garb. A light supper at midnight was the culminating feature of the affair. Committees in charge of the event, which was given by the Rotary Anns for their husbands and a few other guests, consisted of Mmes. Esther Rogers, Etta Lyona, Katherine Aitkenhead, Edna Baker, Mattie Goodrich, Laura Anderson and Jessie Beaton.

Forty-five in number, guests at an elaborate Halloween affair recently given by the Misses Laura Wells, Mary Keith and La Verne Strum were members of the high school set. Grotesque cat and bat silhouettes of black paper were the principal decorative feature and a four-piece orchestra provided music for dancing. A prize waltz and a Charleston contest were events which enlivened the affair, Melvin Gould and Robert Grow capturing the prize in the latter. Balloons, serpentine and confetti were used in novelty dances.

Souvenirs of the hostess's recent trip to Hawaii were favors and prizes at the exceptionally enjoyable affair with which Mrs. N. J. Rasmussen entertained recently at her home at 589 Seventh street, and Hawaiian leis, attached to the score cards for five hundred, were in accordance with the Halloween color combinations, which prevailed. Mrs. Rasmussen entertained for the members of the Eastern Star Five Hundred Club, of which she is a member, and their husbands, guests numbering thirty. Prizes at five hundred went to Mmes. C. Hansen, L. Mason and U. Anderson, Capt. J. C. Rudbach and Messrs. R. S. Goodrich and W. Johnson.

Santa Ana

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Maudene Blackburn, 430 West First street at 5:30 o'clock p.m. when Miss Esther Weston, daughter of T. S. Weston, became the bride of B. L. Reed of Los Angeles. Only the immediate members of the family were present. The bride was unattended. She was charming in an ensemble of rich golden brown silk. The Rev. W. L. Benton of the Episcopal church officiated, using the ring ceremony. A color scheme of pink and white prevailed throughout the home, lending a dainty setting for the exchange of nuptial vows. After a wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Reed left to make their home in Los Angeles. Miss Weston has lived in Santa Ana for the past ten years and graduated from Polytechnic High School with the class of 1923, later attending the Los Angeles Secretarial School.

In order to surprise their friends in Escondido and Long Beach, Miss Flora Jane Copelin of the latter city and Walter R. Mearns of Escondido motored to Santa Ana and were married at the pretty parsonage home of the Rev. Logan Harter, pastor of the United Brethren Church. The young people were accompanied by Mrs. Zelma A. Mearns, mother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. W. H. Mathews. Miss Nora Louise Mathews and Frank Mathews, aunt and cousins of the bride, with whom she had made her home in Long Beach. The double ring ceremony was used. The bride was attired in blue chiffon velvet, fashioned with graceful circular skirt. Mr. and Mrs. Mearns will make their home in Escondido.

Coming as a complete surprise to their friends in Santa Ana was the wedding the 24th inst., of Miss Violet Madeline O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. O'Connor, 1022 West Camille street, and James T. Coulson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Coulson, 341 West Nineteenth street. The ceremony occurred in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Coulson will reside in El Segundo.

EXAMINE the hall-mark on some of the rare old sterling in California homes and you will see that it is the work of the early Gorham Craftsmen.

What a story it could tell! Wrought in Providence, that historic old New England village. Carried next around Cape Horn aboard the Trade Wind, the Northern Light or another of those famous argosies. Weeks of storm and tropic calm. Then the life in that new world—California.

The Gorham sterling you buy today bears this same hall-mark of the Gorham Master Craftsmen. It is wrought with this same ideal of superb workmanship and quality. So beautiful and so enduring that today's gift of Gorham sterling is the treasured heirloom of coming generations.

EASTERN STAR

The annual session of the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star for the State of California, at Santa Cruz, was declared by those who attended to have been the most interesting and enthusiastic gathering of its kind ever conducted. Cora Spring Holland, newly elected Grand Matron, was given an ovation by the 100 Associate Matrons from Southern California. Mrs. Holland was presented with a set of sterling silver by Mrs. Lillian Cones, president of the Associate Matrons' Association, on behalf of that organization.

An interesting bit of legislation was that authorizing the Junior Past Grand Matron, Maude Bigelow Sibley of Los Angeles, to spend $2500 collected during her year as Grand Matron for the benefit of young people coming under the control of the Los Angeles police department, where these boys and girls have got committed unlawful acts, but due to misfortune, are without funds.

The convention also voted to maintain an Eastern Star home under its auspices.

Early in November all local chapters will conduct their annual election of officers, and five chapters, Lonie and Arlington, will conduct their installations on the 19th and 20th inst., respectively.

At their second meetings in November, most all of the chapters will give receptions to their new members and give their annual dinners.

Sunbeam chapter will give an elaborate dinner-dance at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Plantation Cafe. Benjamin J. Sacra will have charge of the affair.

Westlake chapter will picnic on the 18th inst. at the Covina Home, where the Masonic children are living. Everyone attending is requested to bring a basket luncheon, and meet at the Masonic Temple, Pico and Figueroa streets, at 10:30 a.m. This chapter will also give a turkey dinner on the 10th inst. at 6:30 p.m. with Mrs. Ruth Kinney, Hermosa 5195, in charge. The election of officers will be conducted.

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE

Greater Los Angeles Chapter, No. 887, Women of Mooseheart Legion, gave a Halloween dance last Wednesday at 327 South Hill street. The attendance prize was won by Hollwood Lodge, L.O.O.M. Mrs. Ruth Blackwell, senior regent and chapter supervisor, is planning another affair on the evening of the 25th inst., when a "hard-time" dance will be given, with prizes for the most uniquely attractive costumes.

Last Wednesday night Golden State Lodge observed Mooseheart day with a special meeting in the evening, with speaking and a program. Golden State lodge and Golden State chapter combined in the services. Next Wednesday there will be a short meeting of the lodge and then the club will take up matters of interest to all members.

Last Thursday night a large delegation of Golden State members visited Pasadena Lodge. A large class of candidates, headed by Chief of Police Kelley, was initiated.

Unity Legion will give a frolic on the 22nd inst. at Moose Hall, under the auspices of Golden State Lodge.

At the meeting of the 18th inst. A. Vander Naillen, western regent, will visit Golden State lodge, at which time there will be a joint meeting of Greater Los Angeles Lodge and Nr. 24, together with several other lodges. Mr. Naillen is one of the five regents of the Moose order, of which Hon. James J. Davis, United States Secretary of Labor, is chairman. Mr. Naillen as commissioner of conciliation in the Department of Labor, also is special representative of Secretary Davis.

The Beauty I owe to France

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have made 34 trips to France in my search for beauty. I spent my 1925 summer vacation in Paris, and I found some remarkable advances.

That's how I get the best beauty helps in existence. As a girl I went to France for the best she had to offer. And for 40 years she has given me all her new discoveries. These I have used to gain my fame as a beauty, and to keep my youth.

Now I offer you the best helps I have found. All toilet counters supply them as Edna Wallace Hopper's beauty aids. Made exactly as I use them. And most of them combine several helps in one.

I am trying to induce every girl and woman to learn how much they mean. That beauty and youth millions envy in me show what such helps can do. I want all to share them.

One is my Youth Cream. It combines many helps. These include products of both lemon and strawberry. All the best that science knows to foster, feed and preserve the skin.

Youth Cream comes in two types—cold and vanishing. I use one at bedtime, one in the morning. Never is my skin without it. To that I largely owe my wonderful complexion, my girlish contours, my rosy bloom.

Send this coupon for a sample tube. My latest Beauty Book will come with it. Learn what a cream can do. Even a few uses will bring a revelation.

For Trial Tube

Mail this today to Edna Wallace Hopper, 324 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago. Inclose 6c for postage and packing. I want to try Youth Cream.

Lemons Tighten Wrinkled Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.—[Advertisement.

Expansion Week

at The Broadway

November 2nd to 7th

A Six-Day Celebration Beginning Monday

Six days in which, by exceptional merchandising, we shall celebrate the growth and development of this business, in keeping with the growth and development of Los Angeles.
It is just a year ago this week that we opened a new thirteen-story building.
Ten stories above the street, three below.
Today this new Fourth Street Building is jammed to capacity with sales and service departments.
The business has advanced beyond the physical facilities for our expansion sales, just as Los Angeles has advanced beyond the needs of its program of expansion now under way.

That means that three acres of floor space have been absorbed within less than a year, and all departments calling for more room. The business is going forward in a strong, substantial, confidence-winning way.
Another milestone of expansion has been reached, and so this week we will celebrate in a way to bring more than a hundred thousand people to The Broadway.
We will celebrate with merchandise of an exceptional nature, desirable merchandise for fall, winter and the holidays and at prices made so attractive that you cannot very well afford to remain away.

No souvenirs—No music—Just values

This should prove one of the most remarkable selling weeks of the year. Hundreds of additional sales persons, wrappers, cashiers have been provided.
We want you to come to look and compare. Most of all, we want you to share in The Broadway's friend-winning expansion offerings this week beginning Monday.

AMERICAN LIVES IN MINIATURE

Gamaliel Bradford Produces More Psychographs of Historical Characters and Don Seitz Dramatizes the Lives of Certain People of Originality

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

WIVES. By Gamaliel Bradford. Harper & Bros., New York.

Gamaliel Bradford has made a special niche for himself as a psychological biographer of the new school, though not of the ultra-new. In "Damaged Souls" and "Bare Souls" he revealed his ability as an able interpreter of the inner life of the historical characters he chose to study. He digs into the deeper recesses of his people, trying to ascertain their aims and efforts, their faith and hope and ambition, their ways of meeting life, the things they tried to get from it, their fortitudes and fears.

He is always honest with his readers and strives to be just to the characters analyzed, but being kindly and sympathetic, rather than censorious and sarcastic, he lets most of his people off with a comparatively whole skin.

In "Wives" his frugal New England economy is well revealed. For in at least three of these studies he has used material previously unearthed. In a way "Wives" may be said to be a companion volume to "Damaged Souls," for here we have the wives of Benedict Arnold and Benjamin Butler and the daughter of Aaron Burr. Having disposed of the men, Mr. Bradford has used the scraps on the women.

Mrs. Lincoln spans Mr. Bradford's show. She appears as a pathetically disappointed woman, one of that too-prevalent type that is never happy except when miserable. It his appraisal he takes a middle course. He is not censorious as was Herndon, who ascribed Lincoln's success to his unhappy home life, which caused him to seek outside activity as a means of escape, nor is he eulogistic, as was Rankin, who looked upon her as a devoted wife and helpmate, whose strength and guidance had much to do with Lincoln's success.

Mr. Bradford sees her as an ambitious, small-town belle, seeking more from life than she could assimilate, at war with herself and with the world, but shrewd, practical and gifted in her own way. He refrains from irony as from censure, but the picture he gives us of this seeking dame is not a pleasant one.

Next on this list is Mrs. Benedict Arnold, a Tory beauty years younger than her husband, who here emerges as a woman of mystery. Since she seems never to have told how she felt about Arnold's supreme mistake, Mr. Bradford is in doubt as to her inner nature. Was she shallow and frivolous, or did she from strength of character, fortified with pride, conceal her horror of her husband's act? Her biographer propounds the question, but does not answer it. Thus he succeeds in his aim of arousing curiosity and speculation in the minds of his readers.

It is Theodosia Burr that Mr. Bradford finds irresistible. She is revealed as a vital, loving, high-spirited woman, able to meet the most difficult situation with poise and spirit. Through her that tender and philosophic side of Aaron Burr, so little suspected, becomes apparent.

The other women who make up the seven are Dolly Madison, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. Benjamin Butler and Mrs. Blaine. That each was a partner in her husband's business of being a successful outstanding American, and that each suffered from the public mistakes and private follies of her husband, is as true as it is sad.

Perhaps the thought uppermost when one closes this very readable book is that even "wives" are not as subordinate and second fiddle as they sometimes seem to be.

UNCOMMON AMERICANS. By Don C. Seitz. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

The subtitle of this book of biographical sketches well indicates the point of view of the author, as well as the principle of selection followed by him in choosing the book's personnel, to use a phrase loosely. It is, we are told, "pencil portraits of twenty-two who broke the rules."

In the foreword, brief and to the point, Mr. Seitz says:

"Henry Adams once wrote a relative that he had learned the easiest way to succeed. It was to conform. This volume is devoted to sketches of individuals who did not, and make their marks. Some of the marks were black, most white, and a few red. But they were broad and plain. In days of drabness it is well to know something of unconventional success."

Beginning with Joseph Smith, who sprang from the rocky soil of Vermont, Mr. Seitz passes on to Brigham Young, thus covering sketchily the history of the establishment and growth of Mormonism. Mr. Seitz writes in the vivid, rapid prose of the successful newspaper man, keenly alive to the drama of events. His interest is focused on what his twenty-two men and women who achieved fame or notoriety did, rather than why they did it or what they thought about themselves and their doings. His sketches are not psychographs, as are Mr. Bradford's, but are sharply drawn dramatic narratives, told by a man who has been long accustomed to look for and find the interesting, the essential, the bizarre, in the lives of his fellow-men.

In his galaxy of twenty-two notables he has included a number whose fame has not withstood the test of time. Among these are that Peter Cartwright, evangel of the backwoods, who opposed Lincoln as a candidate for Congress, born in Virginia in 1785, his family moved to Kentucky six years later. Converted at 16, he started out to preach the fiery gospel of the day to the rough, daredevil Kentuckians of the backwoods. "To perform his duties he had to find his way through dark forests by the best of trails, sleep beside his horse in the open, ford rivers and brave the scorn of the various ruffians whom he sought to convert."

Convert them he did, even if he had to fight them in order to be heard. In twenty years he preached 8,000 sermons and fought an unrecorded number of stalwart followers of the devil. "While the population was scattered," we are told, "he rode the circuit and later, as presiding elder, covered all Illinois from Springfield to Cairo—a tough country. The people were barbaric, rough and strong. He gloried in camp meeting, an indigenous American institution, peculiar to the early West. Indiana, Ohio and Illinois affected this form of exciting spirituality. Whole families traveled, sometimes as much as a hundred miles, to these centers of uplift, thousands of men, women and 'young folks' attending."

Equally refreshing as a pioneer American are Martin Scott, famous game hunter and sharpshooter; Lord Timothy Dexter, merchant adventurer, who chose to lord it over his home town; John S. Mosby, great guerilla; Edmund Fanning, pathfinder to the Pacific, and David Crockett, whose exploits have become part of the inheritance of every American schoolboy.

JOHAN SEBASTIAN BACH

Esther Meynell's "The Little Chronicle of Magdalena Bach," which Doubleday, Page & Co., publish is a tender and delightfully naive history of the great Johan Sebastian, told in the first person by his second wife, Magdalena, the Magdalena for whom he wrote the little organ book of choral preludes and the "Clavier Buchlein." From the day when the little maid in her 'teens slipped into St. Katarina's Church at Hamburg and thought there was a great angel in the organ loft, until the time when his widow sat down in her seclusion and poverty to chronicle his life, Magdalena gives a vivid picture of the man and the genius, who emerges robust and magnificent from her quaint, tender phrases. Mrs. Meynell has so completely captured the domestic point of view of the well brought up eighteenth century German girl that her story is a delightfully unintentional study in feminine psychology as well as a history of the famous composer.

LITERARY GOSSIP

"The First World Flight," as told by Capt. Lowell H. Smith and Lieuts. Wade, Harding, Nelson, Arnold and Ogden to Lowell Thomas, is in part an answer to the critics of the aviation policy of the United States. After the many recent disasters it is a relief to read the story of "The First World Flight" (Houghton Mifflin,) a fascinating record of one of the most important and successful flights ever undertaken.

Basil King's latest novel, "The High Forfeit," just published by Harpers, is the story of a banker's daughter who marries one of her father's clerks and leaves the luxury of a Long Island estate for a Brooklyn apartment, where she faces life on a $40-a-week plane.

"Soundings," by A. Hamilton Gibbs, has now gone into its eighty-first thousand. Maj. Gibbs's love story of a young, motherless English girl, with a father whose sympathy is that of a chosen comrade, has been one of the six best sellers ever since it was published in March. The October list of national best sellers, compiled from reports of book sellers by "Books of the Month," gives second place to "Soundings." Gene Stratton Porter's "The Keeper of the Bees" is in first place.

"Aaron Burr," by Samuel H. Wandell and Meade Minnigerode, was published by G. P. Putnam's Sons on October 14. This biography, including as it does much hitherto unpublished material, will undoubtedly cause considerable discussion, for it does not place the Hamiltonians in a very favorable light. The introduction by Walter F. McCaleb, author of "The Aaron Burr Conspiracy," is also a valuable addition to this work.

In "When the Movies Were Young" (Dutton) Mrs. Griffith relates many an amusing tale of the early beginnings of Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford, the Gish sisters, etc., screen stars who are known around the world today. It is a book that every movie-going American will thoroughly enjoy. Movie fans will devour it.

Alkibiades, the versatile young Greek—"The ward of Pericles, the favorite pupil of Socrates, the scandal of the streets and supper parties of Athens, the victor of Olympia, the guiding statesman at the crisis of his country's fate in 415 B. C., the traitor who wrecked her policy two years later, the savior who won her a short breathing space of restoration in 411 B. C.," is the protagonist of C. E. Robinson's "The Days of Alkibiades," just reissued by Longmans, Green & Co.

Coincident with John Drinkwater's lecture tour of America will be the publication of his latest play, "Robert Burns," to be published by Houghton Mifflin Company during November. Mr. Frederick Austin, who arranged the music for "The Beggar's Opera," which enjoyed such a tremendous success in London, will write the music for "Robert Burns," which is to be based on old Scottish tunes.

The 1925 book season marks the thirty-fifth anniversary of Stanley Weyman's appearance as a novelist. "Queen's Folly," the new Weyman novel, is a story of the stage-coach days of England when Nelson was a hero. It is a legitimate successor to the long line of romances initiated by "The House of the Wolf" in 1890 and continued by "A Gentleman From France," "The Red Cockade" and "Count Hannibal."

Minton, Balch & Co. announce for November publication two books by Wilfranc Hubbard, "Orvieto Dust" and "Shadows of the Palatine." Mr. Cunninghame-Graham says of "Orvieto Dust": This book contains three tales of a kind which Walter Pater might have written, but with, in addition to Pater's beauty of style and delicate learning, a humorous sympathy and a sense of the absurdity of old and modern days." Both books were recently published in England by Constable & Co.

"Ruben and Ivy Sen" (Stokes,) the new novel by Louise Jordan Miln, is just published. It completes Mrs. Miln's story of the unhappiness of marriage between East and West. Ruben and Ivy are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Sen of the book of that name. Again Mrs. Miln uses the Chinese backgrounds which have made her famous.

Cartridges concealed in the tubes of a motorcycle owned by a farmer of Londonderry, Ireland, exploded while the machine was being repaired, and two mechanics in the repair shop were seriously injured by bullets.

BEES, FAIRIES AND MAGIC

BY M. F. CUMMINGS

ONE SPIRIT OF THE HIVE. Contemplation of a Beekeeper. By Dallas Lore Sharp. Harper & Brothers, New York.

If every man and woman who reads this alluring and altogether delightful book does not instantly set about acquiring a nook of land, a hive of the latest model and a swarm of bees, it will be owing to present possession of the apparent experiences and observations. The latter class, having already considered the ways of this social insect, will favor the Sharp conclusion that "there's a lot more to beekeeping than hives and honey." So truly Orphic is this saying that it is sure of wide acceptance by initiates, since it may mean one thing to the shade of Virgil, for instance, and something decidedly different to Dallas Lore Sharp's hired man in Hingham.

More marvelous by far than "the spirit of the hive" which is a strictly limited Communism—is the curiously clinging idea that there is anything poetical in the sternly regulated manufacture of honey by highly intelligent insects, or in man's habit of stealing that luscious article of food from its makers. The tutelary deity that presides over apiaries is indeed brother to the informing spirit of modern industrialism and, therefore, ardently desires the perpetuation of the race which it directs, in order that this group shall continue to produce the greatest quantity of goods in the most economical manner. The traditional farmer, whose life in life's stress is more land to raise more corn to feed more hogs to buy more land," ad infinitum, was doubtless a reincarnated bee and sacrified the members of his family hive to his ideal. Nor are bees worthy exemplars of social service, since they are never on friendly terms with the inmates of neighboring hives and savagely repel would-be immigrants. Thus the sociological beeman early learns that a hive is a family and confines sacrifice for social ends to its own kith and kin.

To maintain that the honey bee is a winged Bolshevist, bitterly industrious, to be sure, but cruel as death and loveless as hell, can in no way detract from the reader's appreciation of Dallas Lore Sharp's "Contemplations," which are truly of beauty all compact. But every beeman will agree that the rose-tinted veil of glamorous gossamer which the author draws before the cruel realties of bee management and the sordid tasks of the practical apiarist is spun from the writer's inner consciousness. Worn and weary members of the craft may recall, as illustrating the situation, the pungent remark of Dean Swift's "Stella," when she was told that the Dean had written a lovely threnody on the death of her rival, "Vanessa": "'Mr. Swift could write lovely poetry about a broken broomstick."

To collate, combine and repeat the Erse legends of the race of fairies who dwell in "The Land of Youth" is the work beloved of James Stephens, and its results are eagerly perused by those who love a good tale well told. For in spite of the frown of clerics and the ridicule of scientists, the Celtic consciousness remains loyal to the conception of "the good folk," and of "the land where is no storms nor cold," in which these eternally abide.

The moving cause of this fealty to a dim but never erased ideal is that the soul of the Gael, live he where he may, secretly beats against the bars of earth conditions with their sordidness and selfishness, their lust and greed, and yet is not sufficiently spiritualized to crave the eternal calm of high heaven. Therefore, it builds for itself an intermediate place wherein the human spirit as it is at its best may sojourn and enjoy "sunlight and the song of birds, good food and health, a contented mind and a clear understanding."

In the present book Stephens tells in his inimitable style, instinct with beauty, lit by Erse wit, but touched also with the sadness that inevitably underlies the Celtic drollery, of bold and handsome knights, of fair and brave women, of mighty magicians and their spells, all part of the eternal game in "The Wonderful Land, where folk are strong and wise and fair. They are as the grown-ups seemed to us when we were young children. Magnificent, powerful and past understanding."

The so-called "magic," many of whose processes are illustrated and explained in this little volume, in no way treats of results gained by means of a remarkable knowledge of human psychology or of natural laws, but is an exposition of various methods of deceiving the eyes of possible audiences by means of sleight of hand and other trickery. The most marvelous thing revealed is the fact that numbers of educated men exist who can find employment and entertainment in working out such schoolboy devices and afterward writing about them and in the existence of a society devoted to conference between amateur or professional fakers for the exchange of such antic tricks and the suitable patter to accompany them. The majority of readers over seventeen will doubtless wish to paraphrase a title recently used by a popular author and so exclaim, as they shelve this effusion, "Oh, Professors, Now Could You?"

However, let no man think that this thin green line of bushwah has been written and published in vain; it will be greeted with enthusiasm by aspiring 10-year-olds as well as by that perennial class of half-grown laddybucks who are on the lookout for a method of getting a living without the risk of unduly developing either their brains or their muscles.

FOOLISH FICTION

The world's reservoir of chuckles has been increased by the publication by the Holts of Christopher Ward's new book of parodies, "Foolish Fiction" is not only fun, it is penetrating criticism. Like its predecessors, "Twisted Tales," "Triumph of the Nut" and "Gentlemen Into Geese," it parodies current fiction. In the court of the story tellers this jester prods about with mischievous glee, and if there is a needle at the tip of his wand, it's made of true steel. There are sixteen parodies in this volume. One of them, "Robinson Crusoe," tossed in for salt, is illustrated with nine hilariously funny woodcuts.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

A new series was inaugurated this month by Houghton Mifflin Company with the publication in the Riverside Library for Boys and Girls of the following attractively illustrated volumes at $1 each: "Polly Oliver's Problem" by Kate Douglas Wiggin, "Judy of York Hill" by Ethel Hume Bennett, "Jibby Jones" by Ellis Parker Butler, "Harding of St. Timothy's" by Arthur Stanwood Pier, "Wells Brothers" by Andy Adams, "On the Warpath" by James Willard Schults, "A Lincoln Conscript" by Homer Greene, and "When Sarah Went to School" by Elsie Singmaster.

The Longmans will shortly publish "A Speaker's Commentaries" by the Rt. Hon. James William Lowther, who was Speaker of the English House of Commons from 1905 to 1921.

O'NEILL ON READING PLAYS

Interviews with Eugene O'Neill are not of so frequent occurrence, and on his recent return from Bermuda the reporters seized upon the opportunity for questioning him on any and every subject. One of the most interesting topics upon which he expressed himself was upon the merits of acted and read plays. What he said of play reading will please those who strongly believe in the interest of the printed play. "I am interested," said Mr. O'Neill, "in any sort of play, but I seldom go to the theater. I know that all the worthwhile plays will be published so I wait and read them. I prefer judging them that way, because I can visualize an ideal production. Actors generally get between me and the performance. The mechanics of acting stop me from seeing the play. Therefore, I never go to one unless I hear it is very well acted; but I read them all." Those who know what excellent reading a play can make will heartily agree with Mr. O'Neill. Others, who as yet may not know the fascination of "visualizing an ideal production" will do well to hearken to his opinion. Most good plays are published these days, and if you want to know what ones are available and of interest get the new book by Frank Shay, "A Guide to Longer Plays," that lists some fifteen hundred procurable in book form.

RECENT BOOKS

SOCIAL PATHOLOGY. By Stuart A. Queen and Delbert M. Mann. The Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

Here is a scholarly book that merits such description. It is a survey of concrete human problems in the light of modern sociology.

In the preface explains clearly the aim of the authors, which has been to take certain difficult human situations as they appear on the surface, analyse them into their constituent elements and discuss their significance, primarily from the standpoint of sociology. Under such convenient headings as unemployment, divorce, illegitimacy, child labor, etc., the problems that confront society are studied with special stress laid upon the physical, mental, economic and social factors involved.

Those who "in the midst of this rather complex civilization of ours have lost their way" are made the subject of careful study with the purpose of finding out the cause of the maladjustment to society. Causes rather than remedies are stressed throughout.

The "case" method is followed for the most part, which gives to the book a very lively human interest. For instance, under the problem of widowhood, Mrs. Jenkins and her brood are singled out, all the circumstances ascertained, and certain generalisations made. Under the problem of illegitimacy and prostitution two shining examples are selected and studied. We see two girls starting wrong under very similar circumstances, and see how one was brought back into adjustment with society and the other allowed to drift into the underworld. The why and the how are plainly indicated.

The book, which is primarily intended for the college student, is in three parts. Part I deals with family organization; Part II with economic disorganization, and Part III with health problems as the cause of demoralization and disorganization.

This book is a new volume of the Crowell Social Science Series. The authors are professors of sociology in the University of Kansas.

JOHN BURROUGHS AND LUDELLA PECK. Published by Harold Vinal, New York.

This is a collection of letters of John Burroughs to Ludella Peck, supplemented by those of Miss Peck to the sage of Riverby, of slight importance but of wistful interest to those who see in life a drama of frustration.

John Burroughs attained to those fullness of years when the mind instinctively turns backward to the fairer days of youth, when one longs for "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

It was perhaps Burroughs's misfortune to live in an age of changing faith, when the findings of science, perhaps imperfectly understood, were deemed impossible of reconciliation with the teachings of Holy Writ. He was a child of the age, and that three score and onward his view was backward, not forward to eternity. In this book we find him engaged somewhat with ghosts of the past: hugging to his heart a visit from his oldest brother and musing over their talk of the old farm days and of their father and mother. His letters show a vague longing for something not understood, for a little immortality of dreams. Quite human it all, but it is the musings of a child of the age, or one confronted by the inscrutable.

Miss Peck (properly, perhaps, Prof. Peck, for she held a chair at Smith College,) on the other hand, did not attain ripeness of years. As Burroughs says in a letter to President Burton of Smith College, "she was a wistful, penetrating, affectionate soul, with a keen intellect," who died young, or comparatively so. John Burroughs to her was a friend, a sort of a lone friend in a wide, wide world. He to her was a stay in time of trouble, and her wistful letters are the restrained outpourings of a sensitive soul, also confronted by the inscrutable.

KINDLY GOBLINS

The popular impression that goblins are ill-tempered people, always anxious to create mischief, is effectively dispelled by Alberta Bancroft in her new book "The Goblins of Haubeck." Mrs. Bancroft pictures the little creatures more accurately as pleasant folk, fond of a bit of pleasure, but in no wise malicious. Mothers whose children have been misled in this important matter, would do well to turn their attention to Mrs. Bancroft's entertaining pages.

That Arthur E. Ellis, 18 years of age and six feet, two inches tall, came to his death, while at work, when he knocked his forehead in stooping to pass under an iron bar, was the verdict of the Coroner's jury at North Woolwick, England.

A CHRONICLE OF THE PRAIRIE

In His Autobiography Entitled "One Man's Life" Herbert Quick Has Given Us a Vivid Account of the People and Events That Make Iowa's History

BY THOMAS F. FORD

ONE MAN'S LIFE. An Autobiography. By Herbert Quick. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

In the sudden taking off of Herbert Quick, the great prairie region, usually designated the Middle West, but recently known among the intelligentsia as "the corn and hog belt," lost one of its most intelligent and sympathetic interpreters. Mr. Quick celebrated the land of his birth in both song and story, for he was a bit of a poet, in addition to being a facile historian, as is amply testified to in his great trilogy, "Vandemark's Folly," "The Hawkeye" and "The Invisible Woman," which, though cast in the form of fiction, faithfully reproduced the people, the period and the region in which the three novels were set.

In the present volume, completed just before his death, Mr. Quick gives us a plain, unvarnished account of his own active life, together with pen portraits of his neighbors and friends, many of whom were factors, like himself, in the creating of a civilization in which the common folks of the towns, villages and farms were the sole actors.

Here is fully revealed the source of material which, in his skillful hands, contained the warp and woof of his trilogy. For these three books are instinct with both romance and history, with but slightly altered incidents and lightly disguised persons given life and color at the hands of an artist, whose imagination, soar it ever so high and far, always kept a canny weather eye on fact and reality.

"One Man's Life," is, however, just as much a contribution to American literature as are the three books mentioned. And these are by no means the only works of this prolific author. He has been a constant contributor to magazines and newspapers. He was a contributor to the Saturday Evening Post for years and much of his work in economics and social literature get between covers. His "The Fairview Idea," "From War to Peace" and "The Real Trouble With the Farmers" have had wide currency. The latter work seems to me to have better presented the problem that the farmer faces than any work on the subject.

Herbert Quick was endowed with the faculty of seeing life as a whole. He possessed to a remarkable degree the gift of droll humor that wells up from the heart of a man who has formulated a genuine philosophy. Coming to life, as it were, on the open prairie he became a part of that life. It, in turn, penetrated into the inner depths of his being and having been blessed with a good memory and a lively imagination he was able to get that life on paper in such a form as to make it easy reading.

History, as Mr. Quick tells it, seems simple enough, but if we analyze it we find that it develops heroic proportions. In his case it is the story of hardships overcome, inherent physical weakness made to serve a good purpose instead of being a continual handicap. It is the story of a man who was able to accumulate wisdom and give the world the benefit of his store. His field of endeavor was varied. He had been a farmer, schoolteacher, lawyer, editor, politician, economist and novelist. He was by no means a conservative; his views were sufficiently advanced to cause him to be classed with the radicals by those who fail to discriminate between the radical and liberal.

That death stayed his hand before he was able to set down the record of his later years—the present book covering only his career to about middle life—is to be regretted. That we would have had an interesting set of portraits of the great and near-great of last twenty years, there is no doubt. For Mr. Quick seems to have known everybody worth while and he had the confidence of all.

WHY I AM A SPIRITUAL VAGABOND. By Thomas L. Masson. The Century Company, New York.

With this volume the erstwhile editor of "Life" makes his bow as an exhorter on the gospel circuit for the big church. He has found that "straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth to life; and few there be that find it."

But Mr. Masson recommends more psalm singing. He just wants to help people find themselves and so attain that peace which passeth understanding. He wants to help them put a little meaning into their lives, and believes that he has found the way. It is a system of efficiency engineering without creed and with all patent nostrums barred.

But, we hear you say, "Mr. Masson is a humorist." Well, a humorist is human, and being humorists and human, haven't they just as much right as anyone else to have a yearning toward the spiritual? At any rate, Mr. Masson has asserted that right.

For further details see the book, which is a preachment for an age of changing faiths.

MEMORIAL EDITION OF THE WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS. Edited by John Foster. The J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

Carlyle once said that Forster's "Life of Dickens" was without parallel except in Boswell's, and unique. It now appears in a handsome memorial edition, remarkable especially for the unusually fine and abundant illustrations. These include portraits of the novelist, of his family and family groups, of his contemporaries and friends, numerous pictures of prominent persons of the Victorian era in England and America.

There are reproductions in miniature of thirty-six of his manuscripts, fifteen cover designs of the serial issues of his works, reproduction of playbills connected with his books and his amateur performances; sketches from various editions by famous illustrators of Dickens; like Cruikshank and Leonard; contemporary views of various cities, towns and villages associated with his holidays, his reading tours, his home life at Devonshire Terrace, Tavistock House and Gadshill. These are all brilliantly executed and many of them are produced here for the first time.

Every admirer of Dickens will want to add them to his collection.

Twenty competitors took part in a Town Crier's Championship in Pewsey, England, recently. After a heated argument as to whether a comma should be indicated in an announcement bellowed, the prize went to Thomas of Abertridwr.

RUDOLPH AND POLA, MICHAEL AND BEBE TO WED, RUMOR SAYS

Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino. Yes, really. Last time it was Pola and Rod La Rocque, following the denied story of the latter's engagement to William Haines. To be sure, Pola and Rudolph are not engaged; that is, unconditionally. Perhaps not at all. But if glances tell any story in which Cupid has a hand, if preferences, if public appearances together mean anything, then truly Cupid is working on this line if it takes all winter.

Last evening these two high-powered lights of Cinemaland were together at the Sixty Club party at the Biltmore. Both were guests of Frank Elliott, president of the club, who was entertaining for Mrs. Elliott (Dorothy Cummings) pour prendre congé; for Mrs. Elliott is leaving for a stay of some duration in New York City. Mme. Elinor Glyn was another member of the party.

Whispers faint and far away from Cupid come; and the blue bird bears the names scarcely deciphered—Michael Arlen, Bebe Daniels. But, if this is faint, the fact is clear that Michael Arlen adores the adorable Bebe very often and the ten days of his stay here numbers few among them when he has not been with the dark-eyed beauty of Cinemaland.

And, oh yes, I could tell others; for the little love god seems to be mistaking the season for spring; but I will leave it there. Rudolph Valentino and Pola Negri: Michael Arlen and Bebe Daniels. It is enough for now.

POLA NEGRI entertained in honor of Michael Arlen with a dinner-dance at the Biltmore. As predicted in these columns this was the beginning of emerald not to say very verdant social affairs in Cinemaland, where charming people have gathered the past week and worn "green hats."

Miss Negri's affair was distinguished and comme il faut as those of this delightful hostess always are.

The Arlenesque motif was emphasized more than in the green hats in which green ice cream was served. In a gown of pale green duchess satin trimmed with rhinestones and black velvet wearing emeralds and diamonds as adorning jewels, the hostess received thirty guests in an embowered suite, the prevailing flowers being bronze and yellow chrysanthemums arranged with a profusion of maidenhair fern to give again the green motif.

Trailing the cloth of the long table were thirty yards of ribbon made from saucy-faced pansies, pale yellow roses and maidenhair. Green candles marked the table at intervals in jade and alabaster candlesticks.

Dining and dancing were the order of the evening and among those who participated in the festivity in addition to the hostess and honor guest were: Rudolph Valentino, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elliott (Dorothy Cummings,) Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eyton (Kathlyn Williams,) Mr. and Mrs. Manual Reachi (Agnes Ayers,) Maj. Fullerton Weaver, Greta Nissen, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm St. Clair, Jeanne McPherson, Sid Grauman and his mother, M. Cimini and Mme. Cimini and Ralph Block.

Another Arlen Affair

Following the day of Miss Negri's party, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Borzage were host and hostess at the usual Sunday morning bridle-path party. But this time the affair was in honor of the lion of Cinemaland, whose roar is assiduously sought. At least, until another lion comes this way.

After a long canter through Griffith Park bridle paths an outdoor buffet breakfast was served in the park.

Glimpsed along the autumn paths in addition to Mr. Arlen and the hosts were: Bebe Daniels, Mrs. Phyllis Daniels, Rudolph Valentino, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd, Ben White, Marie Mosquini, Mrs. Joseph Sanders, Ed Kane, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Howard, William Collier, Irving Thalberg, Mrs. H. G. Rogers, Kathleen Clifford, M. P. Illich and Ray Owens.

Following the return canter the ethnic party gathered at the Borzage home, where they were joined by Julia Faye, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Butler, Roy Stewart and Mr. Borzage's brother, William Borzage, who contributed to the incidental musical entertainment featured throughout the day. Luncheon was served buffet.

At Writers' Club

Perhaps the most significant and more public recognition of the author of "The Green Hat" and "Those Charming People" was the affair at the Writers' Club in Hollywood Tuesday evening. With Maj. Rupert Hughes as toastmaster, two hours of hilarity and joking, at the expense, for the most part of the honor buest, was enjoyed. There was nothing green about this. Neither was it raw. But it was sophisticated.

Among the originators of refined cruelties were such celebrities as: Donald Ogden Stewart, Lew Cody, Maude Fulton and William C. De Mille, all of the talks interpolated with the scintillant wit of Hughes, who was at his best, which is very good as an after-dinner speaker.

Featuring the evening's entertainment were a one-act play in which the dialogue had been culled from "The Green Hat," by Miss Fulton, and a scenario written by Mr. Stewart. Present were nearly 300, among whom were distinguished folk from among the screen celebrities, writers and social realm of Los Angeles and Hollywood. Each guest wore a green hat, the place favor at his cover.

Informally at the Cafe

In spite of the fact that Michael Arlen was a guest at the Montmartre Saturday of last week with Mal St. Clair and Adolphe Menjou, the dearth of green hats was obvious. However, when Alice Terry made her late, but lovely, appearance it was noted that she wore the same green hat she wore the day that Arlen first touched Hollywood. Zasu Pitts wore an orchid felt hat, close fitting. Virginia Valli's was rust color, Kath-

COMEDIAN HAS SUPER ROLE

The close correlation of pathos and comedy is well recognized by all students of the drama, which accounts to some extent for the great success of George Sidney as the Abe Potash of Samuel Goldwyn's screen productions of the Montague Glass "Potash and Perlmutter" plays.

Sidney enjoys a keen appreciation of comedy values and at the same time utilizes the pathetic to properly approach his climaxes. Endowed by nature with a somewhat roly-poly figure and a face of clean trustfulness, Sidney is ideally equipped for the business of tickling the risibilities.

In all the Montague Glass "Potash and Perlmutter" stories, of course, Potash is more or less "the goat." He is the TNT of the famous 50-50 partners, but at the same time the character is so skillfully drawn that he awakens sympathy in spite of his bombastic attitude.

In "Partners Again—With Potash and Perlmutter," which Henry King is now transferring to the screen for Samuel Goldwyn, Sidney has opportunities for comedy work such as he never has before enjoyed. He is, with his partner, Mawruss, enacted by Alexander Carr, in the automobile business, vending to an unsuspecting world the "Schenckmann six," which is, indeed, the last word in autos. The experiences of the partners, as evolved by the agile mind of Glass, are said to be even more excruciating than their former screen ventures in the "suits and cloaks" business and in the motion-picture industry.

The scenario is from the pen of Frances Marion, who supplies the script for all of Samuel Goldwyn's productions, and the picture will be distributed by United Artists.

Thrills and heart throbs! I had 'em, simple, compound and complex—imbibed that phrase in English the other day, it was a left-over from Grammar school, but I thought I could forget it for high school. But up it popped again. These teachers are never satisfied. It had, something to do with a noun I think. Anyway, I started to say I had simple, complex and compound heart throbs in advanced stages of gulping when I saw Ronald Colman with my own eyes riding along the street just as unconcernedly as if he wasn't the particular and oft exclusive heart beat of several million of my fellow 16-year-old sister fans. More About Our Neighbors—

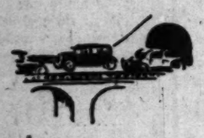
FLOWER--Figueroa --Seventh--everybody's moving up! It's going to be a busy spot. Meyer Siegel have had plans for a sumptuous new building on their site on Flower, close beside us, for some time. The latest word from them gives the date of their "at home" in the new edifice for about September first, next year.

THE twin theaters to go up just above Figueroa on Seventh sound impressive. More than $5,000,000 to be spent! Wilkes to have a legitimate playhouse and Fox a film house--the largest in the west--larger even than the great Capitol Theater in New York!

Breaking Ground

ALREADY pick-axes and drills are at work on the New Fine Arts building--right across the street from our new home. A limit height structure to be Romanesque in character--small set-backs on the upper stories--a rich Basilica-like mass. No detail is being spared--outside or in--to make it a building worthy of its name.



Over and Under

FIGUEROA, itself, is growing, too! --stretching out to the north. Prospective plans show the street cut through--way on across Elysian Park--to meet Dayton--heading straight for Pasadena. Now over--now under the hills of the park--by bridges and tunnels. Rich scenic beauty is promised.

CHEST ENDOWS DOLLAR WITH MAGIC

MODERN METHOD MAKES CHARITY MORE EFFECTIVE

By Dorothy Pelunis

"Last—somewhere between sunrise and sunset,
One golden moment set with sixty diamond seconds.
No reward is offered, for it is gone forever."

Upon her gentle face, lines of sorrow have long left their indelible marks. Memory's oblivious treasures are slowly vanishing away into nothingness. It is better so! She must forget them. They are pain, pathos, bitterness!

"When the heart knows its own sorrow . . ."

There was once a home, and such a pretty one, all hedged off with cedar trees, and every springtime life was again born anew to her. She had much to hope for them, for there was her devoted husband and six children; the loveliest life ever smiled on!

She pauses to brush away a tear, for she has now thrown open the secret channels of her heart.

Her thought is suddenly broken by the dinner bell sounding busily throughout the house.

Many old ladies like herself, dependent, aged, inmates of a home for old women, drift slowly into the room. Some are on crutches, others are badly bent, a few with age, most with sorrow. One lady, years of age, is blind, and her room-mate for six years is ushering into the dining-room by the hand.

The lady of the gentle face slowly shuts her eyes. Perhaps it is to close out the sight, or perhaps she is trying to press back a tear. Who knows?

"To think that I have come to this—"

She continues, half-choking, half-sobbing, to bare her life's sad tale.

An accident many years ago took her husband and two sons from her. Left alone with two ailing young daughters, one son, and a married daughter who was now making her home in Ireland, years of struggle followed.

Then once again interceded and within two years both daughters went to a tuberculosis preventorium in California. The burden of caring for an aged mother was left to the one remaining son.

"I forgive him, I forgive him; he meant well . . ."

The lady of the gentle face has now completely broken down under the strain of recollection. She tries to explain that her son never meant no harm, that he was young, that he wanted to "play," that an aged mother was such a millstone; that she loves him, a thousand thousand times she forgives him!

As the Community Chest appeal for funds, from the 9th to 19th of November, nears, surveys are being made daily of the institutions under the Chest's wing.

Leading society women, prominent business men, social service workers and other Los Angeles citizens interested in the forthcoming appeal, are acquainting themselves with conditions prevailing throughout the city's welfare institutions.

Startling are the revelations as the survey goes on!

The lady of the gentle face" is found a hundred times over in homes for the aged.

To the spectator it is an appalling sight. He is moved, mortified, at the sin of children!

The survey goes on, into the orphanages.

"Queer world," the spectator will comment as he reads records of children there.

"Found huddled under a truck half-dead with starvation . . ."

"Brought in by policeman suffering from hunger following death of mother and abandonment by father . . ."

"Left with neighbors after mother died, inadequately cared for; now here suffering with rickets . . ."

"Three children taken from father on cruelty charge; eldest boy badly scarred from lashes and beatings. . . ."

The spectator half staggers. Can it be possible?

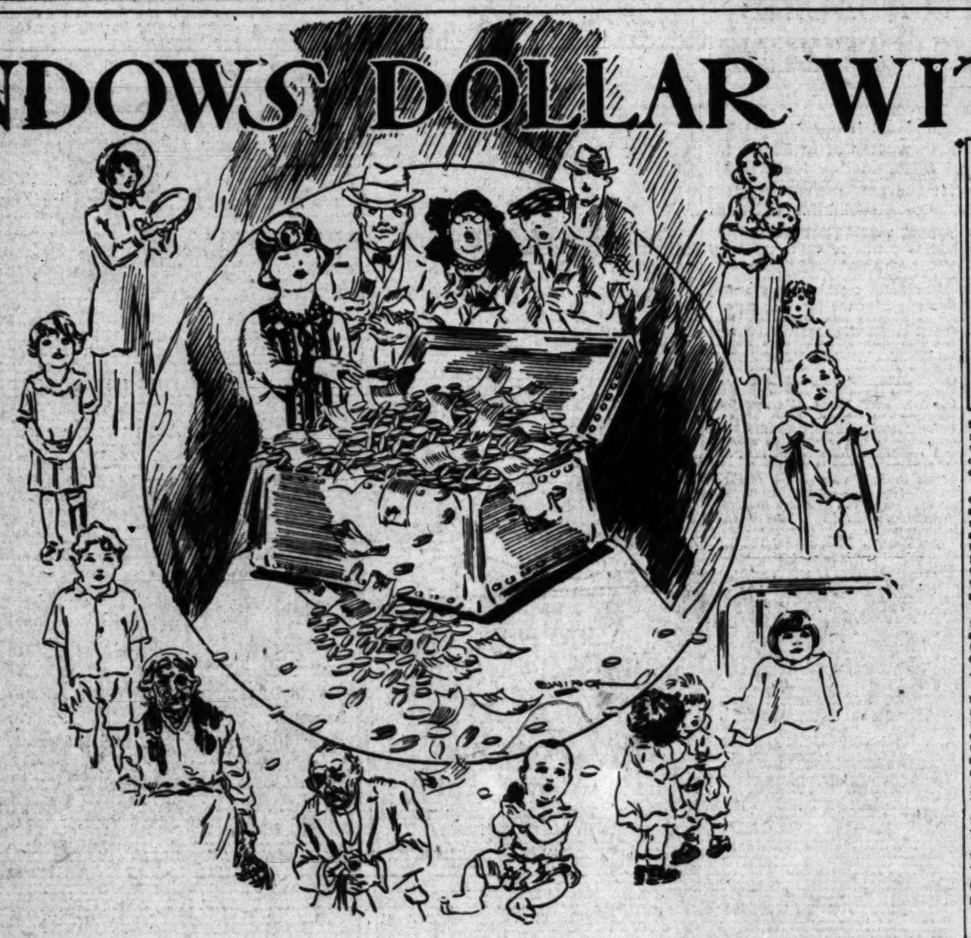
The sin of parents!

Perhaps more tragic than all are those unchronicled conflicts of child-invalid's fight for health.

The spectator visits the hospitals, clinics, homes for crippled children.

Little tousled heads laugh out at him from above the pique counterpane, but beneath those spreads are little mangled, helpless, twisted, broken bodies.

Only God knows though, but that the thwarted, ugly, deformed body may house the genius of an Einstein or a Milton.



While the spectator gasps for breath, a teacher comes to the little patient's bedside and begins his lesson. The child is being prepared so that by the time his little deformed body is improved, he may go out into the world again, and take up the normal threads of life, in education and social contact.

Milton was blind.

Beethoven's greatest master-symphonies were created when he was stone-deaf.

Education goes on in the hospitals while little bodies are fighting for health.

The spectator's pity turns to marvel.

"Wonderful system!"

Deep in the heart of the old Plaza, the spectator is again shown another "miracle."

Here the dusty pattern of a phlegmatic people is being rewoven, through an industrial plant, into a new, clean, shining one.

Downstairs, bag upon bag of cast-off clothing and household goods from the homes of Los Angeles are being unloaded.

Upstairs, bright-eyed girls to lent grandmothers are plying their needles, making over the waste of society into useful articles for the poor.

A cobbler sits on his workbench making over trodden-down shoes; next to him a crippled youth is mending a torn umbrella. An old grandmother sits in an adjoining room curling the hair of an old doll and repainting its face. Some little daughter of the Plaza will be happy to get it in its rejuvenated condition. Up in the "tinker shop" old clocks are being repaired; platinum points are being taken out of sets of false teeth.

Men and women, no longer fitted for the rush of the commercial and industrial world; men and women, untrained for any definite walk of life, are being given a chance to make a comfortable, honest living. The city's junked humanity is being converted into useful citizenship!

Down the zig-zag stairway and the spectator finds himself surrounded by a score of dusky-skinned little Juans and Angelas and Miguels, nursery children whose mothers are trying to eke out a living for them.

They have just been bathed and are at breakfast; then they will be supervised in play and study and later they will have their lunch and afternoon nap, then some more play and then supper, all this for 10 cents a day!

The spectator is amazed! How can they do it? Who pays for it?

Where does the dollar go which is subscribed to charity?

For years Los Angeles had been asking this question. For years citizens had been giving to charitable causes, never knowing whether their money reached the objects of their charity, nor that the charity was necessary, nor that the money was efficiently managed or even accomplishing good. To the busy man and woman, little time is had for investigation.

With a deluge of about 200 drives and private solicitations storming down upon the city annually, the patience of the people soon came to an end. Investigation revealed that from 15 to 50 cents out of every dollar subscribed to charity was being used to finance inefficiently conducted campaigns.

Charitable organizations, which were established and run by persons who gave time, thought and energy to the work, and who because of their contact with the needy, sick and unfortunate, saw clearly the necessity for preventive work, with all their struggle could not get enough money to adequately meet their needs. The poverty of the poor is their destruction!

From out the growing dissatisfaction of business men, citizens and social agencies came the Community Chest, with its own solution.

One drive, once a year, efficiently conducted on a firm, economic basis has come with the Chest.

Today, through the united system of charity, such as the Chest offers, 95 cents out of every dollar subscribed to charity, is actually being sent to charity. Out of the 5 cents remaining, the Chest has established itself and has operated 125 social welfare agencies under its wing during its first year.

Consequently, time has been saved, money has been saved, annoyance has been saved, efficiency has resulted, duplication in work has been prevented, adequate provision for social agencies has been assured, and a community spirit such as has never before existed, has come with the Chest.

Its success is inevitable, Chest officials and citizens believe, for it is a purely community project, by the community, for the community, and of the community. The people of Los Angeles, from children in the grades to girls and boys in the universities, to prominent business men and citizens have and are continuing to contribute their funds, which they themselves solicit from the community, for the purpose of caring for the sick, needy and unfortunate men, women and children of the community.

Last year, children in the grades were allowed to give up to 10 cents; high-school children were allowed up to 25 cents; and citizens and business men gave to their utmost, oversubscribing the budget by more than $7000. Los Angeles, at that time, set a record of having subscribed more to a first Chest appeal, than any other Chest city in the country, and there are over 100 such cities. Because it has proved itself so inherently right, it has spread like wildfire among cities of the United States and Canada. No large city which has organized a Chest has given up the plan. In the State of California alone, there are seventeen Chest cities.

Agencies have been relieved of the worries and uncertainties of fund-raising and have been enabled to concentrate their entire time and energies in conducting their relief work. Because the agencies in the Chest have been so successful through their affiliation with the Chest, more agencies have applied for th 1926 burget participation. Agencies are unanimous in their praise of the Chest.

More than all, for the first time in its history, Los Angeles has now a central body with a board of directors and committees, representing both agencies and contributors who are studying the human problems of the city as a whole, and gradually shaping one vast coordinated program for relief and constructive betterment. Competition among agencies for fund collection has ended. Today all agencies are working together, co-operating with each other and establishing a finer and more efficient standard of work than ever before existed. Agencies are now better able to keep pace with the rapid growth of Los Angeles and its increasing social problems.

From November 9 to 19, during the ten days of the Chest's appeal for funds, 14,000 workers will comb the city for funds with the campaign goal set at $2,330,795, the twelve months' needs of 127 agencies.

Through the years to come, the Community Chest looks forward to meeting the social needs of the city to the fullest extent.

HOW THE CHEST FUNCTIONS

Contributions to the Chest aid directly 125 agencies in proportion to their needs and the scope of their efforts. Ninety-five cents of every dollar received goes directly to relief and betterment work. The balance of 5 cents covers all administration and overhead expense.

Beneficiaries of the Chest include orphans, crippled children, aged and indigent men and women, deserted mothers and children, sick and afflicted families and individuals, religious agencies engaged in uplift and relief work, charity hospitals and nurseries, Boy Scouts and kindred organizations, American Legion and veterans' aid agencies. Creeds nor nationalities are recognized as such, and no organization is admitted to the Chest budget whose work and method of operation is not thoroughly investigated and approved.

SOUTHLAND'S VIRTUES 'AID WOMAN'S BEAUTY

Advantages of Los Angeles Beneficial to Health and Complexions

By Elizabeth Cannon Porter

After she had lived for four years in Los Angeles I again met Josephine, a well-groomed, healthy, cultured woman. Perhaps not quite so vivacious, but better poised than she had been in her youth. As a girl Josephine had sparkled; and after she had married and settled down in a small intermountain town she faded. But her residence in Southern California had revivified her. After several months' sojourn in Los Angeles I have learned why.

Mary Garden was once quoted as saying that the women of a certain inland town looked to her like bags of salt tied in the middle. Later when the diva came to that city to sing in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" a woman reporter visited her at her hotel to ask her about it. The prima donna maintained "I am too much of an admirer of women to say such a mean thing of any of them."

Bask in Sunlight

So Los Angeles offers women opportunity to keep down their figures. The mild climate allows them to be outdone every day in the year. And most days they can bask in sunlight, which is both a beautifier and a disinfectant. They can shed their dark, heavy clothes. They are relieved of carrying their weight around. If they choose to walk they can stroll along palm-shaded avenues or linger in the parks among the most exotic of blooms. Or if they prefer to motor there are the loveliest drives in the world, affording rare glimpses of vale and ocean.

For exercise there is surf bathing and tennis and delightful bridle paths. For diet there is an abundance of fresh vegetables and fruits the year around. It is brought to the door, temptingly displayed, with a bewildering variety to choose from. Where else can one obtain strawberries at Christmas and fresh tomatoes in January? Salads encourage the eating of raw foods, besides eliminating unnecessary cooking. Between times there is orange juice, the reducer de luxe, but rich in vitamins.

To say nothing of the setting-up exercises given every morning over KHJ by Prof. Barclay Severns. Imagine 50,000 women in all kinds of homes, palaces and cottages, on hillsides and in hollows, all doing them at once. Afterward the professor advises a plunge in the tub. It reminds one of the ad of a popular alarm clock: "Men who are fit are the ones who win," says Big Ben.

Housework Easy

Nothing ages a woman so much as overwork. Housekeeping is simplified in Los Angeles. A woman can summon cheap gas and electricity to do her work as wonderfully as Aladdin invoked the genii of the lamp. They light and heat her house, heat her water, play her piano, cook, sew, wash and iron for her, all with the lighting of a match or the pressure of a button. Washing clothes with soft water and drying them in the clear atmosphere robs washday of its terrors. The city takes care of the waste products of the house regularly and efficiently.

Inspection by nurses in the schools and free dental clinics safeguard the health of the children. Milk served at the morning recess builds up nutrition. Besides a free clinic for the babies there are the medical clinics where a person may have her ailment diagnosed, treated and cured at practically no expense. The best medical skill in the city contributes its services.

Clothing is cheaper, perhaps, in Los Angeles than in any other city of the United States. The department stores are an education in themselves. Or if one seeks imported novelties they may be purchased in Fifth avenue salons or Parisian ateliers. Window shopping is particularly enlightening. Lately a full bridal party was arranged in the window of one of the large stores. The mannequins were correctly garbed from the veil and pearls of the chief figure to the rainbow assemblage of the bridesmaids. In an adjoining window lay figured in bathing suits reclined in beach chairs and the prospective purchaser was educated in the correct thing in beach coats.

Across the road in the window of a furniture store was a luxuriously furnished bedroom with long mirrors and the latest in counterpanes. A dining table in another alcove was set with service for six with porcelain made in California, decorated with a border of black and blue and orange. A near-by florist's window showed daring combinations of colors made up into baskets, lovely water lilies and immortelles.

Culture Abounds

People cannot live in Los Angeles without imbibing culture. There is a surface courtesy inspired by an underlying element of good breeding. World premieres of the big pictures are held here, preceded by colorful prologues and accompanied by large orchestras. Besides theaters and operas, there are endless free entertainments if one has but the time and inclination to attend—band concerts, lectures, musicales, museums, exhibitions, night classes, art galleries.

Of all the arts, architecture probably takes the lead in Los Angeles. This has been fostered by the great building program necessary to house a million. Especially have beauty and comfort been evolved in the small house. Stonework from Egypt, marbles from Italy, pagodas from Japan, pastel colors from Mexico, have all contributed to the Southern California home. It is an incentive to good housekeeping just to live in such houses. A landscape takes on added charm if it is viewed from a Roman arch or a French casement.

Los Angeles has metamorphosed the back yard. Nowhere does a garden make such returns, for anything from tropical verdure to northern pines will grow in the salubrious soil. A woman may flank her porch with swishing plantains, purplish rhododendrons, flaming cannas or any of a hundred other things that may please her fancy. Of her taste may materialize in the form of water pools, rose pergolas or terraces.

The chief recipe for feminine beauty is mixed blood—a commingling of nations. Los Angeles, the melting pot, has that. From the north, the east and the south they come—and from the far countries through the "port of the seven seas."

And we haven't even mentioned the beauty parlors!

Mt. Hollywood Gives World-Famous View

BY ELSA BROCKER HARVEY

Hollywood, famed for its motion picture studios and climate, has still a third wonder with which to challenge the world. A magnificent view obtained from the top of Mt. Hollywood of thirty-one towns and cities lying picturesquely below has been acclaimed by many as the most magnificent view in the world, surpassing in beauty the famous ones of the Bay, Victoria Peak of Hong-Kong, China, as well as that of Diamond Point, Hawaii.

From the San Fernando Valley on, for instance, lying behind Hollywood one finds the towns of Burbank, San Fernando, Sunland, Tujunga, Roscoe, Burbank, Lankershim, Reseda, Van Nuys, Encino, Glendale and Girard all lying up against the Verdugo Mountains. While in front, reaching to the waters of the blue Pacific, are Hollywood, Los Angeles, Beverly Hills, San Fernando, Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Venice, Long Beach, Inglewood, Playa del Rey, Redondo, Culver City, Pasadena, Altadena, Torrence, San Pedro, Catalina Island and Santa Barbara Island.

Splendid motor roads and gradually winding footpaths make it accessible to the informed and uninformed. None has ever been known to reach the top without stopping on the magnificence of the view. There is a sweep to the scene with its numerous valleys, distant mountain ranges, thousands of homes and estates and holds one.

The Verdugo hills with their shifting colored sands of light gray and deep brown lying northward seem far more like the papier-mache ones of our doll-theater days than actual earth and sand. Here and there in closer range spectacular examples of architectural achievement, in the form of ancient Moorish castle or impressive hillside mansion that seem to grow out of the very fastnesses of the hills, help to emphasize the picture-book atmosphere with which the scene is pregnant.

But even this beauty, inspiring as it is, is eclipsed when twilight descends and the hills are resplendent in their necklace of lights from the millions of homes below. It is a thrilling and impressive sight enhanced by the haunting charm which nightfall brings with it in semitropical climate, where pungent odors of aromatic herbs and trees perfume the air with sweetish scent and mocking birds sing joyously to listening mates.

Yet it is regrettable to chronicle that so few in California knew of this beauty that lies so close at hand. Nevertheless, it continues to inspire visitors of foreign lands. As for instance, the Swiss stonecutter who carved his testimonial of appreciation in the form of a scroll on a huge boulder that juts outward from the top of Mt. Hollywood.

For the automobilist, the drive upward is a pleasure, as the road is wide and gradual and minus hazardous curves often encountered elsewhere in California foothills. And for the camper or hiker there are splendid footpaths of easy ascent, which are never so tiring or steep that they in any way conflict with the enjoyment of the magnificent panorama that each new curve reveals.

SEEING THIRTY-ONE CITIES AT A GLANCE

Unique School Teaches Tots From All Nation

MINDS AND HANDS OF FOREIGN CHILDREN TRAINED TO ASSUME DUTIES AS AMERICAN CITIZENS

By Katherine Nelson

Near the Los Angeles River and the railroad tracks extends an industrial district where many things are made—flour, soap, candy—an infinite variety of articles. In that same district, on Utah street, between East First and Aliso, another large scale enterprise is going on—the making of American citizens for the next generation, for in this locality, settled largely by Mexicans and Russians, with a sprinkling of most of the other nationalities that come to our shores, is the largest elementary school in the whole of Los Angeles.

Beginning with the kindergarten and extending through the eighth grade there are 1750 children enrolled in the regular classes, while in addition a nursery cares for from forty to fifty youngsters too small to attend school, and part time, evening and home classes furnish instruction for many who are of more mature age.

Russian men with picturesque blue or pink smocks and women with lace or embroidered shawls over their heads are frequently seen in the shopping district. Their homes are in the neighborhood of Utah and Clarence streets, where a colony has gathered, preserving many of their native customs and worshiping at the two Greek Catholic churches in the vicinity and celebrating their many feast days in accordance with tradition.

Within the last decade the influx of Spanish-speaking people has rather altered the character of the neighborhood. For a time a feud was waged against the new comers, but now the two groups get along peaceably enough.

Many of the children of both nationalities come to school without being able to speak a word of English and the teachers have the double task of breaking them in to the routine of a school room and of making their wishes known by signs and pantomime.

Much of the time throughout the entire course of study must be devoted to idioms, for genders and tenses and sentence structure are elusive. Music and drawing appeal to most of the children more than do the regular subjects and many of them show decided talent. The orchestra is a flourishing institution and appears at all school entertainments.

Many of them are clever with their hands and do interesting work in the sloyd classes. During the last week of school and exhibition of polychrome plaques and kewpies, book racks, tables, yachts and other products of their skill are shown.

The domestic science department also held an exhibition of dresses and aprons and other clothing made by the girls in the sewing classes. This department has been influential in raising the standards of taste and care in personal appearance. There was a time when a bathtub was an important part of the school equipment and the janitress and her assistants spent hours in initiating pupils into the mysteries of much-needed ablutions. Occasionally youngsters still appear who require firstaid measures but most of them take pride in their appearance—and are frankly interested in the sartorial effects achieved by the teachers.

The cooking classes help with the school cafeteria and are the chief means of sending ideas concerning diet and modern methods into the homes. The girls also "conduct" in the day nursery and learn how to properly care for the infants that are their charges outside of school hours.

Gardening for the boys takes the place of domestic science and affords them training in craftsmanship. The more enterprising ones work out plans for their own lawns and grass plots are taking the place of some of the hard earth yards. The Mexicans are particularly fond of flowers and every home has its hollyhocks and morning glories and marigolds.

An athletic director supervises their games and daily drill periods and seeks to instill the spirit of fair play and good sportsmanship. The school nurse has a clinic every morning where minor ills are cared for and inspects homes where children are out of school because of sickness. Her work calls for quite indefatigable energy, for this neighborhood has been a prey to epidemics of all kinds and it is very difficult to impress ideas of sanitation and proper care for the sick upon parents who are suspicious of new ideas and who frequently have to have their children interpret the instructions.

One of the most interesting activities of the school is the day nursery, where youngsters below school age are cared for. This institution was the first of its kind in the city and has been in existence for about fifteen years. Before that time many of the children were kept out of school to look after the babies, as the mothers were working all day. To keep them in school the children were told to bring the youngsters with them. The result was an office overflowing with babies, with others asleep in the classrooms and in the halls.

At last a place was set aside and with the help of the Parent-Teacher Associations of the city, a woman was hired to care for them. Now a nurse and two assistants are supplied by the Board of Education. Those who are able pay 10 cents a day for the care and for the noon luncheon and for the milk that is served in the middle of the morning and in the afternoon.

Those who cannot afford to pay are given the same care, but the mothers send their children more readily when they feel that they are not accepting charity. The money taken in does actually pay for the food, which is prepared and served with the assistance of the "cadets" from the domestic science classes.

As in the schoolrooms, every nationality is represented — Japanese, Syrians, Armenians, Italians, Greeks and negroes being present, as well as the predominating Spanish and Russians. Cribs and beds are supplied for the afternoon naps and a playground gives the children a chance to dig in the sand and to get rosy cheeks in the open air.

The home teacher forms a direct link with the parents. Classes in English are held at the school in the afternoons, which the mothers attend. There is much smiling and bowing and many suppressed giggles as, self-consciously, they attempt to speak the new language. During the mornings the teacher goes about the district, teaching the women new housekeeping methods, explaining the problems of the children in school and seeking to arouse an interest in American ideas and ideals.

The evening classes are largely attended by men who work during the day and who feel the need of further instruction to get along in their work.

The work in the part-time classes is very informal as the students do not come at any set time and are seldom pursuing the same course of study. The encouragement they receive to do good reading and the training in expressing themselves in English are important parts of this work, which is conducted for the young people between the ages of 16 and 18 who have not completed the eighth grade.

Not all of the education which is shaping the lives of these children is received in the schoolrooms, however, nor is their type of citizenship entirely the result of formal schoolroom training. Most of the boys sell papers or black boots after 3 o'clock and are very "wise" concerning many things. Most ubiquitous, there is never an accident, a fire, a fight, or any other excuse for a crowd, that does not draw a goodly representation of these youngsters.

American citizens of tomorrow —what will they be like? These children have many of them grown away from the teachings of their parents and the advice they receive in school and the information they glean from the scare heads and from their hours on the streets does not always agree. Self-reliant, skeptical, not very docile, they are an even more important factor in the making of the Los Angeles of tomorrow than are the flour, the candy, the soap and the other products which are keeping many people busy near at hand.

STIRRING THE MELTING POT

Teaching the children of foreigners presents a host of problems not met with in ordinary educational systems. The Utah Street School cares for nearly 2000 students, ranging from mere babies to adults, some of whom must be taught to speak their first English words. The upper view here shows some girls from the sewing class wearing dresses which they designed and made. Other groups show boys at work in the school gardens and at play about the grounds. Below is a picture of the day nursery, where a dozen different nationalities are represented among the little tots. The lower picture shows a youth exhibiting a yacht he has fashioned in the manual-training department.

DEMON TAUQUITZ HELD INDIANS IN TERROR BY MYTHS OF SAN JACINTO

By George Wycherley Kirkman

What should be one of the most unique and interesting of Southern Californian fiestas and celebrations is to be held at Palm Springs during the second week in November, in the form of a pageant depicting Tauquitz, the legendary wizard who, our Indians alleged, had his dread abode upon the loftiest crags of Mt. San Jacinto. That same wonderful mountain that forms so overwhelming a feature of the skyline along the southern border of Riverside county has always been an object of awe and fabulous legend to all the Indians of Southern California. The Indians called it Tauquitz, but the race of the pale faces call it Mt. San Jacinto.

Dominating the landscape far and wide, it was and still is the mysterious source of even more mysterious noises and sudden quiverings that appalled the Indians, as having about them something that appeared at once sinister, supernatural and menacing.

Once, their most ancient legends say, this mighty mountain belched forth an immense shaft of fire; but always the red tribes far and near regarded it with mingled dread and horror as the home of the powerful wizard and cannibal demon, Tauquitz, who dwelt in a hidden cave situated in one of its upper fastnesses. From it, they said, he occasionally sallied forth, under various shapes and artful disguises, to lure his victims to Tauquitz Valley, where he revealed himself to them, too late, as a frightful ogre.

To the Indians the sudden strange noises still heard at times far up in the upper recesses of the great mountain are the groans of his victims and the roars of the demon as he seeks to further terrify them.

FABLES OF GOLD

About this dark wizard of the secret cave the red men had in the course of unnumbered centuries built up a cycle of curious legends, a whole weird array of fantastic fables, most of which are now lost. The Cupenos, formerly of Warner's (Kupa,) but now living mostly at Pala with some at Agua Caliente and the Banning Reservation, also had a special name for this demon—Tur, meaning an electric fire-ball. These Cupenos say that various white people of our race who believed that there is much gold underneath the lofty rock where this demon dwells when he is at home, have often tried to obtain this treasure, but each time he has appeared and driven them away.

No one, red or white, layman or scientist, has yet discovered the real cause of the mysterious noises that at times mutter or thunder through the upper gorges of Mt. San Jacinto. There are a number of hot springs around its base, and it has been surmised that internal stresses or strains caused by heat, its dissipation, or unequal radiation may cause the shocks and noises.

It may be that they originate from the collapse of the walls of caves deep down in the bowels of the earth. Again, it is possible that slumbering subterranean forces down in its profoundest depths, now seeking an outlet, are responsible for these phenomena, which happen occasionally, but without doing harm to anyone, so far as known.

INDIANS SCARED

The mountain is on the line of a major fault, as evidenced by the shocks felt here once in a while; and this faulting—the grinding of deeply buried strata slipping past each other or splitting along the fault line as our cooling earth contracts—may well cause both noises and tremors. Deep down in the profound abysses of ancient rocks, titanic forces are still at work, though they do no harm to the mountain dwellers, and sometimes the rending of tortured granite finds relief in readjustments of the strata, whose surface evidence is the temblor that our Indians are so childishly afraid of, even if white people laugh at them for it.

The Morongons of the Serrano tribe say that there is a huge mass of gold under Tauquitz's house on San Jacinto. Once, their legend says, the demon annoyed a beautiful maiden of their tribe, but the Coyote—their clan totem and one of their culture-heroes—suddenly appeared upon the scene and tried to stay an arrow and tried to stay Tauquitz, whose body was a walking stick. The arrow struck the gold stick—Tauquitz's body and the demon fled with a yell to Mt. San Jacinto, where now is an electric ball of fire. Here he attacks people at times they ever, and hurls them to fire that he builds there for purposes. Like all the red Indians hereabouts, they call the mountain by its only Indian name—Tauquitz.

ANOTHER LEGEND

A Serrano legend says that Tauquitz has a house hidden in which it is alleged to be a lot of gold. Once he captured a Cahuilla Valley, they say, a Cahuilla Indian boy who had been sent home to care for a baby, and the rest of his village were gathering the acorns they used for food and which are here found in abundance.

Tauquitz took the boy to the demon's house, where there were many captives belonging to various tribes that dwelt in the vicinity. Every night Tauquitz would bring in new captives, sometimes depriving them of their eyes so that they could not know how to find their way home. In this house, the boy also saw great heaps of human bones.

Tauquitz kept him there for many days, but finally released him on the boy's promise not to tell what he had seen until three years had elapsed. On his release, however, he found that the three years seemed really to be three years and that on his return to his Cahuilla village, his anxious mother questioned him as to where he had been, he would not tell her, but that the three years were up, told her all about his startling adventure and then prepared to perform an elaborate ceremonial in connection with it. From Tauquitz he had obtained certain supernatural powers, he said, and through them he could take off his head and arms and then put them on again, thus making himself invincible, again, without doing himself any injury. This is the demonstration the dread ceremony he performed at midnight after which he retired to his couch. In the morning, however, he was found dead there on his bed of ferns!

TAUQUITZ BURNED

One Indian legend is that Tauquitz was once a powerful chief who united all the Indian tribes under his rule. Gradually he grew very exacting and tyrannous and the Red Men began to hate him but did not know how to get rid of him safely. A beautiful maiden, the daughter of a powerful chief, suddenly disappeared one day and could not be found anywhere. Soon, another girl mysteriously dropped out of sight.

Suspecting Tauquitz, the warriors of the tribe searched his cabin and found the scalps of the two maidens, and the tribal council, after sitting in judgment on Tauquitz, sentenced him to be burned. He was bound to a stake amidst the assembled tribe and faggots were heaped around his feet, but still his eyes blazed with defiance at those around him. When the flames shot up, Tauquitz suddenly disappeared before their astonished eyes and flew right through the air to Mt. San Jacinto; so they were now certain that he was a demon.

Nearly all of the local Indians connect this noise with the demon whom, they say, appeared on earth after the death of the chief who had brought the Indians over the western ocean to their present home here. Here on Mt. San Jacinto Tauquitz lives in a cave and was guilty of many great crimes against the Indian tribes. He had the power of assuming all kinds of

(This is the concluding article of a series which have dealt with the bandits and road agents who infested California towns and highways in the days between 1850 and 1875.—Editor.)

By Michael J. Phillips

This series on the bandits of California opened with an Anglo-Saxon—Jack Powers. It closes with another fair-skinned American, Dr. Thomas J. Bell.

In addition to these there has been enumerated rather a long list of Spaniards and Mexicans and native Californians of Spanish-Indian blood who became terror-inspiring road agents and who remained such until a bullet or the rope put a period to their activities.

There were at least ten of the brown-skinned banditti to every American who followed the road as a regular occupation. Somehow the Anglo-Saxon of those days—and undoubtedly of the present day—lacked the sustaining sense of the dramatic and the picturesque to keep him on the red highway.

There were three types of American who violated the commandment against murder in the early decades of California's history as a State. One was the bully who became quarrelsome while drinking. His counterpart exists today. Such a man is not dangerous when he has only his fists as weapons. But in the gold-rush times, when everyone wore a pistol at his hips, fists were not brought into play. Instead of a black eye, a bruised nose and a restoration of good feeling and a round of drinks as the result of a fight, the bully had recourse to his gun. And tragedy resulted.

The second type was the true bad man, the killer, cool, deadly, venemous, who watched his chance and shot with deliberate intent to murder because of the pleasure it gave him. He was the human counterpart of the isolated specimens of the animal world who do not kill for preservation or for food, but for sheer wantonness.

Strangely enough, the killer carried on practically unmolested until some one beat him to the draw. Because he gave his thought and his craft to killing, there was always at least a semblance of right on his side. So he went about his business and slept comfortably in a bed. Furthermore, he enjoyed a sort of sinister distinction and men courted him and deferred to him.

The third type was that of the bandit—he who was definitely a fugitive, hunted like a dog, every man's hand against him. He remained in hiding except when he flashed out for an occasional bloody foray or when he swaggered and strutted his brief hour in his own fastness or in villages friendly to him.

Except that he was a bandit more or less by force of circumstances, it is rather hard to classify Dr. Thomas J. Bell, late of Alabama. Certainly he took to the road with his eyes fully open to the consequences of his act. But killer in the accepted sense of the term certainly he was not. Even though his reputation actually ran level for a time with that of the most fiendish of them all, Joaquin Murietta.

Did Dr. Tom Bell live today the newspaper boys would readily identify and classify him. He was one of those who simply cannot help being picturesque, who says quotable things and does spectacular and glamorous deeds. He was, in short, good copy. With his badness was intertwined a curious whimsical strain of goodness which made him do foolish, impulsive, generous things, like unto the impulsive tiltings of Don Quixote.

Bell, a tall, thin, quiet young man with a mild blue eye and a voice so low as to be almost apologetic, seems to have suffered from being miscast in life's drama. Undoubtedly his medical education was rather sketchy. It was obtained during the forties, when the requirements for the letters "M.D." after one's name were not very comprehensive. As a doctor he was not a success. He was indolent, fond of a joke and of idle companions. He drank some and gambled.

So, when gold was discovered in '49 in California, it was inevitable that Tom Bell should be one of those to fare westward in search of it. He arrived in 1850, one of the early comers, and plunged into the mines.

For a time he worked faithfully. He had only indifferent success. His natural indifference to hard labor weaned him from the pick and the pan and he took to gambling. He was no match for the professionals in every mining camp, and his stock of nuggets and dust melted away.

Tradition says that he lost the last of his gold to Dick Wallack in a camp of what is now Yuba county in the first few years of the fifties. As he rose from the table, Dr. Bell's eyes were lighted by a hard glitter which appeared when he was roused. Usually it was the signal for trouble, and Wallack instinctively reached for his gun.

But Bell only laughed quietly. "Well, it's gone," he said, Philosophically. "I'll get it back from the first man I meet. I hope it's you, Wallack." He rested his hands on the table and thrust his grim face forward, the blazing eyes boring into the gambler's.

Accident or intent—though probably the latter—Wallack was the "first man he met" some hours hours later, and Bell robbed the gambler of a considerable sum. That launched him; he collected a small band, six or eight men, perhaps, and ravaged Yuba and Sutter county camps, his range being from Yuba to Granite City.

Dr. Bell was like all other bandits, a super-horseman. He was lithe, well formed and sinewy. His slenderness seemed to make for iron endurance. When he swept out on a foray, he worked like a prairie fire. He was just as ruthless, just as rapid and just as thorough. When indolence took him, he stayed for days in camp, quiet to moodiness, gambling with his companions, and planning new forays.

On no bandit of California's bloody quarter-century ending in the middle 'seventies is there more disagreement. Many believed him a wanton killer, without a decent impulse — a stranger to mercy. Others insisted that circumstances forced him to banditry and kept him there and that he killed only regretfully and when it was absolutely necessary.

He was at his best—or worst—when being pursued by a posse or when danger bobbed up unexpectedly. Then he was a tiger in action. His brain worked quickly and accurately; he was a two-gun man who fired as straight as he thought; and he was brave to foolhardiness. Repeatedly he turned on pursuing posses which greatly outnumbered him, spurred and shot his way through them and left dead and wounded behind him, while the survivors scattered frantically for safety.

In 1856 a mounted traveler was following a mountain road not far from Yuba City. His saddlebags were heavy with gold dust, and he sang gaily: "The Girl I Left Behind Me." At a lonesome spot surrounded by overhanging trees, he heard suddenly the clatter of hoofs. He turned; Bell and two of his band were spurring after him at top speed.

The traveler stopped singing abruptly and lashed his hoss. A race of more than a quarter of a mile followed, the traveler holding his advantag of fifty yards. "Stop!" roared the fiery doctor. "Stop, or I'll shoot!" The traveler only went the faster.

Bell "threw down" with his pistol and fired once. The result was a tribute to his marksmanship. The bullet passed through the fugitive's thigh and he toppled from his horse. The animal stopped almost at once, and stood trembling in the road while the bandits rushed up and dismounted.

They went through the victim's pockets and his saddlebags with business-like thoroughness. When the wounded man protested, Bell, laughing, replied. "Well, from the way you're bleeding you won't need it much longer."

He had his foot in the stirrup; his companions, native Californians, had already mounted. But an instinct, medical or humanitarian, overcame him. He knelt beside the injured traveler, skillfully took up the severed artery and bound the wound, driving his subordinates by curses to assist him.

The dressing was scarcely completed when a man driving a pair of horses to a wagon appeared. It was business first with Bell; he took all the newcomer's valuables. But then he made a soft bed in the rear of the wagon box and, with the help of the others, lifted the wounded man in.

"Drive him to town," he commanded. "Go slow and dodge the ruts, or it'll start the bleeding again."

"Tie my horse behind the wagon, won't you?" asked the victim. "I'll need him when I get better."

Bell shook his head. "I can't do that, stranger," he replied. "I need that saddle. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll turn him loose here bareback. You can send out from town and get him."

The wagon drove off and Bell kept his word; the horse was caught a few hours later near the scene of the shooting.

Dr. Bell escaped after this double hold-up, but Nemesis was on his trail. An overwhelming posse came upon him and a few members of his band late in October, 1856. Bell shot his way through, but three of the others were trapped and carried off to the Nevada City Jail. They promptly escaped with help from the outside, proffered, it is believed, by the leader himself.

Word came to the Sheriff that the three were hidden in a cabin at Gold Flat and, with a posse of four men, he went to recapture them. Night came on and in crossing a deep ravine they found four horses tied. Believing them to be the mounts of the bandits, including Bell himself, the posse hid near by and waited for the coming of the owners.

After an hour or more the posse heard a crashing in the bushes. "Who's there?" called the Sheriff. "Move and I'll shoot you!" was the reply. Immediately a battle began.

After scores of shot had been fired, the Sheriff mortally wounded and one of his men killed, shouted explanations revealed that another posse which, under the Sheriff, had also started in pursuit of the fugitives, now had gotten clear away.

The death of two good men roughly enraged the community, a great company got together, hunters spread a net through the hills. Bell twisted and turned, using all his knowledge of the country and of the mountain passes, but the pursuing cordon was drawn tighter and the doctor and his men were captured and taken triumphantly to the Calaveras jail.

But bolts and bars could not hold him. Bell pried and dug his way out and fled on a horse stolen by a citizen of the town well known to Calaveras, was present in the Bell organization. A strong posse was formed and, on the first appearing opportunity for action later, declared he had just received from the south and saw Bell and his band fleeing toward Los Angeles, at least 200 miles distant from Calaveras.

The posse wheeled to the south and it looked as if the chase would hold. But a remarkable hunting band, which had been recalled, encountered Bell and his band in the hills. Fatigue, or the pursuit, or fatalism seemed to have broken his spirit, for he surrendered without firing a shot.

Riders galloped after the dead body of the posse and the prisoners back. Bell was given a trial before Judge Lynch's court, found guilty of murder and banditry, and sentenced to be hanged. He went to the gallows quietly, almost indifferently, with a smile on his lips.

ESCALATORS MORALE O AND STOR

In addition to their actual physi uplift, as computed in tonnage have a visible moral uplift a demonstrated by the smiles o passengers. Which you may ve to your own satisfaction by watching any row of happy faces they ride in the open, on these regular revolving stairways.

Department managers honestly believe that the general morale of store employees has greatly improved since the installation of these time-saving devices. Especially on sales days. Because people who have been regular leeches in the seclusion of the elevator, have become happy as the escalator is long when exposed to public view. And after landing, it is natural that much of this outward happiness should be carried to departments visited.

They were an expensive innovation, $35,000 each, being the minimum cost per unit. One store has 10 of them in operation.

UPKEEP IS LESS

Of course the upkeep is less on escalators than for elevators, although a chief engineer and several mechanics are constantly employed to insure constant "and smooth running. And accidents are considered an impossibility, for the revolving stairway is termed "fool proof." Confusion arises only when people wanting to go up find themselves going down, and vice versa.

Should it become necessary to suddenly stop them at any time, there are controlling levers at each floor for this purpose. And should a power stop, passengers would not be delayed as the escalator would then become a stationary stairway, a happier alternative than has sometimes happened with the stalled elevator between floors. The carrying capacity of an escalator is estimated at about 4000 per hour, which is equal to that of at least thirteen elevators. This, because of the steady service as compared to the necessary waits at each floor for elevators.

All of which may be another reason that the general reflex when the escalator patron is a bride. Even anti-Freudians, confined in repressed emotions, somehow register enjoyment. Unlike to the small-town visitor, escalators are as attractive in a store as is the elephant in the circus.

open and guiless, by means of which he would entice women and children to his cave home where he would leap upon them and eat them.

This cannibalism went on for a long time, until Algut, who was a great warrior, became chief of the Indians living near by. Algut had a fine son, whom he loved dearly, and one summer day this son with two other Indian youths, started to climb up Mt. San Jacinto.

ALGUT ALARMED

They were gone so long that Algut became alarmed, and when he found out whither the rash youth had adventured, he set out in hot haste after them. Finally he arrived at the quiet little valley of Tauquitz, a mile or so below where the noises are heard to issue from Tauquitz's hidden cave. Here in this vale he found his son's two companions unconscious. When revived, they told him that Algut had gone well until they had come to Tauquitz's valley, but here he suddenly heard loud roars, the sky darkened, lightning flashed, and the terrible monster Tauquitz appeared. The frightful demon slew Algut's son with a stone-ax, slung his quivering body over his shoulder and strode away, tearing off an arm from the body and eating it as he went his way. At this awful sight, the two Indian boys fainted on the spot.

Vowing revenge upon the demon, Algut trained himself for the fatal combat, eating special foods, fighting bears with his bare hands, tearing apart mountain lions he encountered and exercising his muscles till he could tear up trees by the roots. At last he was ready for the fray and ascended San Jacinto, came to Tauquitz valley and the demon's cave and there taunted him with cowardice and afraid to come forth and fight with him. Enraged, Tauquitz appeared and appointed as the scene of conflict the place called Algutson, where the white village town of Lakeview now stands.

At that time there was a large lake here into which flowed the San Jacinto River, as in those days there was no way by which the river could pass the hills about the lake, and thence flow into the Colorado, as it does now.

TERRIFIC CONFLICT

The tribe was here assembled to witness this conflict, and soon Tauquitz appeared, hurling huge rocks and boulders at Algut, who hurled them up and hit the demon with the same rocks, which made Tauquitz howl with rage, astonishment and terror. However,

Then Tauquitz changed himself into a monstrous sea serpent to frighten Algut, who, however, did not scare worth a cent, but again grappled with the slimy beast so forcefully that the serpent could not loose his grip.

In the demon's agony his wildly lashing tail cut through the rim of the hills surrounding the lake there, making the deep cut through which the river now flows into Lake Elsinore. Now that the water was gone, Algut held him all the tighter and soon strangled him to death. At once Algut's tribesmen built a vast pyre and, piling the huge sea monster upon it, they set it afire. But alas! instead of using dry wood, which would have put a final quietus to the wizard, they had used green wood, and his spirit escaped in a wreath of steaming smoke that arose from the pyre.

As Tauquitz's spirit thus was still alive he returned to his cave on the mountain, whence still issue the strange noises heard up there. No one ever sees him now, except in disguise, but he always appears just before the temblor comes off.

MT. SAN ANTONIO

Mountains, like persons, have always seemed to me to have their own personality, their psychical individuality, as well defined and as distinct as that of human beings, only much magnified and bulking larger in its impress upon us puny mortals, even as these giant gods of the uplands tower above the foothills crouching humbly at their feet.

Mt. San Antonio (Old Baldy,) for instance—what a magnificent, paternal, protective air that father of our fate and bringer of the rains always seems to have! And in like manner about Mt. San Jacinto there ever seems to hover some powerful Afrit, dark, lowering, sinister.

Gorgonio gives you a feeling of power; Mt. San Bernardino, that of a hoary-bearded Druid locking secrets in his wise old bosom; but Mt. San Jacinto, with Tauquitz lurking in his lair, inclines one to believe that, after all, the Indian and his susceptibility to all nature that surrounded him might possibly retort to the omniscient white man that there are still things in heaven and on earth that are not dreamed of in our philosophy.

AZTEC ART DEPICTS SPANIARDS' RETREAT

This drawing is the version by an Aztec artist of the retreat of the Spaniards from Mexico City, June 30, 1520. Pedro de Alvarado is shown riding in the van of his army with one of the friendly Indian chieftains. Over Alvarado's head is a pictograph of the sun. Indians are represented in canoes on either side of the causeway attacking the retreating army. The codex from which the drawing was taken was painted in water colors on cotton cloth sometime between 1550 and 1564. During the reign of the French Emperor Maximilian the codex was taken to Mexico City and lost. A true copy had been made in colors and this copy was reproduced under the direction of President Diaz in 1892.

By Prince Youcca Troubetzkoy

The American girl facinates me. She is a type and yet she is all types. One can always tell a woman of Russia, and the women of France are very often discernible. The American girl can not be mistaken for the miss of any other nation, yet there are so many different types of her that the national type may be said not to exist.

In Hollywood I have been amazed by the constant procession of beauty. Paris has its exquisitely groomed womankind. The women of Russia of the old regime were the most alluring the world has ever known. But never have I seen so many pretty "unknowns" as I have in Los Angeles. If a woman is beautiful in Europe all of Europe knows it. She is pointed out as a beautiful woman. It is almost a case of being pointed out if you are not the possessor of beauty in this marvelous California.

Of the women I have met since I have been in the picture colony there are several who have aroused my admiration considerably and who represent distinctive types.

Golden hair of course does not necessarily mean a heart of gold. Neither do all boys grow up to be President. Yet the public will always believe that such blonde, wide-eyed beauty as that of Katherine Hill is the flowering of all that is wholesome, sweet and desirable in the daughters of America. In the American girl this sweetness is often mingled with a frank camaderie that is intoxicating to the visitor. It is a combination apparently devoid of any pretense at allure, yet it has something about it of the mysterious supernatural attraction of the lovely Madonnas of Raphael. It is the beauty of holiness that shines throughout Miss Hill's portrayal of "Naomi," the good angel of the Prodigal Son in Paramount's film "The Wanderer."

Enter the Charleston maid! The vitality of another type of American girl is more stimulating than the sunshine of California. She is a whirlwind, a focus of radiant life. When I met Grace Gordon, and saw her dance, I was torn between visions of the languorous South Seas, conjured by her Hawaiian ancestry and the flying skirts of an Irish colleen doing her native jig. The Irish, as usual, predominates. But in repose one catches glimpses of that old, patent beauty that calls men away from the racket of our city streets to where the pavement ends, those dark, brooding islands where there is peace for the senses. Only an American girl could have such diverse strains at war within her and still keep them in leash.

There is another girl in Hollywood that presents a personality that more than pleases, little Edna Marian. One of the most delightful minxes that ever charmed a man into a state of coma is the type of diminutive beauty that abounds in America and exists in no other clime. There is a bit of the hoyden in Miss Marian, a bit of the water sprite, a laughing, rollicking gayness that is as intoxicating as the bubbled that rise to the wine glass's brim and break before meeting the lips.

Betty Arlen is a young miss who completely fascinates me. She possesses what one might term "condensed allure." She is small like Edna Marian, but hers is a different type of beauty. Miss Arlen is the siren of the ages, the Circe that lured Odysses on the rocks of old. But unlike the sirens of song and fable, she is diminutive and dainty. With flashing feet and flashing eyes, the bewitching miss completely fascinates her quary. There is none of the languorous lure of a southern clime, but it is just as seductive.

The most typical American girl of them all, according to my idea, however, is Anne Cornwall. Here is the quality that all-nations know to be American: a sparkling wit which ebbs and flows from between white teeth that glisten; laughter that is contagious and personality plus. The minute the young actress enters a room all eyes are upon her.

Once in Paris a French officer said to me, "When you go to the United States see the 'old South.' It gives to the world mint juleps and beautiful women. Recently I met Velma Conner. I have never met a mint julep, but Miss Conner combines a kick, as they say in Hollywood, like vodka with a drawl. Hers is a personality the like of which I have never seen. She speaks softly and low. She is beautiful and she has something which no woman in all Europe can boast—American individuality.

ALVARADO'S SWORD RECALLS CONQUEST BY SPANISH FORCES

By Arthur Woodward

There is an old adage which speaks of people having eyes yet seeing not. This is true to a great extent of persons visiting museums. Interesting stories, chapters from the most exciting periods of world history, personal mementos of men and women who lived in the long ago and who made history, lie almost unnoticed in the cases of the Los Angeles Museum at Exposition Park. It is the purpose of this article to point out to the patrons of the museum the many intensely interesting stories bound up in the relics resting mutely in their cases. Stories that read like fiction yet are the actual histories of men and times long since vanished in the void of lost years.

The sword of Senor Don Pedro de Alvarado, right-hand man of Herdando Cortez, Conquistador of Mexico in 1521, now in the Los Angeles Museum, represents a period of American history that is the beginning of a new era in the New World. A cruel, bloody sunset of an ancient people and the dawn of European civilization in an unknown land.

In the year 1519, when Cortez and his army of adventurers invated Mexico, that land was torn by internal strife. The Aztecs, the Romans of the New World, were constantly at war with their neighbors, the outlying Tlaxcalans, Tarascos and Chiapanecs.

AZTECS DOMINANT

Domineering the Valley of Mexico with an iron hand, the Aztecs naturally resented any intrusion of their domains, yet feared to open immediate hostilities with the invaders, because of ancient tribal legends dealing with the return of Quetzalcoatl, chief divinity of the Nahua nation, of which the Aztecs were a part.

With Cortez at the time of his invasion were many Capitans, captains of companies of soldiery, destined to become famous in the orgy of blood, fire and gold that followed.

Among them was Pedro de Alvarado, son of Diego de Alvarado, Comendator de Lobon, in the order of Santiago. When 25 years of age Pedro left Spain for the island of Santo Domingo, and although he did not merit the title, took upon himself his father's rank of Comendator (Knight Commander of St. James,) and wore his father's old cloak with the red cross of Santiago sewn upon it. Crafty and avaricious by nature, he used the title as a pretext for demanding favors and privileges in the new land.

RECKLESS SOLDIERS

Alvarado was poverty-stricken when he first landed in Santo Domingo, but taking service under Juan de Grijalva, who headed an exploring expedition to the coast of Yucatan in 1518, returned to Cuba a wealthy man as a result of his participation in the spoils of over 20,000 pesos worth of gold and other treasures plundered from the natives of Yucatan.

We are told that Pedro de Alvarado was a brave man, his bravery bordering on recklessness. He was an excellent horseman, an able drill master and a great favorite with his men. He is represented in old plates as having been of dark complexion, long, pointed face and very high forehead, but a more accurate description seems to have made him a young looking man, round, handsome face, a thick, curling beard and a thick tangle of reddish hair. In fact, the Mexican pictographs drawn at the time show him with rubescent hair, and he is designated as shown in the picture by a hieroglyph representing the sun. The Mexicans gave him the name of Tonatiuh, that of the Sun God, because his hair and beard were so bright.

LUST FOR GOLD

Always a vain man, Alvarado gave a great heed to his dress, which resulted in making him more of an overdressed dandy than a gentleman of taste. It is also related that he had a winning manner which made him a great favorite in the army, but under this pleasing exterior was an almost insatiable greedy demon who carried his lust for gold so far that he forgot everything else.

Such, then, is the brief sketch of Capitan Pedro De Alvarado, known to the Aztecs, against whom he wielded the sword that now lies peacefully in the case, as Tonatiuh, a reincarnation of Quetzalcoatl, their god of peace.

The sword itself is a businesslike, looking weapon. It is forty-three inches long from the tiny bent brass cross surmounting the brass crown on the pommel of the hilt to the sharp double-edged tip. On one side of the blade, some three inches down from the bottom of the thick brass bowl, which, with the two straight quillons, served as a guard for the hand, is an inscription in Spanish, etched into the blade with acid.

It is a familiar script which is found on many blades of old Spain: "No me saques sin razon," which translated reads: "Do not draw me without cause," and on the other side is a companion inscription, "No me enbaines sin honor," "do not sheathe me without honor."

HISTORIC BLADE

How often, the spectator silently wonders, has that long, grim steel blade flickered from its scabbard to drink deep of some pagan temple guardian's blood in order that the owner might revel in the store of princely treasure gleaming from the ugly faces of the idols, or on the wooden crossbeams of the ceiling.

Was it always a just cause, and where, one asks, was the "honor?"

Here, then, is a blade that swung in a heavy circle at the massacre of the dancers at the feast of Huitzilpochth, in the temple inclosure in Mexico City, in May, 1520. How well the blade feasted that day may be judged when it is known that nearly 2000 Aztecs fell before the stout Toledo blades of the Spaniards—and Alvarado was an excellent swordsman, and cruel.

What part did this cold weapon play in that nightmare of street fighting, along the narrow causeway, flanked on either hand by canoes filled with enemy bowmen, the drizzly gray night of June 30, 1520, the never-to-be-forgotten "La Noche Triste," "The Sorrowful Night," when Cortes and his men retreated from the city that had become a trap.

LEAP OF ALVARADO

Of course, tradition has it that Alvarado, hard pressed by his savage foes, came to the wide, deep gap in the causeway through which the blood-tinged water flowed, dark and sullen and unbridged. The main body of struggling Spaniards had already crossed over. Of the bridge but one solitary beam remained—a narrow footway, wet with blood and rain, no easy path for a desperately wounded man to tread. Here Alvarado is said to have used his long lance as a vaulting pole and safely leaped the chasm; but historians who have delved into the matter deny this, one Bernal Diaz, a contemporary of Alvarado, examining the place after the fall of the Aztec stronghold at a later date, states that the channel was too wide and too deep for such a leap to have been made. However, the spot, now filled in, is yet called "El Salto de Alvarado," "The Leap of Alvarado."

In the drawing which is reproduced here, the native version of the retreat along the causeway, taken from the codex, "Llenzo de Tlaxcala," and made after the conquest by a native artist, Pedro De Alvarado is shown riding on horseback in the vanguard. Over his head is the symbol of the sun, "Tonatiuh," the pictograph of Alvarado's Aztec name. In some of the plates from the same codex he is depicted as having red hair.

The sword of Alvarado is a part of the Sepulveda-Chapman collection, which has been kindly loaned to the Los Angeles Museum in order that the residents of the city might become acquainted with the famous personages of old Spain who came adventuring to the New World and who dared and died, leaving the heritage of their deeds to history.

The BARGAIN BASEMENT

By W. E. HILL.
Copyright, 1925, by the Chicago Tribune.

Just a lovely girl shopper assuaging her hunger around noontime with an ice cream sandwich culled from the bargain basement lunch counter.

The men's neckwear counter, showing a sextet of bargain basement shoppers doing their Christmas shopping early. "Each tie in a separate box, please," is the pre-yuletide chorus.

Harry works at the necktie counter in the bargain basement. His life has been warped, for all time, from watching the ties chosen by well meaning but wayward lady shoppers.

"Only last night my brother got WOOB, and a man was broadcasting street noises—one was a steam shovel at work, and honest, you'd have thought it was right in the next room! Just as clear!"

Four bargain basement shoppers who gladden the lives of saleslsdies. From top to bottom we have with us this day, the lady who found the imperfection in the bargain silk and lisle hose and wants something done about it; the party from the suburbs who wants a gross or so of toilet goods sent out on approval; the young man who follows the daily fashion hints, after a bargain in striped shirts, and the irate lady who won't be thwarted in the return of a fine-tooth comb. Would you believe it, she's only had it three days!

Just looking around, that's all. The Ginsberg family do their shopping in mass, all but papa, who foots the bills.

Sadie, the beautiful saleslady, is daydreaming beyond a stack of coats, about diamonds, wealthy boy friends and late hours. Showing that saleslsdies in the bargain basement are just as ritzy as their sisters in the upstairs departments.

The Home of Distinctive Silverware

EVERY great American city has its one outstanding silverware store. Its leadership is invariably measured by the character as well as by the scope of its selections.

In Los Angeles, Feagans and Company are rightly accorded that leadership, because this is truly the home of distinctive silverware and selections here are exceptionally broad—not only in the finest Sterling wares, but in good looking and good wearing plated wares as well—particularly featuring the splendid wares of the "International Silver Company" and "Gorham and Company."

In flatware (the knives, forks and spoons) there are more than thirty attractive patterns from which to choose—and in the Hollow ware (Tea and Dinner Services) there are also upwards of thirty beautiful patterns.

Finest quality silver plated dinner knives with solid handles, but to match the forks and spoons, $14.00 dozen—and with the large Hollow Handles, $23.00 and $26.00 per dozen—the forks $14.40 and $15.00—the tea spoons $7.20 and $7.50 per dozen. Sterling Silver dinner knives, $44.00 to $112.00 per dozen; the forks, $52.00 to $102.00; the tea spoons, $19.00 to $55.00. Silver plated Tea Sets of 5 pieces, $50.00 to $165.00. Ramon Novarro's and Claire Windsor's dinner guests were Mrs. Jack Warner's sister, Miss Virginia Fox's bright scarlet; Mrs. Gordon's tomato-colored; Dolores Del Rio, wisteria; Kathleen Clifford's brown.

Mrs. Windsor, Kathleen Clifford and M. P. Illich were the guests of honor and Senora Del Rio and Miss Del Rio.) Mrs. Jack Ford and Mrs. Clarence Brown and Mrs. Harry Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Reynolds (Alma Whitaker,) Don Ryan, Finis Fox, Grace Fryer, Coral Clyse, Myrtle Gebhart, Dorothy Manners, Margaret Reid, Grace Kingsley, Mona Gardner, Muriel Walker, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Donald Ogden Stewart, H. B. K. Willis, Herbert Howe, Carroll Nye, Col. S. H. Jacobs, Whitney Williams, Carlo Schipa, Hal Conklin and Grant Withers.

For Little Folk

Not to be outdone by their elders in the formal farewells tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd and little daughter Alma, 1420 Laurel avenue, prior to their departure for a five months' tour of the Orient, four members of Cinemaland's circle of children entertained at luncheon in honor of their friend, Alma Jean Lloyd.

Gathering at Paulais', luncheon was served with all the table appointments and decorations in girlish pink and blue, with the favors in the form or oriental tokens. Mary Jane Irving, Alice Joyce Regan, Eunice Marshall and Jean Hallor were hostesses, and little Miss Lloyd was the recipient of many gifts.

Theater Party

Marian Nixon was hostess at a theater party which enjoyed "What Price Glory," the opening night, a supper party at the Elite following the performance. Numbered among Miss Nixon's guests were Johyna Ralston, Virginia Brown Faire, Marjorie Bonner, Priscilla Bonner, Molly Malone, Pauline Curley, Duane Thompson, Florence Gilbert, Ena Gregory, Andree Tourneur, Menifee Johnson and the chaperones, Mrs. Florence Hodge and Mrs. J. M. Johnstone.

Halloween effects were motifs for decorations and place favors. Miss Nixon was distinguished in black chantilly lace over white satin skirt, with a white velvet bodice fashioned on new and smart lines. A turquoise-blue satin ribbon formed a double bow and sash, and pink roses at the shoulder completed the costume. Miss Ralston was in a girlish frock of coral pink with two shades of pink satin blended. A bouquet of orchids was her only decorative touch.

Bon Voyage Mae Murray

Carmel Myers entertained twenty-four friends at an elaborate dinner for her confrere, Mae Murray, the evening before the latter left for Europe, where she is to remain for professional reasons for many months.

The guests were close friends of the hostess and honoree and it was a gay and distinguished company that gathered around the beautifully decorated table in the Ambassador Cocoanut Grove. Gardenias are Miss Murray's favorite flower, and there was a corsage of them for each of the feminine guests and boutonnieres for the men.

There was dancing during dinner and after. The closing numbers played by the orchestra were "The Merry Widow" and "Auld Lang Syne."

In addition to the hostess and honor guest were Pauline Garon, the Misses Irene and Edith Mayer, Sylvia Thalberg, Norma Shearer, Rose Doner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rapf, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Stromberg, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Wilson, Irving Thalberg, G. Here and There

Beatrice Joy will leave tomorrow for New York, where she expects to participate in an orgy of shopping. She will return to Hollywood in January.

Gloria Swanson, still valiantly wearing a title and a crown as silver-sheet queen, together with Count and friend husband, sailed from Havre, France, for the United States Tuesday. She arrived in New York with other distinguished passengers including: Ignace Jan Paderewski and Mme. Paderewski and Princess Asa, a sister of the Emperor of Japan.

If Raquel Meller, the elusive Spanish singer and film star, does not soon start for America and incidentally, perhaps, Hollywood, she will forfeit 1,000,000 francs; for it is the third time she has started to visit us and has been whimsically diverted. Now she is bound by a contract to come. She is coming with the personal as well as official blessing and forgiveness of the pope, to whom she went to present her alibis in the charge that she had been sacrilegious in her song numbers, and to seek the pardon she received. When she comes, it is said that her piquancy, whimsicality, her temperamental charms and her odd beauty will place her name in print perhaps as often as that of Michael Arlen here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry MacGovern (Mildred Harris) and small son are domiciled at 2923 West Ninth street since their arrival here ten days ago.

Winifred Hudnut Valentino will leave Paris on the 3rd inst., on her return journey to New York, sailing on the Leviathan. New York, she says is her destination and not yet Hollywood.

Lariat in Miniature

Tomasina Mix, the little 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mix, entertained yesterday afternoon with a charming Halloween party in the garden of the Mix Carleton Way home.

Trained dogs and a clown who evoked joyous laughter by his amusing and mysterious juggling tricks, were the features of the fun and Tomasina with a little lariat in the offing, captured the gratitude and lassoed the admiration of all her guests. Among those bidden from the children of cinema folk were Carolyn Ann Frank, Betty Lou Smith, Barbara Ford, Mary Jane Flynn, Adele Cohen, Betty Blystone, Barbara Jensen, Sally Irene Biele, Helen Woolmer, Anne Katherine Woolmer, Laura Anne Price, Mary Sedgwick, Phyllis Frame, Pat Ford, Lyle Norman Smith, Dwight Smith, Anthony Caulday, Richard Sterling, David Reynolds, Lynn Reynolds, Jr., John Coffin, Bob Coffin, Dick Moorhouse, Guy Price, Jr., William Hart, Jr., and R. Nichol Smith, Jr.

detective in me. Maybe I am a detective. Who knows? Anyway, I imagined all sorts of things about that crooked fender, and how it happened.

I'm so glad Barbara La Marr is getting better. She has come back from the mountains quite well again. Barbara always was one of my favorite sirens. Oh, goodness, gracious, me! I shouldn't use so noisy an expression in connection with quiet Barbara. Yet again, is she quiet?

And now for the sad news—I just heard that Letarice Joy starts for a vacation in New York tomorrow. I had my boy bob before she did. Now that one of my favorite stars has one, I am afraid even to have mine trimmed for fear of removing the joyous effect. But Leatrice promises to come back by the joy season to add to it at Christmas time. Anyway, Culver City will not be nearly so interesting to me without the hope of seeing her walk about the streets of that fair city near Watts. I have a crush on her and would go even to Watts to see her.

Almost forgot to tell you that I heard Neil Hamliton talk over the radio Friday. Wonderful voice is what he has a lot of, plus. I wish, for my radio's sake, he'd take up a steady job before the microphone.

Connie Talmadge has a new leading man, and he arrived here Friday. Tullio Carminati. No, you don't have to sneeze in the middle of it or cough at the end. He's romantic, they say, and this time not liars, I hope. Connie has always picked winners. So here's hoping again.

the last year, that more have applied for budget participation.

Having been relieved of the burden of soliciting funds, and having been enabled therefore to center their entire time, efforts and energies on raising the standards of relief work, agencies have advanced during the year to an extent never before witnessed.

Heretofore the hundreds of drives which stormed down upon the city annually by individual agencies required from 15 to 50 per cent out of each dollar subscribed for financing their inefficiently-conducted campaigns. The Chest, during its first year of operation has sent 95 cents out of every dollar subscribed, to charity, and on the 5 cents remaining, has established itself and financed its entire operations. Time has been saved, money has been saved, year-around efficiency has been assured, and a community spirit such as never before existed has sprung up.

As preparations are going forth for the actual campaigning, club women are displaying great aptitude and skill. Much of the responsibility rests upon their shoulders, but Chest officials feel confident that they will successfully shoulder their every undertaking.

A SURVEY OF THE CITY'S MUSIC NEEDS

By Isabel Morse Jones

A survey of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, shows an annual appropriation of nearly $5,000,000 by the municipalities of this country for music last year. As this survey was by no means all-comprehensive, the surveyors feel justified in making the estimate at least $6,000,000. The actual amount is not important. The interest officially expressed by our cities is of the utmost importance.

Such a survey is the first step in marshalling an army for the national campaign for a Ministry of Art and Music to be established at Washington. Another step is the season of grand opera sponsored by the City of New York not long ago. The city paid for the performances, such as they were, and the tickets were free. Cries of "politics" rent the air both before and after, but the fact of municipal backing remains.

In this very interesting report of the national bureau there is a classification of expenditures which shows something over $1,250,000 for municipal music in the 262 cities and towns whic hreplied to the questionnaire, and over $5,500,000 for public-school music. Of course, the band concerts take the lead in the budgets for municipal music, with a large proportion of them indulging in community singing. Next in expenditures are the appropriations for orchestras. Twenty-eight cities have municipal organs and fifteen employ an organist.

If Los Angeles is to count itself among the leaders in music activity, it must survey its municipal expenditures and see what it is getting in musical returns. Of band concerts we have our summer quota but no official Los Angeles band. On the other hand, our public-school music stands well up near the top line, thanks to its splendid supervisors and the remarkable work of Jennie L. Jones, head of the orchestral division. Of community singing we have variously sponsored groups and it is not beyond possibility that we will have an official Los Angeles Chorus after a few more Eisteddfod meetings.

We have in the Olympic Auditorium, privately owned, and will have in the Shrine Auditorium, also privately owned, adequate housing for municipal music and the necessity for a civic auditorium, such as San Francisco boasts, is not pressing but must eventually be thought of. Hollywood Bowl, because of its isolated position and the difficulty of reaching without an automobile, is not a substitute and the Coliseum is far from perfect without changes, as was certainly demonstrated at the orchestra concerts last year.

A municipal organ would, without doubt, be a wonderful addition to this city. The organs in San Diego and in San Francisco have proven their worth. Here is an opportunity for a gift to the city which would emulate the generosity of W. A. Clark, Jr., and in its way it would do as much for Los Angeles. It would have a large share in establishing the musical pre-eminence of this city. There is no call for paralleling efforts in the orchestral field for we have now an orchestral body rated among the top seven of the world, thanks to Mr. Clark and Walter Henry Rothwell, and the city's part in its future development is to support it by capacity attendance, a duty, which at present, I regret to say, is not fulfilled.

One of the first interests of a national ministry of music will undoubtedly be the establishment of conservatories headed by a national conservatory at Washington. Only by the improvement of our music schools can our city's music develop. Only by our best musicians joining hands in institutional music teaching, after the manner of the Curtis School in Philadelphia, the Eastman School at Rochester, or the recently proposed San Francisco Conservatory to be headed by Ernest Bloch and municipally aided, can Los Angeles expect to appear at an advantage in a nation-wide musical survey. We now have the musicians and many more who are anxious to come—all we lack is leadership and financial backing. Here, again, is opportunity.

Tronitz Club Presents

Mr. Philip Tronitz, the Norwegian pianist, and Mme. Rusena Sprotte appeared last week in joint recital before the Tronitz Club at Chickering Hall. The program was composed of the music of Norway, being entirely of Grieg and Sinding.

Dunning Club

The Hollywood Junior Dunning Club will sponsor a lecture on the modern orchestra by Carolyn Pearson in November. The club has joined the State federation and the national organization.

Ellis Club

The Ellis Club has prepared an interesting program for its first concert of the present season, to be given next Wednesday evening, the 3rd inst., in Philharmonic Auditorium, under the leadership of Prof. J. B. Poulin, who has been the musical director of the Ellis Club for over twenty consecutive years. The accompanist will be Mrs. Hennion Robinson.

A new number, and perhaps the most interesting to be given, will be "Listen to the Lambs," by Dett, in which the men singers will be assisted by the Madrigal Octette, all members of the Women's Lyric Club. The Madrigal Octette will also appear in several groups of songs, one of which was composed by Mrs. Hennion Robinson. The members of the octette are Pearl Barry Boyd, Mary Tolsworth, Thelma Benson, Nellie C. Walker, Clara Robbins, Cornelia Glover, Letitia Williams, Elizabeth Monser Beihl.

Another special feature will be the appearance of Tandler's Little Symphony Orchestra of twenty pieces, with the Ellis Club in rendition of "Estudiatina" (Lacome,) "Forest Harps" (Schults) and "Chorus of Spirits and Hours, from Shelley's "Prometheus Unbound."

The club members singing solo parts will be O. F. Tallman, Ralph Laughlin and Harold Procter, all first tenors.

Included in the ensemble offerings will be "The Long Day Closes," (Sullivan,) "The Trumpter," (Salter,) "Sicilian Boat Song," (Brown,) "Break, Break, Break," (Cross.) "Indian Dawn" (Zamecnik,) "By the Bivouac's Fitful Flame," by Gaul.

Goldwater Returns Triumphant

Gabriel Goldwater, a young Los Angeles singer, has achieved a tremendous success this fall in Berlin. After a program of sixteen exacting numbers he was obliged to sing eight encores at his last concert there, and he is returning to this city in December with laurels from the famous critics of Europe.

Young Goldwater has been a resident of this city for the past twenty years, having received his first training from the late Joseph Dupuy. He was an active member of the Orpheus Club, serving on the board of directors. In 1922 he left for further study in Germany and, after two years of hard work with Mme. Emerich, he made his debut in 1924 and left for Milan, where he placed himself under the famous Tessari.

Adele Lauth Presents

The pupils of Adele Lauth, pianist, will present a program at the MacDowell Club on Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Averill Study Club. Billie Burke, Helen Meier and Joseph Smith, advanced pupils of Miss Lauth, will be assisted by Christine Krum, violinist, Nellie Dana, Mildred Fleming and Addie Dunlop, vocalists.

Lepske Trio

A new ensemble is to be heard the Hollywood Woman's Club next Wednesday when Jules Lepske, well-known member of the Philharmonic Orchestra, presents his trio, composed of Morris Wolfson, pianist; Franz Lusschen, 'cellist, and himself. Leotta Lepske, dramatic soprano, will make her first local appearance in concert on this program. Mr. Lepske resigned from the Philharmonic Trio in order to form this new ensemble.

Sonata Recital Thursday.

The collaboration of two well-known artists, Sol Cohen, violinist, and Helena Lewyn, pianist, in presenting a series of violin and piano sonatas will interest music lovers. They have an extensive repertoire and will play the works of the old masters that have had few hearings in this city, as well as the modern which have interested European concert audiences, but have not had a hearing here.

Twenty years ago David and Clara Mannes pioneered in giving sonata recitals in New York, and today this form of composition is considered one of the most beautiful in music.

The first concert of the series will take place next Thursday evening, the 5th inst., in the auditorium of the Friday Morning Club, afternoon for the benefit of the 940 South Figueroa. They will play Mozart's Sonata E-flat, Maurice Journeau's A-major and Karol Szymanoowski's D-major sonatas.

MUSIC NOTES

Modest Altschuler, the famous conductor of Russian music, is the proud possessor of an original drawing of himself, done by Feodor Challapin, the idol of the Slavs. It is reproduced on this page with the penciled apology which translates thus: "Although this is taken from the real Altschuler, he only resembles a distant ancestor. Pardon me!" F. Challapin, N. Y.

Altschuler is arranging three concert programs of rare Russian works for orchestral concerts to be given with the Philharmonic Orchestra this season. The works of Scriabine, who was also a personal friend of Altschuler's, and many of whose letters are contained in a valuable collection which he has in California with him, will be given a prominent place on these programs.

New Baritone

Arthur C. Mers, baritone soloist at the First Presbyterian Church, comes to Los Angeles with high praise from Chicago, where he has sung exacting programs.

Ruth List, Violinist

Ruth Eleanor List, violinist, is an advanced pupil of Joseph Zoellner, Sr. She has done extensive concert work in Northern as well as Southern California. During the war she devoted much time to playing for the men at the army and navy posts in the Hawaiian Islands. She is fortunate enough to play upon a valuable old French violin made in the Eighteenth Century.

Recital Tomorrow Night

Geftrude Childs Huntington, dramatic soprano, and David Lyon Wright, pianist, will give a recital tomorrow evening at 605 Wilton Place. They will be assisted by Ruth Eleanor List, and Arthur C. Mers, violinist and baritone, mentioned above. The program is of the classical and semipopular type.

Methodist Orchestra

The First Methodist Concert Orchestra, a group of thirty-five musicians under the direction of Irving G. Ulmer, will present its first concert of the year Tuesday night, the 3rd inst., in the concert hall of the church at Eighth and Hope streets.

Brell Program

Mr. Joseph Carl Brell, the composer, whose works are favorably known throughout the country because of his successes in songs, motion picture scores and operas, will present a program of songs and opera, all his own, at the Gamut Club Theater on the 24th inst. The program will embrace besides some of his older favorites like "The Song of the Soul," ten new songs and piano compositions; scenes from his comic opera "Old Harvard," which was produced in Boston some years ago, and scenes from his grand opera "The Legend," which the Metropolitan Opera Company presented in New York. The program will conclude with a full stage presentation of his new

The club is made up of talented and advanced students of music and the drama. Although less than a year old, it already has achieved considerable prestige in musical circles. It is affiliated with the Los Angeles Opera and Fine Arts Club. During the coming winter season a series of high-class musicales and lectures by prominent artists and speakers is to be given under the auspices of the club.

The program was rendered by the following artists: Louise Derr, lyric soprano; Maryon Bliss, contralto; Gerhard Sachse, pianist; Georgea Wpatum, reader.

Vernice Brand, contralto, has been engaged by the same church. They are both pupils of F. L. Arena.

English Cellist on Orchestra Program

Felix Salmond, the English cellist whose appearance in concert here last season created such a furor, is appearing as soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the second symphony pair, to be played Friday afternoon, the 6th inst., and Saturday evening, the 7th inst., at Philharmonic Auditorium.

Mr. Salmond is playing the Dvorak concerto for violoncello in B minor, which will be heard for the first time at these concerts. In fact the whole program is being heard for the first time at these concerts, Walter Henry Rothwell, the popular conductor, evidently intending to avail himself to the full of the orchestral repertoire.

In the two seasons Mr. Salmond has appeared in America he has had solo appearances with most of our major orchestras as well as playing with such noted pianists as Ossip Gaerilowitsch, Harold Bauer, Arthur Schnabel, Ernest Hutcheson, Alfred Cortot, Mischa Levitzki and Ernst Dohnanyi. He has just finished a joint recital tour with Hulda Lashanska, the lyric soprano, who follows him with the Philharmonic.

The concert opens with Brahms's Tragische Overture, of which it has been said: "In this work we see a strong hero battling with an iron and relentless fate; passing hopes of victory cannot alter an impending destiny."

Completing the program is the Scriabine "Le Poeme de l'Extase" (Poem of Ecstasy,) one of the most interesting compositions ever written. Like Wagner with his so-called "new art-drama" and like Columbus, too, he set out to find a musical "Eldorado" and discovered a new continent instead. Scriabine founded no new scale. He uses the duo-decuple scale, an equal division of the octave into twelve semitones, each semitone being recognized as being of equal importance, that is, all chromatic relationship discarded. This scale is now adopted by all modern writers. He discovered many new chords or combinations but, what is more remarkable, he invented practically a new style of composition. This music is full of the wizardry of perhaps the most exquisite sensibility that has for a long while disclosed itself in music. Beside this man, with his music that is like clustering flowers breaking suddenly from the cool and shadowy earth, or like the beating of luminous wings in the infinite azure, or like the whispers of one sinking from the world in mortal illness, Debussy, even, seems cool, silvered by the fine temperance of France.

A vastly interesting work musically and highly intriguing, too, as being the attempted revelation and expression of a soul transcendant in mysticism.

GERHARDT CONTRASTS FOLKSONGS

Singer Chooses Masterpieces for Philharmonic Program Tuesday Evening

Elena Gerhardt's appearance so early in the season—next Tuesday evening at the Philharmonic Auditorium—recalls the welcome Ernest Newman, England's foremost critic, gave the famous German lieder-singer who sang one of the first recitals of the recent summer season in London: "All is well which begins well. No matter what we might hear later, the memory of Gerhardt will compensate."

Although acknowledged as the "high priestess of German lieder," Mme. Gerhardt brings her superb art of singing and interpretation into diverse display. Her program features Schubert, Beethoven, Strauss, as her numberless admirers expect to find these masters of song on the program.

Celebrated for her repertoire, the great soprano will also sing old English arias and songs from Purcell, adding, by way of contrast, new American and Scottish folksongs in the arrangements by Beethoven.

Gerhardt is supereminent not only for her interpretations and flawless technique, but her articulation has long been cited as an example in vocal studies. Altogether she is a deep student of languages as the library in her New York home evidences. When she travels in America she speaks and reads only English, in France only French. The reason for that is that she at all times studies the specific tone color and rhythm of the various languages.

In bringing back Mme. Gerhardt, Impresario Behymer has considered many requests. Altogether his Tuesday and Thursday-evening Philharmonic courses, now representing the acme of thirty-five years of managerial experience, marshal the best among foremost men and women on the concert stage, to mention only such names as Onegin, Elman, Anna Case, Lhevinne, Gigli, Claire Dux, John McCormack, Ignaz Friedman, Isa Kremer or Zimbalist.

The program numbers follow, opening with a Schubert group: (a) "Aufenthalt" (b) "Liebesbotschaft" (c) "Die Stadt" (d) "Abschied" (e) "Standchen" (f) "Der Musensohn;" two English songs by Henry Purcell, "I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly" and "Nymphs and Shepherds," four Scotch songs by Beethoven, "Faithful Johnie," "Bonnie Laddie," "Oh, Might I But my Patrick Love" and "Sally in Our Alley," closing with two songs by Tschaikowsky, "Das War im Graten Lassesrah" and "Im Wogenden Tanze," with four songs by Richard Strauss: "Ruhe Meine Seele;" "Schlagende Herzen," "Morgen," "Zueignung."

ROTHWELL CONDUCTS FIRST "POP" TODAY

The first popular concert by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, under the guiding hand of the distinguished Walter Henry Rothwell, will be played this afternoon at Philharmonic Auditorium. This series of concerts has grown so in public approval that the number of them has been extended to fourteen this year instead of the twelve of last season.

This concert marks the first appearance locally of Leonida Coroni, Italian baritone, who sings for the first time at these concerts, "O Vin Discaccia La Tristezza" (Wine, This Gloom Dispel) from the Ambroise Thomas opera "Hamlet," a deservedly popular flash of Gallic brilliancy, and "Promesse de mon Avenir," from Massenet's "Le Roi de Lahore."

Hugo Kaun's Festival March and Hymn to Liberty, none the less a fine compositional effort by reason of Wagnerian reminiscent quality, is also being heard for the first time at these concerts.

"Le coin des Enfants," Debussy's Children's Corner, written by the great composer while in an Alice-in-Wonderland mood, a delicious bit of musical drollery in six movements, is next programmed.

The almost overlooked "Intermezzo" from the vocal wealth of Leoncavallo's operatic masterpiece "I Pagliacci," is also having its first hearing.

AUDITORIUM SERIES OPENS TOMORROW

The opening of the third season of the Auditorium artist series tomorrow evening brings to Los Angeles for the first time in recital Vicente Ballester, Spanish baritone, of the Metropolitan Opera Company. George Leslie Smith, manager of the series, is presenting the popular baritone in response to the many requests of music patrons who heard him in opera in this city five years ago and during the recent season of the Los Angeles Civic Opera Association.

A man of imagination and temperament, the possessor of a remarkably beautiful voice, Mr. Ballester will bring a bit of old Spain to his audience Monday evening and will sing a group of Spanish folk songs, wearing the costume of the period of Francisco De Goya.

For his concert here Mr. Ballester has chosen the following program:

Come la Rose.....Gustave Lagu
Tristesse.....P. Paolo Thill
Cavatina, "Largo al Factotum," from Barbiere de Siviglia.....G. Rossini
Aria: Le Roi de Lahore.....Massenet
J'ai pleure en rave.....George Hue
"Forever Song," from "Cherry".....Hildi
Ay, Ay, Ay.....Campo, Rasa
Granadinas.....Serrano and Ollala
El Pano (Folk Dance of Murcia) Arranged by Kurt Schindler.
La Alegria del Batallon (Soldier Song)—Juan Serrano.
The Birth of Morn.....Franco Leoni
The Last Hour.....A. Walter Kramer
Silabare.....Mana-Zucca

Mr. Myron Jacobson, composer and pianist, will be Mr. Ballester's accompanist.

Tim Holt Seeks Film Fame in Roles That Won Dad Honors

Another hard-riding, fast-shooting buckaroo is bidding for honors in the cinematic western field. It's Tim Holt, 5-year-old son of Jack Holt, Paramount star, who is sharing his dad's dressing-room for his initial picture work in "The Enchanted Hill," featuring Jack and Florence Vidor. Tim doesn't don chaps and spurs for this picture, but his ambition is to play heroes of the wide open spaces when he grows up.

Holt senior's next starring vehicle will be "Sea Horses."

Comedy Star on Triumph Tour in Vaudeville Skit

None other than the diminutive musical comedy star, Miss Frances White is to headline the new Hillstreet Theater bill Monday. Miss White returns this time, after a triumphal season on Broadway in a cycle of songs and dances especially written for her by C. T. Donnally and Billy Joyce. It will be remembered that Miss White is a California girl, who went to New York and took the metropolis by the ears. No theatrical personage in a generation has scored such an emphatic hit as did this spritely little lady. She had been in New York less than a week when every theatrical manager there was offering here featured parts, so in turn she starred with Ziegfeld Follies, the Greenwich Village Follies. Then she was seen in a musical comedy called "Jimmie" and another, "The Hotel Mouse." But this did not prevent her from being seen in vaudeville, where she scored even a greater hit than in musical comedy. She has all the mannerisms and piquancy which vaudeville loves and so her present tour may quite rightly be called a "tour of triumph."

A gay feature is that of Joseph B. Stanley and company, who are to be seen in a fast-moving skit called "Waiting." Larry Stoutenburgh, one of the world's greatest and most spectacular pocket-billiard players, is another feature on the bill. He is a master of the "masse shot" and has it at his command in many tricks. Billy Farrell and company offer a novelty surprise in which he is assisted by his dad, Lids Gardner, and Nancy Reed. Bert and Hazel Skatelle return in their fascinating offering called "Just a Little Pep." Keo, Taki and Yoki present a novelty from the Orient that is filled with many feats of skill.

Ben Lyon, with Viola Dana, supported by Frank Mayo and Gladys Brockwell, are the featured players in First National's production called "The Necessary Evil," a story that answers the question whether or not a former sweetheart becomes a necessary evil when a girl is forced to marry a man she doesn't love. A newsreel, Fable and a comedy conclude.

NAME BRINGS TROUBLE

Mario Carillo Kept Busy Showing He's Not Leo of Stage

When Mario Carillo, who deserted his distinguished name of Carraciolo for the shortened version, hit upon his present screen name, he thought he was picking a distinctive cognomen, and one that wouldn't be confused with any other actor.

Now he discovers that about half the picture-goers who see him on the screen are sure that they have seen him in "Lombard, Ltd.," and other popular stage productions.

At least half of the fan mail he gets confuses him with the stage star Leo Carillo, and Mario is wearying of answering his letters to inform his unseen friends that he isn't Leo, has never been on the American stage, and is no relation to the distinguished Spanish actor.

Tomorrow is the Day

THE most astonishing demonstration ever held will be given throughout the country by dealers in Victor products. It will begin at 9 A. M. and continue throughout the day

It will introduce the most important contribution to music since the invention, 30 years ago, of the Victor Talking Machine

NOVEMBER 2ND . . . tomorrow . . . will be a day of days in the history of music. A new instrument will be played—an incredible instrument! When you have heard it, you will say that here at last is music such as you have never heard anywhere but in the living presence of great artists.

Don't let preconceived ideas rob you of this inspiring experience. The more critical your attitude toward music, the more astounded and enthusiastic you will be. There is a fullness, a richness, a magnificence of tone, and an exactness of detail that is incomparable. As the first notes reach your ears, you will understand why great artists, critics and music lovers have said in substance: "Gentlemen, this is music!"

Madame Schumann-Heink marveled. "I would not have thought it possible," she said. "Now you can hear an 's' when the singer sings it—something you could never hear before."

John Philip Sousa could hardly believe it. "That is music from the soul!" he exclaimed. "Those men are playing from their hearts! . . . Why, gentlemen, that is a band you hear!"

Fritz Kreisler, Paul Whiteman and other Victor artists, are equally enthusiastic. In fact, every man or woman who has listened to this astonishing instrument has been completely won by its matchless performance. It stands triumphant—a musical miracle.

It will take only a few minutes of your time tomorrow to call on the nearest dealer in Victor products, and listen to a demonstration, and in those few minutes you will be surprised beyond belief. As a lover of fine music, you will be overjoyed at the vision of pleasures in store. You'll find a new thrill in dance music, for the jazziest jazz takes on new color and new interest. Or, if vocal and instrumental solos, symphonies and choruses inspire you—then you, too, have the treat of a lifetime in store.

Beginning tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, and continuing all day . . . special demonstrations will be in progress in any store where Victor products are sold.

DEMANDS ON DIRECTOR GROW

More Versatility Is Required in Present Output of Pictures. What Effect Will the Bigger Features Have on Future of Men Now Gaining Success?

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

One picture success may make the fame of a director, but it really takes a lot of consistent and varied plugging nowadays to hold out against the tide of change in the films. For one thing the competition is getting constantly keener and more keen, and while some new reputations are likely to be made during the present season it is going to be interesting to watch whether they will be sustained.

The dangerous thing always has been the limitations in the scope of success. D. W. Grif- fith's outstanding triumphs have always been in huge his- torical features. Most of his smaller program films have at- tained little genuine atten- tion. He has always seemed to waste his time on these.

Rex Ingram's bigger tapes- tries have also been his best. He has generally missed when making a "Turn to the Right" or an "Arab."

Gloria Lived for Twenty Years in 'Coast of Folly'

Gloria Swanson lived twenty years during the filming of her latest picture, "The Coast of Folly," now showing at the Cameo. The story starts with the desertion of her millionaire husband. Gloria portrays Nadine Gathway, the wife. Twenty years later, Nadine's daughter, Joyce, also played by Miss Swanson, is shown as the heroine, the pet of the younger set at Palm Beach. "The Coast of Folly." Then Nadine returns as the Countess de Tauro. And, of course, Miss Swanson, with the aid of a make-up box and gorgeous clothes, is the countess.

"Stella Maris," in the 1925 version, is typically representative of today's motion pictures of the type striving for realism, with pathos and power. As the mill water never retraces to journey, neither can the camera remake a one-time success with anything like similar results. In an art which moves with such improbable rapidity, a lapse of eight years is equal to that of a century in one of the more static phases.

Universal's new production, directed by that unhampered-by-tradition Charles Brabin, has few points in common with the Pickford film. There is little of the sheer sweetness, none of the story-book attitude which characterized the earlier picture. And there is no apparent fear that this Mary who is playing the famed role will lose by giving a highly realistic, though at times acutely repulsive interpretation.

Fundamentally, "Stella Maris" is a play of contrasts. All that is sweet, sheltered, idealistic in girlhood brought into searing contact with bitterness, degradation, unbelievable cruelty. With what the realists term life.

From behind the impenetrable mask of another creature one of nature's mental and physical mistakes—Mary Philbin has gained an utterly unthought-of outlook on the world.

NEW PROBLEM FOR PRODUCER

Mothers Play Big Role in Back-Stage Scenes

Seemed Fine Thing at First, Declares Director

Balks When 'Chorines' Want Parents on Road

Another "unusual" has been discovered in our midst—the chorus girl's mother.

There's nothing to quite prepare first-nighters or even second-weekers for this unprecedented and hitherto unknown phenomenon. Whatever else may or may not be attributed to the long-suffering chorines, certainly it was not an ever-present maternal major-domo. Why, it has long been an accepted fact that they just sort of "happened," like the irrepressible Topsy.

Who'd ever expect the hard-shelled, wise-cracking, "what-I-don't-know-ain't" little ladies with the velvety, but clutching fingers, to assail theatrical magnates with a mother on leash? Certainly Gotham's show houses know the stage mothers not.

However, in Los Angeles, stage mothers are the chief problem, at least according to the story of one Edward E. Smith, who, you will remember, gave us, "No, No, Nanette," and "Lady, Be Good."

"To me it was one of the most surprising experiences I had ever had. Long before I began to cast for the choruses in these two shows I was convinced that as far as variety of material and selection I would have less difficulty here than in New York, but I never dreamed that the mothers would accompany them to the theater for all rehearsals and performances," declared Smith.

"At first I was delighted. It showed me a different class of girls than usually come to the shows in the East. These girls were young, very young, most of them just barely out of school, and some still in the throes of arithmetic and grammar. They were a sweet, refined unsophisticated lot and not embittered by knocking about a friendless city. I found that most of them lived with their parents.

"To a producer who has been forced to select his stage material from the opposite type this seemed like a god-send. I welcomed the mothers at rehearsals and when the shows opened I thought it great to have them about back stage to see that everything went right.

"But by degrees they began to

DE MILLE COMES INTO HIS OWN

Director Ahead of Time With "High Comedy"

William Now Perpetrating "Splendid Crime"

Admits His Materialistic Tendencies

BY ALMA WHITAKER

I caught William De Mille in the midst of perpetrating "The Splendid Crime," which has no relation to any for which brother Cecil has been responsible.

William's splendid crime is all his own, written directly for the screen by him, directed by him, cut and subtitled by him, and produced under his own production unit for Famous Players. It nears completion now, and after that he will go to New York to take in all the shows and ponder upon what shall be his last picture under his present contract with Famous Players, which calls for one more.

NEW BEBE

Bebe Daniels, a grown, improved Bebe, stars in this "Splendid Crime," a Bebe whom William long ago believed possible of great dramatic achievements.

Nothing could be more different than the screen work of these two brothers, William and Cecil De Mille. The one subtle, dainty, a bit poetic, cutey, artful, full of little nods and winks, and the other majestic, flamboyant, sensational, full of wallops. So that until Cecil betook himself off the Lasky lot to become a planet in his own universe, William was somewhat eclipsed. Twelve years of this partial eclipse of his sun has William survived.

AHEAD OF TIME

Then too, William was a bit before his time with his "high comedy" stuff. "Miss Lulu Bett," "What Every Woman Knows," "Grumpy," and the rest. Oh, they didn't lose money, you understand, but they never raked in the giddy millions like a Cecil De Mille production.

But now, you see, "high comedy" is becoming quite the vogue. "playing with life values" as William himself expresses it, instead of taking them either literally, farcically or melodramatically. It is a field in which William has long specialized, in his stage plays, in his literary work (for William was a writer and playwright before he was a motion-picture director.)

FUNDAMENTALLY AMERICAN

Now, since Chaplin's "Woman of Paris," Lubitsch is doing it, in a more foreign, sophisticated way. Monta Bell is doing it. Oh, lots of them. But William can do it with that fundamental consciousness of the American taste, which, in spite of everything, is essentially clean and puritanical. True, more sophisticates are cropping up all the time, but there are not enoudgh of them to make a blase, sophisicated picture pay yet, "as the politicians have discovered in another field," smiles William.

Voila, William should have come completely into his own. It should be his day, his hour. But there is the rub. William says he is 47, after twenty-five years of it, and curiously "As one grows older one doesn't want to be clever. I used to be a very clever young man. But now, although life seems to have less value for me personally, it seems to be more important in itself," he sighs, smiling, whiffing a cigar and seeming to be musing.

NEVER SUPPRESSED

In those days he used to know exactly what he wanted to do and go ahead and do it. No one has ever suppressed William—not even Famous Players, who have let him gang his own gait during most of his twelve years with them.

But now, William is rapidly transforming from a clever young man into a self-analytic philosopher with a tiresome conscience. What has he left to give to motion pictures? How best can he apply his knowledge and experience to serve them? What does he really want to do and is it a worthy want? He is examining these new schools that have emerged—the high comedy school, the lyrical, poetic school, ("Enchanted Cottage" stuff,) the problem drama school, ("Lady Windemere's Fan") the folk-lore school (Tol'able David,) and the ultrasophisticated school. ("The Marriage Circle,") and also debating whether there will ever be a school of satire . . . he thinks not, almost surely not.

FREE TO CHOOSE

It is curious, but William impressed me as being somewhat in the position of a clergyman, who has steadfastly preached an unequivocable creed for years and is now assailed by doubts . . . The glamour of Rome, the educated charm of the Episcopalians, the practical appeal of Christian Science, the sophistication of the Unitarians, the clamorous heartiness of the Salvation Army . . . who shall say which road leads to Heaven? He is so alarmingly free to make his choice . . .

And pictures now are presented to a nation of first-night critics! audiences, who know all the tricks every move in the game . . .

"Why not risk making a special sort of picture that might not pay?" I asked this wayfarer.

MATERIALISM

"Because," he said, with a very materialistic grin, "these are the last days of high profits and big salaries, and I want to feather my nest for my old age like the rest . . ."

Do you mean that dizzy, starry salaries are coming down, that the industry will soon be on a reasonable economic supply-and-demand basis?" I asked.

COMPROMISE

"I do. Just that. And that is when I will take six months off and work for nothing, and make that new kind of a picture. You know in my 'Splendid Crime,' after

POLLOCK'S NEW PLAY HAILED

"The Enemy" and Owen Davis Farce Enthusiastically Received at New York Premieres.

BY ALEXANDER WOOLCOTT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1925, New York World]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Of three new pieces which gave their first New York performances on Monday night, the one which evoked the most audible approval was a rip-roaring farce by Owen Davis called "Easy Come, Easy Go," to which he might, in the fashion of an elder day, have appended the subtitle: "Or Fun in a Sanitarium." In this tumultuous entertainment, that plump veteran, Victor Moore, has the best opportunity of his declining years and the excessive Otto Kruger is said to be much as usual.

This "Easy Come, Easy Go" is being billed by its producers as Owen Davis's hundredth play and I even hear that the cherished New York Times is celebrating this centennial by arranging to publish tomorrow a list of the 100 titles, beginning, I suppose, with "For A While Rose" (which was never produced at all) and running down through the melodramas of the "Nellie The Beautiful Cloak Model" era to "Ice Bound," which was written after Davis had gone in for art in a serious way and which won the Pulitzer Prize. All this is odd, because, under various names, Davis had written more than 100 plays twenty years ago.

THRILLER OF '95

The first play he ever had produced was the immensely successful thriller called "Through the Breakers," which was first acted back in 1895 and which ran off and on for nine seasons. At that time Davis was a needy young unknown from Bangor, Me., who had just spent four years as Harvard's supreme master of the 100-yard dash and two years as a lonesome and resentful mining engineer in the Kentucky mountains.

"Through the Breakers" was first exposed to comparatively public view in the operahouse at

MAUDE ADAMS VISITS KIPLING

Noted Actress in London Conferring on Filming of "Kim;" May Go to India

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Maude Adams has arrived in London with the object, it is said, of consulting Kipling about filming "Kim" and also to visit Sir James Barrie, in whose plays, notably "Peter Pan," she starred in the United States.

"Kim" is to be filmed in India and it is understood that Miss Adams, who holds part of the film rights of the famous novel, may go east to watch the making of the picture. The question of filming other Kipling stories also is scheduled for discussion.

JACK APPROVES WIFE'S CAREER

Estelle Taylor to Play in "Don Juan"

Mrs. Dempsey Cares Nothing for Sports

Refuses to Watch Husband Fight

That Estelle Taylor is going back into the movies is not a startling statement. They often do, even though married.

But that she returns with the full consent of her husband, with his deep interest in her latest venture, is a fact which reflects vast credit upon the girl, who has engineered such a change in viewpoint. Though feminine engineers engaged on marital projects are generally successful, at that.

IN "DON JUAN"

After an absence from the screen of many months, Miss Taylor has signed to appear with John Barrymore in "Don Juan," his latest production for the Warner Brothers.

Questioned concerning his opinion of his wife's re-entry into the films, Jack Dempsey parries, "That depends upon how much money she gets!"

REAL INTEREST

Then, pushing facetiousness aside, he declares that he is glad to have his wife affiliated with a reputable organization. He likes to be sure that she is appearing in good films, with a wide release.

Which is quite a commendable and comradely attitude for a man who declared that he did not wish his wife to have any other occupation that that of being Mrs. Jack Dempsey.

SEATS OF MIGHTY

Miss Taylor herself admits that she has found it rather a long task and a delicate one, this matter of convincing Jack that she really should return to the screen. So another feminine diplomat is qualified to take her place in the courts of the great.

"My last pictures were terrible!" she confesses.

"Not your fault, with everything against you—bad story, casting, everything," brusquely from Mr. Dempsey.

SINCERITY

How he means it! And Mrs. Dempsey apparently appreciated such loyalty. It is rather nice, and comfortable, to be backed up by real sincerity.

At any rate, Estelle Taylor's final work under De Mille was cut short by the fact that she simply could not learn to swim. Certainly, anyone who has similiarly floundered in the icy waters has a fellow feeling for her discomfort.

QUEEN OF WAVES

But it seems that an aquatic heroine was the order of the day on the De Mille set. Surf, not bath, just by way of variety.

For Estelle is no athlete. She rides little and swims less. Even the milder forms of exercise—golf, tennis—fail to interest her to any marked extent.

Nor has she ever staged a gay little excursion into her husband's realm, as the girls today have been known to do, just by way of a feminine burlesque on boxing—for diversion. Far from it.

ABSENT FROM FIGHTS

She doesn't go to many fights, even with the ever-present lure of the Hollywood, the Vernon and the Olympic arenas at her very door. And, emphatically, she does not attend when her husband is one of the participants. But who can blame her?

For a more pleasant occupation than watching one's husband in a gory encounter, however victorious he might be at the denouement, might well be pictured without any extravagant use of the imaginative powers.

NEW VENTURE

Just now, the chief center of interest at the Dempsey menage is not there at all, but down at the Barbara Inn, newly opened by its owner.

Dempsey is earnestly concerned with the new game of being a cafe proprietor and his wife is equally interested in the project. Like a boy with a new toy, the champion discusses the distracting questions of waitresses, of biscuits, of soups and pastries.

CO-OPERATION

There is a kindliness in his attitude toward those who work for him. And there is a pleasant cooperation on the part of his wife. When Jack was in the East, I wanted to make a picture in New York. But we couldn't time our schedules exactly. So finally I stayed here and Jack admitted that he liked having me at home—knowing that I was waiting there for him and that he could call me every night."

But now, with both at work here, he heartily approves.

So the Taylor-Dempsey partnership is a business arrangement, after all. A fair, unselfish exchange of ideas and a community of interests.

With the promise of smooth times to come.

the hero has trusted the crook heroine with the money and jewels, quite successfully, she in her turn decides to apply the same honor system to a small boy crook. She is about to hand him a bunch of bills and to say solemnly, "I trust you, Mickey," but then she looks at him quizzically and reduces the 'trust' to $2," he smiled naughtily . . .

Ah, I see, William De Mille will one day bank on a new public taste, make his dream picture, trust the people . . . but not until he has reduced the risk to the equivalent of $37.

Very human. Another touch of finesse for which William has a reputation, even as Sir James Barrie is permanently wedded to "whimsical."

Modern Conveniences in Africa

Darkest Africa is not so gloomy as it used to be. If Stanley were to return to make his famous journey again through the African jungle, he would find electric lights in some of the villages, and by waiting a few months he could even make part of the journey on the 328-mile electric railway now being built in the heart of the Belgian Congo.

tive repulsion for that which is unbeautiful, be it ever so pathetic, ever so innocent a cause of such displeasure.

UNKINDNESS

The Mary Philbin—who has always played her own exquisite unspoiled, appealing self—found that her fellow-workers treated her with distinct coldness when she appeared on the set as Unity, misshaken, grotesque, ill-clad.

"They turned their backs on me with a sort of disgust." Mary remembers her initiation into the inevitable treatment given ugliness with a smile which still shows a bit of the first pain. "I never had people treat me that way before. And it hurt, you know, at first.

UNITY'S HUMANITY

"But later, when they began to really know Unity, they liked her better than the other girl, Stella. For she was less cold, less reserved, more human."

Truly, a new Mary Philbin this Unity. With startling powers. For by no remote stretch of the imagination could one associate the fragile fairy princess—a prisoner in her tower because she is believed to be a hopeless cripple—with the dog-like Unity—whose very eyes tell of her crippled mentality.

EYES OF GENIUS

Unity's eyes are amazing things. They hold the hurt of a whipped dog, with rare moments of glistening, short-lived pleasure. Through the real Mary has been artfully changed by all manner of ingenious devices—her litheness, her beauty, her delicacy wiped out—only Mary's soul could change Mary's eyes. For Mary became Unity. And loved Unity.

Next to Mary Philbin's, the most remarkable work in "Stella Maris" is done by Gladys Brockwell. As the brutal wife of John, beloved of the two girls—in what widely different fashions—Miss Brockwell is a terrible figure.

HORRIBLE CRUELTY

Her cruelty—physical in her inhuman treatment of the waif who has fallen into her hands, mental in her fiendish delight in shattering the carefully built illusions of the world's goodness and beauty with which Stella has been surrounded since birth, is appalling. Really a notable characterization, by Miss Brockwell of the sadist.

The story of "Stella Maris" is quite simple. The real interest of the picture lies in the adroit telling. A little cripple, called "Star of the Sea" by those who love her, lives her secluded life completely apart from the sinister shadows. When, by an unhoped-for miracle, she is cured, Stella faces a world of which she has been told only the golden side.

UNEXPLAINED PAST

Two of her most loyal friends during the years of her invalidism are two men—John and Walter. The older, John, does not tell Stella of his wife, imprisoned because of her brutal treatment of a forlorn little girl servant. John has adopted Unity in an effort to make amends for his wife's mistreatment.

Then, after John, in a completely unguarded moment, has told Stella of his love and found that she returns it, the wife appears. Typically, she takes an inhuman pleasure in shattering the girl's shy, ecstatic dream.

Unity, loving the man who alone has been kind to her, sees in her singularly straight way, that she must dispose of this woman so that her master may be happy.

DENOUEMENT

She shoots the woman. And herself.

But Stella, whose love is of another kind, has turned from John—in her utter disillusion when her "castle of dreams has tumbled down"—to Walter. And, that Unity may not have died in vain, John wishes the boy and girl happiness together.

Other members of the cast include Jason Robards as Walter, Elliott Dexter as John, Phillips Smalley and Martha Matter.

MANY RUMORS ON BROADWAY

should Providence send a terrific hurricane just to unite in understanding a thoroughly inconsequential pair?

If the picture does big business, that is the answer. If this picture fails to draw, then some one should suggest to Jay Gelzer, Alan Crosland and the Warner Brothers that they seek more of their material from life and less from theatrical tricks.

"BRAVEHEART" SLATED

"The Phantom of the Opera" is speeding along toward the end of a fairly profitable run here. It was originally planned to keep it on at the Astor until the end of Universal's lease—which comes in two weeks' time. But the Universal company took a look at a production originally called "His People," but later renamed "Braveheart," threw their hats in the air and decided to put it on at the Astor for two weeks. So "The Phantom" must depart.

The first of the big annual blowouts of the picture season will come next Saturday night when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer give their ball. Some 300 chorus girls and players from the current revues in town as well as all the local picture celebrities are expected to attend. One of the most striking features of this annual ball is that it always happens to be given when there are no prominent Metro-Goldwyn players in town. So, the public must pay to feast its eyes on such investments attendants at motion-picture affairs as Dagmar Godowsky and lesser celebrities.

"ANNIE" DRAWS

"Annie Rooney," with added dally shows, is said to have drawn around $40,000 to the Strand box office its first week. Harold Lloyd has averaged about that for six consecutive weeks with "The Freshman" at the Colony. "Red Hot Tires," at Warner's, brought in something more than $13,000, and this is a small theater, where the average business is, I think, about $10,000, and where such highly advertised pictures as "Winds of Chance" have been known to draw as little as $4000.

Soon some New York studio will be busy getting ready to receive Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, who is going to star in a picture for F.B.O. Harry Hoyt is to be the director and the names of several important men in the picture business have been mentioned as candidates for the position of supervisor. This, it seems, is to be an ambitious production.

overrun the stage. They were in the way of the chorus exits and entrances. And of course each one thought her daughter ought to have some special privilege, and the nice motherly way they put it up to me made it sound ever so convincing and I readily agreed.

SEEK FAVORS

"The first thing I knew they were all coming for special dispensations and if I had gone on giving them I would have had the stars ousted from their dressing rooms and the chorines dressing there. So we had to bar the mothers from back stage.

"Right now I have the same problem in a different manner presenting itself to me. We are going on an eight months' tour with 'Nanette' and almost all the girls want to take their mothers with them. Many of them have never been away from home before and I agree with them, but for the life of me I don't see how I can do it. Anyone who knows anything about one and two-night stands knows that it is no small matter to keep the company in tow and get it and the baggage and scenery at the theater on time, let alone a company of mothers, who are less fitted to withstand the strain of the discomforts of such a tour."

Smith also waxes eloquent over the abundance of material which is now accessible to the producer here on the Coast. Where the girls formerly flocked to New York for stage careers they now are invading Hollywood in droves, and what with Fanchon and Marco revues and the variety of professional dancing schools, Smith says it is no task at all to obtain a well-trained and attractive troupe of girls for a musical comedy.

Watertown, Ct., a roomy theater reared in the days when the orchestra floor was likely to be a long, breathless flight of stairs above the street.

As the nervous and apprehensive young playwright sat incognito in the last row at the first matinee, he heard a near-by playgoer groan and mutter to his companion. "Well, well, this is certainly the rottenest show that ever came to this town." The abashed Davis sprang to his feet and went out into the foyer to calm himself.

But the calm would not come, for this first encounter with dramatic criticism had run into frayed nerves. So, after glowering for a moment at the framed photographs of "The Black Crook" on the wall, he stepped quietly back into the auditorium, slapped his severest critic on the shoulder and whispered in his ear that some one wanted to see him outside with an important message. The innocent critic obeyed the summons unsuspectingly. Once outside, he found himself confronted with a flushed and determined young man who was breathing heavily and who, without a word of explanation, hit him such a clip on the jaw that he fell the full length of the astonished opera-house stairs and, from his recumbent position in the lobby below, growled out into the kindly air of Watertown without venturing to ask why he had been subjected to this eccentric unpleasantness.

That was thirty years ago, and since then, I feel sure that Owen Davis has been mellowed by success, softened by praise. And yet the thought of incurring his displeasure may have been hovering in the back of my apprehensive mind on Monday night when his new play opened and may have been the unconscious reason why I sent Miss Allison Smith to review it and chose, instead, to attend the premiere of "The Man With a Load of Mischief."

LONDON HIT

This is the daintily indecorous comedy of 100 years ago which has been a vast success in London all year—a roguish, faintly poetic romance with its scene laid in a wayside inn on the road the fat coaches used to take when milord and lady would ride from bath up to London town.

Here it is played by Robert Loraine, Ruth Chatterton and Miss Chatterton's boyish English husband, Ralph Forbes. Mr. Forbes gives, I think, the best performance in a troupe so ill-advised and so incompetently directed that I greatly fear Mr. Duke's piquant and graceful comedy has been done to death in New York.

Mrs. Chatterton is an actress who distresses me, so resolute is her charm, so visible the mechanics of her acting. Why, she makes her effects in pathos and comedy with the acute visibility usually reserved for the artists who make the wheat cakes in the window of a Childs restaurant.

It is the general feeling hereabouts that "The Man With a Load of Mischief" would have repeated its London success in New York if it had not been so fallistiously played. It was impossible to sit through it Monday night without thinking how enchanting a comedy it would have seemed with its three central roles played by John Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore and Laurette Taylor. I was in the midst of such pleasant speculation when I smiled suddenly at the marked similarity between my own hoity-toity exigence and that of the man in the musical comedy who used to sing modestly: "All I Want is $15,000,000, Champagne Fountains Bubbling at My Feet."

NINE BEST PLAYS

Wherefore, of the plays still visible in New York, I still reserve my warmest recommendation for these:

"They Knew What They Wanted."
"Outside Looking In."
"The Glass Slipper."
"The Butter and Egg Man"
"The Vortex."
"Arms and the Man."
"Is Zat So?"
"The Green Hat."
"These Charming People."
Ashley Dukes, the London journalist who wrote "The Man With a Load of Mischief," is a dramatic critic in his own home town. Like most practitioners of that strange trade, he was daily taunted with those acrimonious neighbors who would ask him why, if he thought he knew such a lot about writing plays, he never wrote one himself. Stung past all endurance by these reflections, he wrote not one but several plays, but of these "The Man With a Load of Mischief" is the first to cross the Atlantic.

It is a quiet, reformed dramatic critic who wrote the seemingly successful drama called "The Enemy," which is now in possession of the Times Square Theater. The author of this four-act protest against the world's habit of going to war is the same Channing Pollock, who once used to write the libretto for Master Ziegfeld's "Follies" and who, in his less frivolous middle years, gave Christianity a helping hand by writing the hugely successfully melodrama called "The Fool."

The scene of "The Enemy" is a lanky professor's flat in Vienna, its time the five ugly years which began with the killing of an excruciatingly unimportant archduke in a town called Sarajevo. Patiently, ploddingly and with the painstaking reiteration which would suggest that Mr. Pollock did not expect his audience to be quite bright, he has written a literary or at least literate digest of the familiar, routine arguments on the folly and futility of war, skillfully weaving them all into a vehement, workmanlike show aimed directly at the level of intelligence and taste which has made "Abie's Irish Rose, a most popular play.

"ENEMY" HAILED

In the foreward to the printed text, in the jacket that enfolds it, in the programs at the theater and in the advertisements which shriek the success of "The Enemy" from all the newspapers in this town, various authorities are quoted as believing "The Enemy" to be a great play and as rather strongly hinting that it would do more for brotherly love in this old world of ours than anything that has been written since the Sermon on th Mount.

It is true that, on examination, the more enthusiastic of these proudly displayed tributes seem to come from such men as the pastor of some church in Rahway or the editor of "Who's Who in the Poultry Trade," men, at least, previously unrecognized as authorities in critic'sm of the seven arts. When "The Enemy" is boomed as the masterpiece of all time, remember that "The Crooked Friday," which recently expired in this town, has been billed as a huge success in London, where, as a matter of fact, it had actually achieved a run of five consecutive performances.

CRITIC REVIEWS NEW TRENDS

the lavish and glittering type of so-called society film, with one exception the biblical portion of "The Ten Commandments," which was his crowning achievement. It is a pity he has never gone further into this field.

Big pictures and little pictures have never gone well together in the experiences of this group. They always dealt more effectively in more elaborate values.

THE standard by which present progress is regulated seems to be variety. It is much the same as that which requires diversified characterizations from the actor. No two of the pictures, for example, that King Vidor has made (great success is being predicted for him, of course, in "The Big Parade") have possessed a close resemblance. He has made a number of very successful box-office films—others not so successful. It is a question, of course, what effect "The Big Parade" will have on his future activities—whether these will hereafter have to be confined to more epical type of films.

The same applies also in a degree to one or two other directors who are credited with recently having made elaborate and unique features, notably Millard Webb, who directed "The Sea Beast." He has heretofore engaged chiefly in program pictures with a modern setting. "The Sea Beast," of course, has quite an epical sweep.

The case of Kurt Rehfeld, who directed "The Viennese Medley," also promises to be very unique, since he was raised out of obscurity to direct one of the biggest features of the season. It is a little early as yet to hazard any predictions regarding this.

ONE thing in favor of the director now coming to the fore is the very element that seems to make his success more difficult—and that is the diversified character of pictures today. The field is much larger, and a bit made with one particular type of film does not seem to preclude other hits of entirely different character.

A few years ago the really big picture was rare. It caused sensational excitement. A director was always safe in adding his prestige by causing a similar sensational burst of excitement, and the type of story nearly always had to be somewhat similar.

Big pictures may still in a sense be rare, but they are giving constantly ingressing promise of being a consistent part of film entertainment. There is also, it would seem, much more latitude in the choice of stories.

'Gold Rush' in Final Showings After Long Run

Specially arranged in anticipation of the usual last-minute crowds, three final performances, at 1, 4 and 8:15 p.m. today will mark the end of the nineteen-weeks' run of "The Gold Rush" in Grauman's Egyptian Theater, after which the playhouse will be dark for four days in preparation for the world premiere of "The Big Parade" on next Thursday night.

Personally directing the staging of the mammoth patriotic prologue spectacle with which he will usher in "The Big Parade," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer supreme production, Sid Grauman is the busiest man in Hollywood.

Through arrangements made with Louis B. Mayer, Grauman has engaged Erte, designer of costumes and ballets, to create new designs in dress for his prologue players, and the European wizard of costumeris has been given carte blanche in the matter of expense. King Vidor, who directed the great World War production, has placed the entire personnel of the studio and all its equipment at the command of Grauman, wiz.

The drama stars John Gilbert with Renee Adoree, Karl Dane and Tom O'Brien, with Gilbert completing a trio, "The Three Musketeers," who present the humorous phases of the soldier's life with delicious dreilery while they exemplify its hardships and heroism. Hobart Bosworth, Claire Adams, Rosita Martini, Claire McDowell and Robert Ober complete a talented cast of principals.

Take Musical Hit to Old Broadway

dancing, acting—or you? Madeline Cam- "You" of "All for You," at the Mason, has all oine of "All For You?" Pretty? Oh, yes—and she speaks with a curious throaty quality which is very fascinating. No high soprano tinkle accompanies the small Miss Cameron's conversation. The absence of the tinkle is a very valuable asset.

When "All For You" has completed its mission of entertainment here it will depart for San Francisco and thence to New York where William Gaxton, Ted Doner and Madeline Cameron will enter the sacred precincts of Broadway with the musical comedy. It will be an entree into her "old home town" for Madeline Cameron. Here's hoping all the usual home-week celebrations take place

Photographer Gets Thrill in Steel Picture

Newsreel cameramen are not the only ones who get uncomfortable thrills in the course of their daily grinding, according to Devereaux Jennings, first cameraman on the Metropolitan picture "Steel Preferred."

Shades of Dante were recalled when Jennings was called upon to photograph a scene for the picture during a location trip to Pittsburgh steel mills. A "drag" of steel ladle cars, each containing tons of molten iron en route from blast furnace to Bessemer, was upturned on the side of a hill.

Jennings stood at the bottom of the hill, directly in the path of the seething flood. The crank was kept turning until the boiling fluid was within a few feet of the tripod, when a hasty retreat was made.

James Hogan is directing "Steel Preferred." William Boyd and Vera Reynolds head the cast, which also numbers Hobart Bosworth, Walter Long, Charley Murray, William V. Mong, Herbert Prior, Ben Turpin, Nigel Barrie and Helene Sullivan.

"TO THE LADIES" OPENS AT MAJESTIC

The sole opening on this week's theatrical menu takes place this afternoon at the Majestic, when the successful comedy, "To the Ladies," will be presented with Edward Everett Horton in the starring role. Horton will have as his leading lady Barbara Brown and a supporting cast of Majestic stock players.

Other attractions on the stage this week are: "What Price Glory," Playhouse; "No, No, Nanette," Biltmore; "White Cargo," Orange Grove; "All For You," Mason; "New Brooms," Morosco, and "White Collars," Egan.

At the Orpheum the Cansino dancers are the headliners, while the Hillstreet is featuring Frances White. The Burbank's new offering is "The Girl Friend's Revue," with an entire new company of players, and the Hippodrome gives its top spot this week to the Orange Blossom Band.

"Nanette" Leaves Soon

"No, No, Nanette," the popular musical comedy which has been entertaining Los Angeles theatergoers for so many months, starts on the last two weeks of its local engagement at the Biltmore today. Closing its doors upon the 15th inst. it will then begin an extensive tour of every large town west of Denver.

Nancy Welford and Taylor Holmes, two of the chief attractions of the piece, are to go with the company and promise to make "Tea for Two" and "I Want to Be Happy" as popular in other towns as they have in Los Angeles.

War Play Realistic

One of the most notable offerings of the present local theatrical season is "What Price Glory," new act, and yet their dancing is always their premier offering. This time they have Carmen Alphonso as their prima donna—an Argentine girl of undoubted talent—and Robert Roberts as their musical director. Hugh Skelley and Emma Helt and their company will be featured in the form of a miniature revue.

Arnaut brothers, the clowns, with their fiddles, their tumbling, their bird songs and the likes, have no competitors and are alone in their own field. Bill Lorraine and Sam Howard make a lot of fun; Equillo brothers are premier athletes and the Hedleys have a unique series of stunts. Nellie and Sara Kouns will remain a second week.

"White Cargo" Goes Soon

Local playgoers had better make haste in securing their reservations for Leon Gordon's sensational drama of the tropics, "White Cargo," which enters the sixteenth week of its engagement at the Wilkes Orange Grove tomorrow evening.

"White Cargo" is the stage adaptation of Ida Vera Simonton's famous novel, "Hell's Playground." It has for its cast Arthur Clayton as Harry Witzel, Leonard Mudie as Langford with George Pearce playing the role of the drunken doctor. Marcela Zabala is offering a wonderful portrayal of Tondeleyo, the half-caste Afro-French vampire.

Other members of the company are F. Finch Smiles, Harold Howard, Al Cunninghan, Adolf Milar, Robert Morse and James Jackson. The play deals with the serious side of life in the Nigerian tropics on the west coast of Africa.

"All For You" Novel

Thomas Wilkes's new musical comedy triumph, "All For You," is scoring success at the Mason. Not since "Topsy and Eva" has Wilkes produced such an elaborate and interesting musical comedy. The vehicle starring the Duncan sisters finds a worthy rival in "All For You."

The new Wilkes production is Charley Grapewin's adaptation of George V. Hobart's book, "Up the Line, John Henry." Arthur Freed is the composer of the music and the lyrics, which have already been taken to heart by appreciative Los Angeles. William Gaxton, Madeline Cameron and Ted Doner form the major battery of features. Eddie Allen, the Tiller English Rockets, and Arthur Kay's orchestra are winning enviable triumphs. The Tillers and Eddie Allen are furnishing Los Angeles with a new style of dance which is attracting the attention of local experts. There are seventy-five artists in "All For You," every one of them a finished dancer.

"To The Ladies" Opens

"To the Ladies," the unique comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, authors of "Beggar on Horseback," opens at the Majestic Theater at today's matinee, with Edward Everett Horton in the stellar role. As Leonard Beebe, a "white-collar" worker in a big piano factory, Horton has a distinctly different role from any he has essayed recently, but one that is expected to prove as successful as "Bill" Small in "The Sap."

Barbara Brown plays opposite Horton in the ingenue lead role, and the large supporting cast includes Franklin Pangborn, Henry Hall, John Graham, Ruth Stewart, Herbert Bethew, Florence Pierce Reed, Fred Cummings, Forrest Seabury and Burdell Jacobs.

Francis White at Hillstreet

Frances White, the diminutive musical-comedy star, will fill the top spot at the Hillstreet on the new bill tomorrow. Miss White will be seen in a cycle of lilting songs and snappy dances especially written for her by Billy Joyce, her accompanist, and C. T. Donnell.

Joseph B. Stanley, vaudeville's funster, is also featured and will be seen in a timely skit entitled "Waiting," in which he is supported by Jack Egan, Theo Brown and Florence Allen.

Larry Stoutenburgh, the champion cue expert, offers a novelty in which he masters the "masseshot." Billy Farrel and company offer a "Novelty of Surprises," while Bert and Hazel Skatelle are seen in a skating and dancing skit. Keo, Taki and Yoki are seen in a novelty from the Orient.

On the screen Ben Lyon and Viola Dana are featured in First National's production, "The Necessary Evil." A newsreel, comedy and a Fable conclude.

'Signpost' Role Has No Part in Pickford Plays

Although Mary Pickofrd fully realises the importance of character roles, she is firmly convinced that discretion should be shown in their selection. In other words, she advises against pictures telling their story in advance through making the various characters too obvious.

Miss Pickford, whose latest success, "Little Annie Rooney," is showing at the Million Dollar Theater, holds that there is as much art in the casting of the picture as in other details of making it.

"How," she argues, "can you expect to keep suspense in your story if everyone in the audience recognizes the villain on his first entrance? It no tonly destroys any possibilities of imagination as to his role, but it tears down the spectator's confidence in the heroine and hero. It is impossible to love and admire the leading characters in a picture if they look and act dumb-like.

"It would not take a smart person to recognize at first glance many of the screen villains today. Every boy and girl knows them, yet so frequently writers and picture makers expect the audience to have patience with a heroine who guilelessly hands over her fortune or risks her honor or her life to such a person.

"Whether he is a suave lawyer or a polished roue, he is too often recognized by the modern screen audience. As a result down goes all the carefully built edifice of the story and so far as sustained suspense is concerned, the picture might as well fade out then and there.

"The day of the signpost character is passing. There should be some variety in character types, especially the villains."

CLARA HORTON BUSY AT FILM WORK AGAIN

Since completing a featured role in Fox's "The Wheel," which marked her comeback to the screen after a two-year's absence, Clara Horton has been one of the busiest young ladies in Hollywood. She has had four feature productions, including the feminine lead with Fred Thomson in "All Around Frying Pan," the star role in "Speed Madness," a Bruce Mitchell production, and is now scheduled to again play with Fred Thomson in his forthcoming superspecial, as yet unnamed. A number of other big offers have been made the petite young blonde leading lady, who is again well on her way to the top of the film ladder of success.

QUINTET OF NEW FILMS MAKE DEBUT

The hardened picturegoer this week will have his choice of five new cinematic attractions at the local movie emporiums. The screen version of Channing Pollock's famous play, "The Fool," opened at the Criterion yesterday, with Edmund Lowe featured. At Loew's "Exchange of Wives," with Renee Adoree, Eleanor Boardman, Lew Cody and Creighton Hale in the principal roles, holds the screen this week. "New Brooms," the celluloid counterpart of the play now running on the stage at the Morosco, is the current attraction at the Metropolitan, with Neil Hamilton and Bessie Love featured. The Forum is offering Universal's latest Reginald Denny comedy-drama, "Where Am I?" with Marian Nixon and Pauline Garon playing the feminine leads.

The Egyptian in Hollywood will give three more screenings of Charlie Chaplin in "The Gold Rush" this afternoon and tonight, following which the house will be dark until Thursday night, at which time Sid Grauman will stage another of the brilliant premieres for which he is noted. The new opening will be that of "The Big Parade," dynamic war drama featuring John Gilbert and Renee Adoree.

Photoplays which remain or return to local theaters are "Little Annie Rooney," Million Dollar; "The Phantom of the Opera," Rialto; "The Coming of Amos," Tally's; "Lightnin'," Boulevard, and "The Midshipman," Alhambra.

Comedy at Forum

Reginald Denny is the feature attraction in his latest farce comedy production "Where Was I?" written for the screen by Melville Brown and Rex Taylor. With the star are seen such players as Chester Conklin, Marion Nixon, Pauline Garon, Lee Moran, Otis Harlan, Tyrone Power, William H. Turner, Arthur Lake and others. The Forum will offer a bill of added events, including the ensemble orchestra under the direction of Ted Henkel; Frederic Burr Scholl at the organ, news events, and other novelties.

Chaplin Film Closes

"The Gold Rush," Charlie Chaplin's comedy-drama of the Klondike, will close its run in Grauman's Egyptian Theater today in three performances at 1, 4 and 8:15 o'clock, marking the end of the nineteenth week it has held the favor of the public. For four days, starting tomorrow the Egyptian will be dark, while preparations are being completed for the world premiere of "The Big Parade," directed by King Vidor, scheduled for Thursday night, to be ushered in with a patriotic prologue spectacle staged by Sid Grauman.

Father Love Featured

There are loves between men and women; there is love between a mother and her daughter, love of the mother for her son and the deep, sensitive love of a father for his boy.

It is the latter type which figures prominently, as well as two delicious romances between the hero and two heroines in William De Mille's screen version of Frank Craven's new play, "New Brooms," featuring Neil Hamilton, Bessie Love and Phyllis Haver. The picture is showing at the Metropolitan this week. On the stage, Frank L. Newman offers Waring's Pennsylvanians as the main feature of a big syncopated revue, "Halloween Revels." This is the final week of the collegiates in Los Angeles.

Mary Plays Tomboy

At the Million Dollar Theater, Mary Pickford's latest success, "Little Annie Rooney," is now in its second week. She plays the role of a lovable Irish tomboy, the youthful daughter of a New York policeman.

"Phantom" Still Thrills

At the Rialto Theater, "The Phantom of the Opera" is now in its fourth successful week. Lon Chaney appears in the title role of this picture of thrills and mystery. Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry are featured with him.

"The Fool" Opens

"The Fool" in the film version from Channing Pollock's famous play opens this week at the Criterion Theater, with Edmund Lowe in the principal role.

The story concerns itself with a curate who endeavors to live like Christ, and the misunderstandings the hardships he goes through in maintaining his principle in the face of ostracism by family and the girl to whom he is engaged.

Edmund Goulding is responsible for the scenario while the production was directed by Harry Millarde.

Domestic Comedy at Loew's

Treating an old, old subject in a novel fashion is the method employed for "Exchange of Wives," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which opened yesterday at Loew's.

Two married couples and their dissatisfaction with their respective spouses creates the basis for the story, which was directed by Hobart Henley. Renee Adoree, Eleanor Boardman, Lew Cody and Creighton Hale play the leading roles.

ANTONIO TALKS ABOUT MOTHER

Visit Home Overshadowed Film Triumphs

Tells of Screening Ibanez's "Mare Nostrum"

Declines Offers to Revel in Domesticity

Of course, this should be a story of Antonio Moreno's foreign triumphs—and when Ibanez's new picture, "Mare Nostrum," is released, we shall know how triumphant they were.

But the chief thing Tony and Daisy Moreno talk about, now that they are safely home again, after ten months of wandering through France, Spain and Italy, is the joyous triumph of Tony's mother in Spain.

You see, it is fifteen years since the boy who delivered buns and bread at 5 a.m. to help support a widowed mother, left for far-away America to make his fortune. Even then the nice American who saw that Tony got an education, only had very modest ideas for our hero. Tony was put on a farm—and oh, he must have been a most unsuitably handsome farmer's boy. Then he took to electricity, and came the great day when he became electrician's helper to an important stage-lighting mechanic at a New York theater.

That's where the leading lady saw him and decided his charms were needed otherwhere. And that sort of thing just naturally leads to heroic roles in motion pictures.

HAPPIEST MOMENT

So it was the successful, glamorful motion-picture star that Tony's mamma welcomed home in sunny Spain after fifteen years, accompanied by his wife, Daisy—a daughter-in-law whom she already loved by correspondence.

"The happiest moment of my life was when I introduced the two women I loved most in all the world to each other," says Tony.

And this time the parting had none of the poignant anxiety of that other parting. For Tony and Daisy found time amidst their social and professional triumphs to build mother a wonderful new home.

Tony says: "France is lovely, but a trifle obviously out for American dollars. Spain is a sleeping beauty, and Italy is thriving under Mussolini's castor-oil treatment."

FIRST TIME SCREENED

Those three countries form the scenes for "Mare Nostrum." Many of the scenes, notably the ruins of Pompeii and the temples at Paestum, had never been screened before.

Ibanez's famous picture, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which lifted both Rudolph Valentino and Director Rex Ingram to fame, had this French-Spanish influence, too.

Once again Rex Ingram is directing an Ibanez picture, but this time Antonio Moreno replaces Valentino in the leading role. The lovely Alice Terry is the heroine. Tony says they were all delightful to work with, and in all the conversations he had with Ibanez, that gentleman never once introduced the subject of his hectic antiroyal politics.

Ibanez spent a great deal of time at the studios, and expressed himself as superlatively satisfied with Rex Ingram's work. He also said he considered Tony an ideal choice for the leading role. Tony did not tell me that bit, but someone who loves him did.

TONY WAS SEASICK

I was shocked to discover that our romantic screen Adonis was quite vulgarly seasick going over on the steamship Paris—but, of course, the Atlantic can be so crude in winter. His amoure propre was satisfactorily restored on the homeward-bound trip on the George Washington.

Intriguing rumors to the contrary, Mr. and Mrs. Moreno assure me that the only stork that caught up with them was the jade and diamond affair on Mrs. Moreno's very French chapeau. France, you know, always did have perverse ideas about storks.

Anyway, they have both come home looking handsomer, younger, jollier than ever. Tony says he doesn't know what his next picture will be, and anyway he is going to revel in domesticity for a while. He resisted two glamorful offers in New York and one in England to play with Dorothy Gish—but, gosh, what's the use of having a lovely showplace home in Los Angeles, if you don't get back and live in it once in a while?

Neil Hamilton Staked All on Game He Liked

Because he couldn't get his mind on his work, Neil Hamilton was fired from several jobs and finally became an actor. His first job was in Henry Ford's factory. He lasted there eleven weeks. Prior to that time, he had done a few bits on the stage, and he simply couldn't get the stage out of his mind. His next job was as a cigar clerk. One day the man who owned the stand asked him if he intended to make the cigar game his business.

"Not if I can help it," Hamilton answered bluntly.

"I thought as much," replied his boss—and again Neil got the air.

Realizing he might as well give up everything except the game that he'd his heart and thoughts, the leading man who is featured in William De Mille's "New Brooms," at the Metropolitan this week, decided to stake everything on the chance.

"I was desperate," he recounts. "My ambitions, the girl I loved, all seemed to be beyond human reach. I decided to go up or crash. The girl lent me enough money to get to Boston. A chance offered itself there and I played several weeks. I wired the girl and we were married. Then a week later I had a notice that the show was to close. There I was—bride and no job.

"Some one suggested I try out for a part with D. W. Griffith. I had the test made to play in "The White Rose." Willie Collier, Jr., also took a test. Fate smiled and I got the part. It was the happiest day of my life when I told my bride. I signed a contract. Griffith was wonderful and it was a privilege to work with him. That was the start, and I guess the fans know the rest."

Although he has been in pictures for only a little over a year, Hamilton ranks among the front line of featured players.

FILMDOM TO TURN OUT EN MASSE FOR "BIG PARADE"

Sid Grauman Planning Most Elaborate Prologue in History of Egyptian

Tom O'Brien, John Gilbert and Karl Dane

Principals of "The Big Parade," opening at Grauman's Egyptian Theater next Thursday night.

FRED NIBLO will act as master of ceremonies next Thursday night at Sid Grauman's world premiere of "The Big Parade," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of the World War, which promises to bring out the most glittering assemblage of film celebrities and the socially elite the Hollywood playhouse has ever known.

Sid Grauman urges those attending the premiere to arrange to be in their seats before 8:15 o'clock because the length of the show makes a prompt opening necessary. Grauman has staged the biggest prologue ever to grace the Egyptian and the picture itself is said to be the most expensive ever run there.

Late arrivals who are not in their seats by 8:15 o'clock will not be ushered in until the conclusion of the prologue. Practically every film celebrity in cinemaland already has reserved seats for the premiere.

The premiere audience will be the first to have a peep at the mammoth patriotic prologue introducing 150 persons on the stage, which has been engrossing Grauman's attention for several weeks.

"The Big Parade," which was directed by King Vidor, is heralded as the most dynamically thrilling reproduction of the great conflict ever to be filmed, and thousands of actual overseas veterans re-enacted their experiences in the screening.

It stars John Gilbert, as the scion of the wealthy family, with Renee Adoree, as Melisande, the French mademoiselle, in a romance of vivid realism.

Karl Dane, as "Slim," the corporal who goes to his death with a fresh cud of tobacco in his mouth, and Tom O'Brien, as "Bull," the former East Side bartender, with Gilbert, as the trio of buddies, graphically portray the humor of the tribulations of a soldier's life.

Rosita Marstini is seen as the French mother, Claire McDowell and Hobart Bosworth play the American parents and Claire Adams portrays the "girl he left behind him," with Robert Ober appearing as the hero's brother who stayed at home.

PASADENANS PLAN BIG YEAR

The Pasadena Community Players, who are now presenting a dramatic novelty in a Russian comedy, "The Main Thing," which is to run all this week in its first English-speaking production, seem embarked upon the most brilliant season in their history.

Having recently given first production on any stage to the exceedingly beautiful and impressive "Pharaoh's Daughter" by Dr. and Mrs. Allison Gaw, and being now engaged with Yevreynov's "Main Thing," which is attracting wide attention, the Community Players will not stop here in their career of original production but have in preparation "The Devil in the Cheese." This play, never before done, is by Tom Cushing and is a fantastic comedy concerning the remarkable adventures of a group of Kansas tourists in Northern Greece. It will be presented from the 12th to 21st inst.

SHAKESPEARE PLAYS

The program for the year includes a number of other premieres and many first Pacific Coast presentations of eastern successes. For instance, the first "Hamlet" in modern clothes at which this vicinity has looked will be done at the Pasadena playhouse late this month. It will be alternated with "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in the Elizabethan manner, the two Shakespeare plays to run for the customary eleven performances.

MANY PREMIERES

"Head Acres" by Colin Campbell Cooper is another forthcoming premiere. Negotiations are under way with the New York Theater Guild to obtain Shaw's "Saint Joan." Among the plays for the year which never before have been seen on the Coast are "The Makropolis Secret," by Karl Kapek, "Sun Up," by Lulu Vollmer; "Right You Are," by Llugi Pirandello; "Mr. Pitt," by Zona Gale; "Minick," by Edna Ferber; "The Guardsman" and "Fashions for Men," by Franz Molnar; "The Potters," by J. P. McEvoy; "In the Next Room," by Eleanor Robson and Harriet Ford.

Ibsen's "Emperor and Galilean" will later in the year be given its first production in America.

Among other dramatic novelties scheduled for the year at the Community Playhouse are: "Why Not?" by Jesse Lynch Williams; "The Vegetable," by F. Scott Fitzgerald; "The Youngest," by Phillip Barry; "Mid-channel," by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero; "The Angel in the House," by Eden Phillpotts and Basil MacDonald Hastings; "The Silent Woman," by Ben Jonson; "The Beaux Stratagem," by George Farquhar; "Seven Sisters," from the Hungarian; "Hobson's Choice," by Harold Brighouse and "Loyalties," by John Galsworthy.

Cansinos Will Appear in New Orpheum Act

Since the advent of the famous Cansino family into American vaudeville ten years ago, there has been a new conception of what Spanish dancing really comprises. There was a hazy idea that any dancer who comes out and sports a mantilla while essaying to click the castanets is a Spanish dancer. The Cansinos changed all that.

In Madrid for generations the name of Cansino has been associated with the finest ballet presentations, and the father of the Cansinos is even yet the leading ballet instructor in Spain. The two eldest children of this family, Elisa and Eduardo, are appearing together again at the Orpheum Theater this week. Their new act is typically Spanish, with one concession to American influence, a "Spanish Charleston" of their own invention.

The bewitching, dark-eyed Elisa is the only girl in the family of seven children, and so far she has remained true to her career. With the designing of new costumes, rehearsing new steps and working steadily for months, she claims that she has not time for "hoosbands." But there is too merry a light in her eyes and she is too charming a girl for this statement to be taken seriously.

ENTERED DRAMATICS BY MERE ACCIDENT

Dorothy Phillips

The study of one art begets interest in another, according to Dorothy Phillips, whose last production, "Without Mercy," a George Melford production, is scheduled for an early showing at the Forum Theater.

At the same time Miss Phillips admits that her interest in matters of art serves another purpose, since it furnishes her with a necessary diversion.

Until Miss Phillips became a student at Shaftesbury College in Baltimore, her ambitions were to become a clay modeler. She worked at this diligently. In college she joined the dramatic class merely for a diversion and in the hope that it would broaden her interest in her chosen work.

After one or two performances in college dramatics, Miss Phillips realized that on the stage and not in modeling clay objects lay her future.

"If I had not believed in one art as a diversion for another," says Miss Phillips, "I never would have attempted to master dramatics."

ACTOR PLAYS MANY ROLES IN REAL LIFE

Graham Soldier, Playwright, Cartoonist and Director in Interesting Career

John Graham, the young English actor, who has an important role in support of Edward Everett Horton in the "different" comedy, "To the Ladies," which opens at the Majestic Theater this afternoon, has been, at various times in his interesting career, soldier, cartoonist, playwright, stage director and actor.

While acting major in command of a battalion of the Sherwood Foresters, or "Notts and Derbies," as most American soldiers knew the Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire Regiment with which Graham began service in France in 1914, Graham discovered a great deal of professional threatrical talent in his brigade, then fighting in the Ypres salient.

He organized a theatrical troupe, named it the "Whiza-bangs," and directed performances in a big French barn, the soldiers having feminine parts appearing in costumes borrowed from the French peasants or fashioned from colored paper obtained through the regimental canteen.

Among the plays presented under these handicaps were "Nothing but the Truth," "Raffles," "Charley's Aunt" and "The Private Secretary."

When the brigade went into rest quarters near Rouen, nurses from the base hospitals, many of whom were recruited from the London stage, played the feminine roles, and these performances were given in real theaters.

Basil Dean, the English theatrical producer, chancing to see one of the performances of Graham's troupe, seized upon the idea and organized a number of ... in England which he ... own expense to entertain ... glish soldiers in France.

PARALLEL IN TWO STAGE PLAYS SEEN

"What Price Glory" and "Rain" Curiously Alike in Their Inception

A curious parallel between two of the outstanding dramatic successes of the American stage has been pointed out by Lillian Albertson in connection with the local production of "What Price Glory," the war play now running in Los Angeles at the Playhouse.

This is exactly paralleled by the story of "Rain," the play which packed New York three years ago, and enjoyed one of the longest runs in theater history. Incidentally, it was a collaboration, written in theater form by John Colton and Clemence Randolph from a short story by Somerset Maugham. To make the parallel complete, it was their first play. The success of these two works, Miss Albertson points out, is an indication that America is not only becoming more broadminded, but definitely more intelligent. Neither production would have been permitted, or if they had been, would have succeeded ten, or even five years ago, she declares.

Director Chose New Method Wives Exchan

Hobart Henley altered his method of direction when filming "Exchange of Wives," now playing at Loew's State. In this picture Henley had a cast of only two people, and they all appear in nearly every scene. So he began shooting at the beginning of the story, not at the end or in the middle, as is so often the case, filmed the scenes in almost exact sequence that they now appear on the screen.

Henley believes that the players are able to get into the spirit of the story and work up synchronism for their roles to a far greater degree if they are played in the order in which they naturally appear.

The four leading roles in "Exchange of Wives" are portrayed by Eleanor Boardman, Low Cody and Renee Adoree and Creighton Hale.

VIRGINIA VALLI BACK FROM WORK IN ORIENT

Virginia Valli is back in Hollywood, but she's keeping her trunks packed. During the last year she has become almost a professional vagabond. Following numerous trips around the United States she journeyed to Europe, where she was featured in "The Folies Bergere," produced in both Paris and Germany. After her return to Hollywood from abroad she left immediately for Portland, Or., to play the featured role in Lewis Milestone's "To the Brave." Her next picture will be "Wives for Sale," a Universal picture to be directed by Svend Gade.

Accident Gag Gives Picture Extra Comedy

Often incidents which seem to be carefully thought-out bits of action in comedies are really accidents which happen in the making of a motion picture.

One striking bit in Reginald Denny's new fun vehicle, "Where Was I?" now at the Forum Theater, was the result of an accident and William Seiter, the director, was quick to take advantage of it.

The scene shows Denny being carried out of his home by the police at the instigation of a taxi driver, played by Chester Conklin. Passing a thermos bottle on the table, Denny grabbed it. It was knocked from his hand and struck a tumbler. A piece of the glass broken as a result flew through the air hitting Conklin in the face in such a way it neatly trimmed off a section of his false mustache.

It is a real funny bit in the scene and probably could never have been realized even with days of rehearsal. It was just one of the lucky "breaks" that sometimes happen in picture making as well as baseball games.

Syd Chaplin in Feminine Garb Funniest Ever

Syd Chaplin, starring in "The Man on the Box," which started yesterday at Tally's Theater, is said to be even funnier than "Charley's Aunt," his last production. In one sequence Syd impersonates a flirtatious maid and with his handsome features disguised with wig and make-up was quite an attractive figure on the Warner lot during the making of the picture.

It is told that Bull Montana, seeing this young lady from a distance, asked for an introduction. At any rate, the photoplay is claimed by reviewers to be a complete "knockout."

"The Man on the Box" is an adaptation of the novel and play from the pen of Harold MacGrath. The story concerns the romantically amusing adventures of Bob Warburton, young, wealthy and charming, who hires out as a coachman.

Charles "Chuck" Reisner directed the production.

Bay City Chief Awaits Return of His Protege

Chief of Police Dan O'Brien of San Francisco is waiting eagerly for the return to the Golden Gate of William Gaxton, who is seen with Madeline Cameron, Ted Doner and others in Tom Wilkes's musical comedy "All For You" at the Mason.

Chief Dan is not planning to clip the handcuffs on Bill and lead him to the city bastile. Gaxton was born in San Francisco and raised under the watchful eye of the much beloved police chief and under the protection of O'Brien. Bill peddled, at an early age, all kinds of candy to the coppers on Market, Geary, and Mason streets for a long time until he graduated into the newsboys' circle.

As a vender of newspapers, Bill was considered a huge success by the San Francisco press. All that time Chief O'Brien was protecting his tiny friend with results that the two grew to be very close and attached to each other.

When Bill decided to capitalize on a talent for music, dancing and dramatic art, Chief O'Brien put him on a train and sent him to New York with instructions not to return unless he came back a successful stage star.

That was a number of years ago. O'Brien was a police captain then. Later Gaxton returned to San Francisco as a vaudeville headliner. In celebration of the event, O'Brien staged a big reception for the star in his offices at the police station.

And when Gaxton returns to San Francisco following the brief engagement of "All For You" at the Mason here after three years' absence, O'Brien, according to some of Bill's closest friends there, is planning one of the biggest celebrations known in police annals of that city.

Battle Scene Re-enacted in Goldwyn Film

It was a hideous night of carnage. Ronald Colman and Wyndham Standing were both seriously wounded as the roar of artillery, the whine of shrapnel and the staccato rattle of machine-gun fire reverberated over the rolling, erstwhile peaceful slopes of the California coast. All night the battle raged.

For George Fitzmaurice and his two valiant armies were conducting a reproduction of one of the mightiest battles of the recent war as a sequence of "The Dark Angel," the Samuel Goldwyn production which opens a three-day engagement at the West Coast Boulevard Theater today.

Hundreds of ex-doughboys composed the two armies. With the dawn truce was declared, the troops were discharged and another thrilling episode of this great drama was completed.

POPULARITY OF IDEA PLAY PROVES WORTH

There is arising among the better class of movie fans a growing antagonism against the raw play of sex appeal. Are they shocked or bored, and famishing for an idea? What is the value of the play of idea as against a play of sex appeal or pure amusement? These questions were put to Zelah Covington, who created the role of the elder Thayer in "White Collars" at the Egan Theater, and who wrote "The Elixir of Youth." Mr. Covington in answer to this question put to him said, "There is at the present time good ground for judgment for we have had for the past ninety-two weeks a comedy not based upon sex for its appeal, neither does it outlaugh many passing comedies of the season, yet this play which launches an idea, has broken every long-run record ever known outside of New York."

Who Remembers Lon Chaney as Western Heavy?

The career of Lon Chaney, playing the title role in "The Phantom of the Opera," which now is in its fourth week at the Rialto Theater, furnishes striking proof that few persons ever become stars or reach big success on the stage or screen without hard work. Today he is one of the most successful of character actors in pictures and his position was won only after prolonged application.

For years he was a singer and comedian in a musical comedy. His entrance into pictures was no occasion for fireworks. For a long time he did western heavies for Universal. And it was the roughest kind of work. When he was not riding bucking broncheo—and in the early days of pictures the broncheo really bucked—the cowboy was utilized to fit in anywhere. Often he acted as property man and at other times he was camp chef.

Chaney was one of the best heavies of the western type. An athlete, he put up some savage fights and in more than one of these contests he helped make the film realistic at the expense of sore hurts.

His skill in make-up helped to bring him to the foremost rank of actors. Chaney is one of the many who made the first leap toward popular recognition in the late George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man."

Mind-Reading Act Featured at Hippodrome

The Great Koran, heralded as one of the most amazing mind readers the American stage has yet known, has been booked for a week's engagement, starting Sunday at the Hippodrome Theater.

Literally more than 1,000,000 questions have been answered by the Great Koran, on the stage, through the press and by mail. His predictions have proven startlingly accurate. In one prediction for which he became nationally famous, he set the exact date of the death of the late Woodrow Wilson, three years before its occurrence.

The audience, in his performance, is invited to write questions on slips of blank paper and place them in a glass bowl in the theater lobby. The bowl is then taken down the aisle, placed on the stage and the Great Koran, without even looking at the bowl, proceeds to answer the questions within. He is assisted by a bevy of pretty East Indian maidens.

"Marriage Morals" is the film feature with Tom Moore and Ann Forrest, and surrounding short subjects comprise the photoplay portion of the entertainment.

SCENARIST CLAIMS FILM HOKUM IS ON THE WANE

Motion pictures, insists Anthony Coldeway, scenarist, who is now working on the film version of "Fifth Avenue," which Belasco Productions are filming for the Producers' Distributing Corporation, are little by little freeing themselves from the thralldom of hokum.

As proof of his statement Coldeway declares that he has seen pictures during the past year where cinema mothers did not fall on their knees in greeting youthful offspring; scenes which domestic revelations were made other than at the dining table to the end that the entire family might leave the table, food untouched, and at least one instance in which the heroine listened to a proposal of marriage without registering complete surprise.

Wins Success in First Role She Portrays

A thorough education in any line of endeavor will bring success, is the belief of Marcela Zabala, the charming half-caste vampire in Leon Gordon's dramatic success, "White Cargo," now in its sixteenth week at the Wilkes Orange Grove.

Beginning at the very bottom of the theatrical ladder, Miss Zabala studied every angle of the dramatic art under the direction of Marta Oatman. Graduating from the local drama school, she was selected by Thomas Wilkes to portray the characteristic role in the current Orange Grove attraction.

Miss Zabala is a fine example of the thoroughly educated dramatic artist, Wilkes declares. A training similar to that obtained by her furnishes the artist with finesse and poise seldom found in players of the old school, he says. Miss Zabala is the daughter of Don Zabala, prominent Spaniard of early California. She was born in San Francisco and is heiress to Don Zabala's many California acres.

Two Very Small Towns

Jimmy Savo says his native town was so small they had to stand the rhubarb on end to keep it within city limits. Fred Allen says the town that brags about being his birthplace is so small that "Abie's Irish Rose" played in it only two weeks.—[Boston Transcript.

Charlotte Glad She Belongs to This Generation

"The day of the so-called flapper is past," says Charlotte Treadway, leading lady in "New Brooms," at the Morosco, "and in her place is the real American girl.

"There are just as sweet girls in our day as in our grandmother's day. I cannot see where all this 'hard-hearted Hannah' talk is warranted.

"It may be that they are more frank than in our grandmothers' time, but hearts beneath georgette blouses are as true as under dimity.

"Woman of today are self-assured, capable, cool and in a situation where it takes quick thinking and poise they are ready and at attention.

"I have never heard of our present-day girl fainting away in an emergency—she is on hand as a surgeon and as quick-thinking. The biggest boost for the girl of today that I can think of is that we are all glad we are of this generation."

Black-and-white seems to be a favored combination in jewelry. Often imitation jet and seed pearls are used together.

THE NEW

IN STORES AND HOMES

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

By Olive Gray

Can the Can'ter

Have you a "can'ter" in your home? If so, can him and let the family progress. The can'ter is always on hand, to declare that whatever is proposed, can't be done; or if done, can't be done in the way proposed. Explode an enthusiasm-filled idea and it is forthwith pricked by the needle of the can'ter, whereupon its possibility oozes out, like gas from a punctured balloon. The family possessing a can'ter, should build a can't garage in the back yard, where his or her can'ting would not stumble the gait of the other members.

Annie Rooney Hats

Color personified has come to roost on the new Annie Rooney hats. Tight little chapeaux are these, deftly employing pastel tones in blue, green, rose, yellow and gleeful metallic gold. In fact the more omnicolored, the more Rooneyish are these head-clasping hats—and as popular are they as the Pickford production whose name they honor.

The Pup is at Large

The stories of its invention are as many and as varied as are the spots upon his satiny hide—the loose pup, at large in many of the leading stores. Most interesting is the tale—no not tail—to the effect that a youthful husband, bringing to California an invalid bride, sought to while away her wearisome hours by some toyful, joyful entertainment. In this attempt, he put together the dog 'o-cloth, which so soon as seen, was pronounced a source of laughter. The awkward gambols of a puppy with sprawling body and overgrown feet, are as nothing compared with the antics of this fabricated canize. Directly he became a fad with those who clot themselves in the latest know. He will not exactly stand, nor quite lie down; he will not run, but seems to muscularly overflow; he may be arm-carried with ease and he requires no dog-biscuit to keep him in prime condition. Best of all, he is flea-proof and still further to his credit, his bark is inaudible as though Maxim silenced.

Color Will Not Subdue

At the beginning of the season, Fashion's forecast was for colors darker, more subdued, than heretofore. But sometimes Fashion, dictatorial though she may be, cannot control her subjects. Even though the darker tones and the deeper reds, greens and rose tints as well as blue, have become popular, lighter and more vivid colors still persist. And, it is noticeable that the rich wine shades stand out with boldness not heretofore shown in such colors; while, almost daily, new and undreamed-of crimsons, greens and blues appear. One thing which renders these colors more vivid, even when verging upon the somber purples and plums, is that the cloths are usually of pile fabric, either silken, wool or mixtures, which lends to color a deeper, more vital impression.

Bagging

Along toward holiday time, we begin thinking how—yes, we begin arming ourselves for porting home our loot. A mere purse, hand-bag or vanity of ordinary dimensions, does not begin the story, or the store-ing. One must provide much carry-all, for much treasure since the advent of smaller articles of the sort, many take the place of one. Each day's advance upon Christmas-tide, may increase not only the number, but the size of these. The climax by the four carried by each of us during a recent gifting tour, was a capacious bag fashioned from a little Mexican rebozo—an adorably colored weave in stripes, which consorted well with any raiment, or collection of hand-bags. Lined with soft leather fabric, this bag which opened an accommodatingly wide mouth to gulp in our finds, was a genuine delight both to look at and to use.

Skirts Are Rounded

Prominent among the features rendering the season's skirts attractive is that of rounding panels, which form the dress, these being attached to the elongated waist or basque. Sometimes, for variation, one entire side of a skirt thus attached is curved toward a panel falling in a straight line. Sometimes these rounds, or scallops are bound with ribbon or with some material in contrast to the skirt, the contrast being not always so in color, but sometimes only in fabric, or created by reversing the material from which the dress is constructed.

Color Enlivement

Few dresses or ensembles in black or any of the darker colors but have some brilliant tone for contrast. Often this vividry appears in the form of vestees, or panel fronts to blouses, or again it peeps forth from its place as lining to a coat either long or short. Still again, color envivifies the entire collar of a dress or wrap; and sometimes it is used as piping up panels or along the floating edges of tunics. Usually, the same shade is evinced upon the hat, accompanying the garment.

Shawling One's Wrap

A noticeably sumptuous wrap, shown at a local specialty shop was of orchid velvet, shawl shaped, the points being rounded and edged with metallic lace in gun-barrel shade. Metallic cloth frequently forms the shawl wrap, and usually metallic lace of the same tint completes it.

Fashion's Fiat

Velvet hats are sometimes trimmed with fancy feathers or embroidered in metal threads.

The softly-draped tied collar of crepe de chine may have a pleated jabot frill at the front.

You may have an inverted pleat in both the center front and back of the skirt of your frock.

EIGHT PORTRAITS BY NEALE ORDAYNE

A new luminary among portrait painters swam into our ken last Wednesday, when Neale Ordayne, recently from Paris, opened his first exhibition of eight canvases at the Cannell-Chaffin galleries. Seven of these portraits, with one small pastel, were painted in Los Angeles, though Ordayne has been here less than three months. The eighth, that of the Comtesse de Langraye, comes from Paris, where the painter still has a studio.

Ordayne is an American, born and brought up in Chicago. At the age of 16—he is just a little over twice sixteen now—he began his studies at the Chicago Art Institute, remaining there for a number of years, and then going on to the Mecca of all American painters, where he enrolled as a student at both Julian's and Colorossi's. He reached Los Angeles (his ultimate haven, he hopes) by way of Seattle. Up there he painted fifteen portraits. A busy man, you'll observe.

And a good painter. An excellent draughtsman who is not afraid of color. Witness for outstanding examples of his flair for delightful and original color combinations, the portraits of Mrs. Conrad Nagel and Georgia Durgan. Both have backgrounds that are at once arresting and exquisite. Both intrigue us by their esthetic beauty. The same esthetic charm—the same tenderness of feeling — is found in the child portrait, "Althea." And in the pastel head of a little girl exposed in one of the Cannell-Chaffin show windows.

Still another attractive child portrait is that of Henry Edward Huntington II. Here we find unusual grace in composition. The small boy, serious and wistful, is seated in an old English chair, tall of back and narrow, his slim bare legs, with crossed feet, forming a pattern, as it were, with the slimmer legs of the chair. At his feet, to the left, lies a discarded picture book. Few men paint children well. Ordayne is one of the few. By the power of sympathy he enters into the heart of their mystery, and through his finesse as a painter he depicts their outer loveliness, which is like the loveliness of a flower, exquisite and transitory.

Distinction marks the portrait of the Comtesse de Langraye—distinction in the work of the painter as well as in the sitter herself. Sometimes portrait painters are lucky. Very often they are not. Assuredly luck was on Neale Ordayne's side when this fascinating French woman consented to pose for him. And, since he rose to meet his luck, since he did not bungle the occasion, the luck is handed on to us—we now have the portrait to enjoy. This canvas was exhibited in the Paris Salon for 1923 and reproduced in the catalog.

But good as Ordayne's portraits of women often are—there is also an interesting one of Blanche Sweet in the present show—charming as those of children still oftener are—his true metier as an interpreter of character lies in the more robust field of men. Here he loses all self-consciousness, all fear (for women must be made beautiful,) and lets himself go. I judge from two examples only, the portraits of two well-known men of Los Angeles, Rev. James A. Francis, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Rev. Charles Davidson, D.D., pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church. They are the portraits of men painted by a man.

When Ordayne was a student in Paris he journeyed to Haarlem, in Holland, to look at Frans Hals's portraits and studies, all still hanging in the great master's studio, which has been preserved intact by Dutch piety. It was a correct instinct that impelled the young American portrait painter to go there for study and inspiration. Somehow, he must have felt that he was destined to become a painter of men above all else, as Hals was. For here the "properties" are comparatively simple, here the work of the painter, the interpreter, must be dynamic. No man likes to be painted "pretty." Every man wants to look strong and intelligent. That's his ideal of himself—the dream he held in his youth.

Fortunately for the portrait painter, dreams often come true—at least in part—so that he need not stretch the truth beyond the breaking point. We feel that Ordayne did not have to stretch it at all in the two portraits of men at Cannell-Chaffin's. The heads, so solidly constructed, the faces so direct in expression, the eyes so steady and friendly, are the heads, faces and eyes of leaders among men—leaders in thought as well as in action. They are, indubitably, portraits of men by a man.

You will note that they are very well drawn. Look at the hands in the portrait of Dr. Francis. Look at the modeling of the head in that of Dr. Davidson. Study the sober beauty of the color in both canvases. Then tell me if I am right or no in pronouncing so emphatically Neale Ordayne's true domain as a painter.

"The Heights," by Evylena Nunn Miller,
One of the landscapes shown in the sixteenth annual exhibit of California Art Club.

POETIC PICTURES BY ARTHUR FOSTER

The quality of poetry is often strained in the work of many painters of landscape—so strained that in the last residuum there is none. The reasons for this lack are several, one of them being the lack of poetry in the artist himself. Another is a too close absorption in mere technique.

Technique is a desirable thing, and even a necessary thing in good art. But when we make use of the shibboleth, "art for art's sake," we do not mean technique for technique's sake, though far too many artists seem to think so.

The word poetic, as applied to painting, is often wildly misinterpreted. It does not mean sentimental. When we say that a painting is poetic, we mean, or should mean, that the man who painted it somewhow or other managed to transfer to canvas the feeling or emotion that he had when he looked at the subject before him. This is not any easy thing to do, as many sincere painters will tell you.

A poetic landscape, then, is one in which there is genuine feeling as well as visual beauty. It is nature seen—and adequately recorded—through a temperament. Such landscapes are the sixteen pastels and six oils that Arthur Turner Foster is exhibiting, to November

OF INTEREST TO ARTISTS

10, at the Dalzell Hatfield galleries.

Foster's approach to nature is humble, sincere—almost devout. His attitude is like that of an idealistic lover to his mistress. The result is that a certain timidity inheres in his pictures. In his serenade he twangs no bloomin' lyre, but delicately fingers the strings of a lute. Hence his pictures become poetic, full of true sentiment, true feeling, true beauty. He has not yet reached his technical altitude, but his little pictures, considered chronologically, show that he is rapidly moving upward.

He is a charming, sometimes a subtle, colorist, and he has a correct, though not a powerful, sense for form. The time has come—is now—when he must drop the lute and seize the lyre, and storm the citadel of the lady of his desire. He will win her completely. For he is already very close to success—the proof lies in such lovely things from his brush and his crayon as "The Valley Below," "The Phantom City," "Stella Maris," "The Silver Sea," "The Flaming West," "The Phantom Mountain."

HALDANE DOUGLAS AT THE BILTMORE

There's a show at the Biltmore Salon that you mustn't miss. It closes tonight, or, perhaps, early in the week, so go and see it before it is too late, if you haven't already had your enjoyment of it. This show consists of ten landscapes by Haldane Douglas, who is one of our younger painters, till two years ago a successful architect.

Douglas is not only young in paint, but comparatively young in years. For the past six months he has been hailed as a comer by the knowing ones—those who always see a stone fence when they bump into it. A few among us hailed him from afar, when he was just stepping out. We saw that he had a gait, a stride, a determination to get there, and as he also gave decided evidence of possessing unusual talent, we knew that he would ultimately "arrive."

He hasn't arrived yet, to be sure. He won't for some years, for 'tis a long, long trail that leads up to the top of the highest peak in Darien. And a hard trail, provocative of much toil, sweat and discouragement. And hope. Always hope. An exhilarating trail, as every artist will admit when cornered, though he likes to tell other tales.

"Comtesse de Langraye," by Neale Ordayne

Douglas, an exponent of plangent and gorgeous color, a color that sings aloud, but harmoniously, in reds and blues and greens, with deliciously gray overtones, is still on the way, and, to judge from his pictures, he's having a mighty good time of it. They express his joy in paint, the ecstacy of the brush, the love of art and the worship of nature.

They lack, for the time being, organized composition. They are improvisations. Haphazard, often, but always delightful, because they express Haldane Douglas's eager search for beauty. Incomplete, because he has not yet fully discovered the great truth that beauty in art must have perfect form if it is to endure. In the last analysis, all artists are seeking for perfect for significant, form—and nothing else. For that is what art is—significant form.

I believe, and I don't stand alone in this belief, that Douglas is destined to become one of Southern California's finest painters. Soon, too. It seems to me that the signs are so evident that he who runs may read them. You will find them in these and other paintings from the hand of Douglas at the Biltmore Salon: "Circus Day, Monterey," "The Wanderers," "Coral Sea," "Orientale."

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL WILL CLOSE TODAY

You have only one more day—and that's today—in which to enjoy the sixteenth annual show of the California Art Club at Los Angeles Museum. You have been given a month, and it is to be hoped that you have not neglected your opportunities. For the exhibition closes late this afternoon, to be followed in a few days by the great Pan-American exhibition of oil paintings, which will contain 500 examples of works by painters in the North and South Americas.

The California exhibition has already received considerable attention in these columns, but through pressure of other material—for art is booming like real estate in Los Angeles—the landscapes and sculptures have not had the detailed notice that they deserve. Therefore I will call your attention to some of the things to look for in the gallery in the all-too-brief time left you. Though, to be sure, you have probably discovered them for yourselves long ago.

A complete enumeration is neither necessary nor desirable, but I advise you to search for Ruth Bennett's "One Autumn Day;" Norman Chamberlain's "Sorrento Point;" Haldane Douglas's "Landscape;" Clyde Forsythe's "A Temple of the Desert;" Clara Force's "Chester Hills, Pennsylvania," (one of the best;) Arthur Gilbert's "Arizona Desert;" Arthur Hazard's "October Morning;" Anna Hills's "The Glory of Autumn;" Paul Lauritz's magnificent "Golden Summer;" Evylena Nunn Miller's "The Heights;" Alfred Mitchell's "The Wood," and "Riverview Ranch."

Then you will come upon Thomas McKay's "Scottish Fishing Boats," Edgar Payne's splendid subject from Switzerland, "Peaks and Shadows," Thorward Probst's "Yachts at Anchor," Irene Bower Robinson's "Among the Hills," Ernest Browning Smith's arresting "The Flaming Cloud," Charles L. A. Smith's "Midwinter Morning," Nell Walker Warner's deliciously toned "Golden Sentinels," Orrin White's freely painted "Autumn Sycamores."

After that you will linger among the sculptors, of whom there are fourteen. Only three show us sculptures of any considerable size—Julia Bracken Wendt with her fine relief, "Modoc (Indian Head,)" Maud Daggett with her charming motif, "Wall Fountain," and Merrell Gage with his very noble memorial figure, "Flight." The others are, for the most part, represented by small portrait heads of figures. These portraits and figures are almost invariably well done, sometimes superlatively well done. Their makers are Harold Swartz, Ella Buchanan, Jessie Herron, Cyril Juricka, Edna Kelly, Beulah May, Beatrice Rodenhouse, Katherine Beecher Stetson, Althea Uiber, Melba Wilson and Grace Wells Parkinson.

Los Angeles artists—painters and sculptors—have become as thick as blackberries. They must not feel disgruntled if we do not enumerate all that we pause to taste in the exhibitions.

Bartlett in Chicago

"Capistrano Mission," an oil by Dana Bartlett, is shown in the thirty-eighth annual exhibition of American artists at the Chicago Art Institute.

Dear Playmates:

Our names are Jack and Jane. We've been twins for five years going on six, and last night we had the most wonderful experience in our whole lives—and were promised six more of them, too!

We were all curled up on the rug in front of the fireplace, just wonderin' about Santa Claus, plum pudding, the size of the chimney and our stockings, reindeers and things like that. The lights were all out and shadows from the fireplace were dancing all scary-like along the walls and floor.

Pop! Crack!

"What was that?" Jane said to me, her eyes big and round.

"Dunno," said I, putting my arm around her protecting-like.

Bang! and Jane crept closer. A big spark burst 'sploded right before our eyes. And then a beautiful rainbow, all gold and pink and blue and orange bent across the fireplace and the dearest, tiniest girl fairy all lovely and gay and shiny stood right in the middle of the arch.

"Hello, twins," she said, "I'm Twinkles!"

"Where do you live?" asked Jane.

"I live in the SILVER CITY OF HAPPINESS," she said.

"SILVER CITY OF HAPPINESS?" we asked together.

..."I thought that would interest you," Twinkles said. "Would you like to go there with me?"

"Oh-yes," we both said, "what's in THE SILVER CITY?"

"All sorts of toys—everything to make children happy," she said. "First, I'll take you to see the musical instruments. You'll find Old King Cole on the corner of Ice Cream Boulevard and Gum Drop Lane. And dolls—

"Oh, Twinkles," called Jane, about to cry, because the rainbow was getting dimmer and dimmer and nothing was left of Twinkles but the tip of one tiny slipper. But it didn't matter, for next thing we knew we were face to face with Old King Cole in THE SILVER CITY OF HAPPINESS!

Be sure to watch for us Tuesday night and we'll tell you about it.

who are interested in Beauty Culture will be given an unusual opportunity. Must be over 18, must have had at least 8th grade schooling, must furnish two character references.

BEAUTY CULTURE is rapidly becoming an enormous business. It is one of the few fields where women can earn man-size incomes. Undesirable and incompetents are being crowded out. Standards are being raised. And so wonderful opportunities are waiting for women and girls who prepare for them with the same intensity that men train for success in the vocations and professions.

The nine women selected will be educated at home in their spare time by a new PRACTICE method while still retaining their present positions. They will be given an absolute guarantee both as to position and definite salary within a specified time, or an immediate refund of the small amount charged for their education. A few will be chosen to open a Beauty Shop of their own, affiliated with the great National organization.

If you are seeking the shortest road to an income of $50 to $150 a week, if you are ambitious, energetic, earnest, and genuinely interested in the possibilities of Beauty Culture—if you can ACT as well as WISH, even if you have absolutely no Beauty Culture experience, write immediately for complete information, stating briefly your qualifications. Address BB, box 429, TIMES BRANCH.
